ALEX G. SPANOS

Owner

Alex Spanos and his wife Faye are shining examples of how the American spirit of hard work and determination can pay off for those willing to follow their dreams.

In 1951 at the age of 27, Alex Spanos decided he could no longer support his growing family on $40 per week working in his father's bakery. So he borrowed $800, purchased a used catering truck and set out on his own by providing catering and support services for the migrant farm workers in California's Central Valley.

From those humble beginnings, Spanos' tireless work ethic built one of the leading real estate and development companies in the industry, and today he is the patriarch of one of the most accomplished and philanthropic families in the United States.

Chargers Owner Alex Spanos and his wife Faye will celebrate 65 years of marriage in 2013. Spanos purchased the team in 1984.

A.G. Spanos Companies builds multi-family housing and master planned communities and is one of the nation's largest family-owned builders. Alex Spanos' personal commitment to quality and integrity is now carried on by his family in the daily operation and management of the San Diego Chargers as well as the companies that bear his name.

Spanos made family part of his formula for business success. The A.G. Spanos organization, including the Chargers, is a family-run operation. Spanos' amazing journey and his passion for giving back is outlined in his autobiography, "Sharing the Wealth: My Story," a compelling first-hand account of the events and decisions in his life that became his basic fundamentals for success.

His success in the construction and development industry allowed him to pursue many dreams, including purchasing the Chargers on Aug. 1, 1984. Alex turned over the day-to-day operations of the Chargers to his oldest son, Dean, in 1994. Today he enjoys retirement and watching sons, Dean and Michael, along with grandsons, A.G. and John, guide the Chargers' organization to success.

Spanos' community spirit and generosity are renowned. Few can match the benevolence and philanthropy that Alex and Faye have shown through their support of deserving institutions and community-service efforts. San Diegans have Spanos to thank for the huge economic windfall of two Super Bowls and a Republican National Convention to San Diego. In addition to the millions of dollars donated by Spanos and the Chargers Community Foundation, which he established, the Spanos family has delivered more than $11 million to help San Diego's youth by supporting education as well as health and fitness programs.

In 2008 the President of the Republic of Greece, Mr. Karolos Papoulias, awarded Spanos the Medal of the Commander of the Order of Honor. The honor came in recognition of his many contributions to the birthplace of his parents.

These acts of caring demonstrate the commitment of a man whose rags-to-riches story has been an inspiring example for others. Though his life has taken him places he never dreamed possible, Spanos continues to reside in his hometown of Stockton, California.

Alex and Faye are celebrating 65 years of marriage in 2013. And they will celebrate with their four children – Dean, Dea, Alexis, Michael and their spouses – 15 grandchildren, and four great grandsons.

DEAN A. SPANOS

Chairman of the Board — President

The Chargers have become one of the NFL's most successful and respected franchises under the leadership of Chairman of the Board-President Dean Spanos.

Spanos has provided the direction, resources and environment to build and maintain consistent success. The Chargers won 94 games (playoffs included) during the past nine seasons (2004-12), including five AFC West championships (2004, 2006-09) and three playoff games. Only four teams won more games during that span.

Most recently, Spanos has overseen one of the largest transition periods in franchise history. In January, he hired new Tom Telesco and Mike McCoy to serve as the team's new general manager and head coach, respectively, completing a transition from one of the oldest front offices in the NFL to the youngest. Telesco (40), McCoy (40) and Chief Executive Officer A.G. Spanos (35) are the youngest such trio in the league.

The additions of Telesco and McCoy have brought new energy and optimism to the organization and its fan base.

Spanos became President of the Chargers early in 1994, the same year the team culminated its most memorable season in team history with an appearance in Super Bowl XXIX.

Spanos' leadership is felt throughout the National Football League as well as all Spanos corporate entities. As a member of the Management Council Executive Committee (CEC), he played an integral role in negotiating the NFL's current labor agreement prior to the 2011 season. He serves as chairman of the NFL's Business Ventures Committee, which has oversight regarding various league commercial activities, including consumer products, sponsorship, events, marketing and new business initiatives. He also serves on the League's International and Legislative Committees.

In addition, as president of the A.G. Spanos Companies, Dean and his brother, Michael, oversee all construction operations nationwide.

Spanos' commitment to San Diego and the team is undeniable. He has dedicated a decade of hard work and millions of dollars to develop a plan to give San Diegans a modern Super Bowl-quality stadium and secure a long-term home for their football team. The reason for this bond: Dean, his wife Susie, and their two sons, A.G. and John, proudly have called San Diego home for more than 28 years.

Spanos' efforts to build a special relationship between the team and its fans have helped the Chargers become one of San Diego's most popular and talked-about institutions. These efforts were acknowledged in 2006 when the Chargers were named the League's most fan-friendly team by FansVoice.com. Nothing grabs the attention of San Diegans like the Chargers, whose games have become the highlight of weekends during the season. Television ratings of games are unsurpassed while day-to-day news of the team dominates local talk shows and newscasts.

TRADITION OF GIVING

Spanos has continued the long-standing tradition of community service and support that was established by his father Alex Spanos and the Chargers.

Examples of the family's commitment to San Diego and the community are everywhere. When Dean and his family as well as the entire Chargers community were shaken by the sudden passing of former Chargers linebacker Junior Seau in 2012, he and his wife Susie hosted a "Celebration of Life" for Seau in Qualcomm Stadium. The event was seen and heard live by more than 150,000 San Diegans, making it possible for a grieving community to come together, heal and pay tribute to one of San Diego's native sons.

The Spanos family is recognized as one of pro football's most philanthropic families and one of Southern California's most active and caring contributors. Their financial and emotional support of youth sports and education in San Diego is unmatched.

In 2010, the Association of Fundraising Professionals recognized Spanos and the Chargers as San Diego's Outstanding Philanthropic Corporation, one of the most prestigious awards for community service.

"I'm fortunate to be in a position to help people and organizations that need and deserve our support. My family is proud to be a part of the San Diego community," Spanos said upon receipt of the honor.

The Chargers Community Foundation continues to be a leader in assisting schools, honoring volunteers, supporting youth sports and aiding critical causes important to the community. The Foundation and the Spanos family have provided more than $11 million to support a wide range of services and resources for programs directly affecting youth and families in San Diego county.

The Foundation's largest ongoing program, Chargers Champions, was created in 1999 specifically to help San Diego County's schools and students. The program has provided nearly $5 million in direct assistance to local schools, teachers and students.

The focus of Chargers Champions is to improve the fitness levels of students in the county. It provides grants directly to San Diego County schools for fitness, nutrition and athletic programs on area campuses.

Although examples of Spanos' largesse are too many to count, a number of efforts stand out. In 2000 local student-athletes received a giant boost when the Spanos family and Chargers Community Foundation supplied the initial funding to organize the first-ever freshman football and girls volleyball programs in the 16 San Diego City high schools. This major public-private partnership created more than 1,000 extracurricular opportunities for students.

Youth football in San Diego has known no greater champion than the Spanos family and the Chargers. Their support of the California Interscholastic Federation's (CIF) annual high school football championship games allows the games to be played in Qualcomm Stadium. The Alex Spanos All-Star Classic, the longest-running high school all-star football game in California, is another example of their support. This devotion to youth football led the national Pop Warner organization to name the Chargers its 2007 NFL Team of the Year.

In 2007, when wildfires ravaged San Diego County for the second time in five years, Spanos jumped to the forefront with a $1 million donation to aid affected families and the recovery effort. He made an identical $1 million contribution immediately following the wildfires that hit the community in 2003.

Spanos also is a staunch supporter of San Diego's Police, Fire and Sheriff's departments. Thanks to his generosity, Critical Communications Centers have been upgraded and mobile command units for the Police department have been purchased. Spanos' financial support enabled local agencies to purchase wildfire fighting gear as well as other fire-fighting equipment. And in response to an increase in child abduction cases, Spanos hosted and paid for critical law enforcement training classes for the Sheriff's department.

Spanos continues to be a major force in San Diego's business and civic communities. He has been a top contributor to Rady Children's Hospital, the San Diego Blood Bank, the Huntington's Disease Society of America, San Diego State University's Campanile Foundation, University of San Diego, STAR/PAL, the San Diego Police Foundation, the San Diego Hall of Champions and the San Diego High School Sports Association.

Dean and Alex Spanos secured Super Bowl XXXII (1998) for the City of San Diego, a huge economic benefit for the community. Super Bowl XXXVII in January 2003 brought more than $300 million to the San Diego economy and marked the second time in five years that the San Diego region enjoyed the financial windfall of hosting a Super Bowl.

COMMUNITY HONORS

Honors for their generosity come frequently to Dean and Susie. They received the 2012 Herb Klein Spirit of San Diego Award from the San Diego Regional Chamber of Commerce at the organization's annual awards dinner. In 2011 the Salvation Army recognized Spanos and the Chargers' dedication to helping San Diego's homeless citizens during their annual Golden Bells ceremony. In 2010 the American Diabetes Association honored Spanos at its annual Fathers of the Year Dinner. In 2007, the local Salvation Army named Dean and Susie as their Most Valuable Philanthropists.

In 2006 President George W. Bush appointed Spanos as a Board of Trustees member of the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts. That same year he was the honored recipient of the Golden Achievement Award from the Boys & Girls Clubs of San Diego and Junior Achievement of San Diego inducted him into its Hall of Fame for his community leadership and specifically for his support of youth education initiatives.

The Warner Award, the top honor of the national Pop Warner football organization, was bestowed on him for his commitment to youth football and its Little Scholars education initiative in 2005. The San Diego Chapter of the National Football Foundation also presented Spanos with its highest honor, the Distinguished American Award. In 2004, the Police Historical Society presented him with their first Cota Award for community philanthropy and support of law enforcement. Dean and Susie received the Harold Leventhal Community Service Award in 2003, the top national award of the Huntington's Disease Society of America.

Spanos has the unique distinction of being a second-generation recipient of the renowned Ellis Island Medal of Honor, so honored in 2002, 16 years after his father was similarly honored. He was also inducted into the DeMolay International Alumni Hall of Fame in 2002. DeMolay International is an organization dedicated to preparing young men to lead successful and productive lives.

In 2001, the San Diego Hall of Champions Sports Museum presented Dean and Susie with its Community Champions Award, the Hall's most distinguished award.

BUSINESSMAN AND FAMILY MAN

Dean Alexander Spanos was born in Stockton, California. He earned varsity letters in football and golf at Lincoln High School in Stockton. Dean later received Lincoln High School's Hall of Fame Award, which honors alumni whose contributions and accomplishments are representative of the school. He was recognized for his achievements in the areas of business and athletics. Spanos continued his golfing career at the University of the Pacific in Stockton, graduating in 1972 with a degree in business administration. He maintains close ties with his alma mater, having served as a regent at the university.

An avid golfer since his college years, Dean has been on the winning team in five Pro-Am tournaments, including back to-back wins in 1990 at the Bob Hope Chrysler Classic and the AT&T National Pro-Am at Pebble Beach with partner Hubert Green. He successfully defended his title at the Hope Classic in 1991. Spanos' first win came with Green at the 1985 Bing Crosby Pro-Am at Pebble Beach, where he was awarded the "Most Valuable Amateur" trophy for supplying the most help to his professional partner. Later that year, his second win came in the 1985 Senior Players Reunion Pro-Am in Dallas, where he teamed with San Diego native Billy Casper.

Susie received the prestigious Celebration of Life Award in 2011 from the American Cancer Society. She is a spokeswoman for the NFL's cancer campaign and is a breast cancer survivor. She also was honored as a "Woman of Dedication" by the Salvation Army in 2001 and has been named the Woman of the Year by the San Diego Leukemia Society for her philanthropic work in the community.

Susie works with and serves on the boards of many charitable organizations in San Diego, including the San Diego Women's Foundation. She is a trustee at the Mingei Museum and an advisory member of Las Patronas, one of San Diego's leading non-profit organizations. Susie has been a driving force in supporting the San Diego Blood Bank and its umbilical cord blood program, helping the Chargers' annual blood drive become one of the most successful in the nation.

Dean and Susie's eldest son A.G. is the Chargers' executive vice president – chief executive officer. Previously he spent three years as the team's executive officer and five years as the team's director of marketing programs and business development. A.G. is a graduate of the business school at the University of Southern California. Prior to joining the Chargers full-time in 2001, he interned in the NFL Europe office in London and at the NFL office in New York. As a freshman, A.G. attended Tufts University in Medford, Mass., where he was a member of the football team. In high school, he earned six varsity letters as a two-sport athlete (basketball and football) at La Jolla Country Day School.

Son John was recently elevated to executive vice president of football operations for the Chargers. Previously he was the director of college scouting for five seasons after serving as assistant director as well as a pro and college scout. John graduated from Wake Forest University with a degree in business in 2002. He also interned one summer and later worked one year at the NFL Management Council's office in New York. While at The Bishop's School in La Jolla, John earned nine varsity letters in a variety of sports – football, basketball and golf – and played on three championship teams. John and his wife Jodie reside in La Jolla.

MICHAEL A. SPANOS

Executive Vice President

Michael A. Spanos became executive vice president of the Chargers in 1995. In that capacity, he assists in financial and management matters pertaining to the team. Michael joins his brother, President Dean Spanos, in steering the direction of the organization and has provided invaluable advice in the ongoing effort to bring a new stadium to the San Diego region.

As president of the A.G. Spanos Companies, Michael is responsible for the planning and development activities of the organization around the country. He monitors and oversees the office divisions in the states where the company builds and develops. His responsibilities also extend to the areas of property management, land acquisition, as well as to the preparation of all plans for any future direction and growth of the company's construction and land development activities. From the company headquarters in Stockton, Michael travels regularly across the country to monitor and manage building projects in several states.

Born in Stockton, California in 1959, he attended Lincoln High School and graduated from the University of the Pacific, where he earned a bachelor's degree in business administration. In 1989, Michael was appointed to the Board of Regents at the University of the Pacific, where he served for five years. Michael continues to contribute both his time and resources to the development of several projects involving youth sports and education. He and his wife, Helen, have five children and reside in Stockton.

A.G. SPANOS

Executive Vice President — Chief Executive Officer

A.G. Spanos oversees all day-to-day business operations of the San Diego Chargers, including marketing, sales, public relations and community relations. He also represents the organization at all NFL and ownership meetings.

Spanos was named executive vice president–chief executive officer in July 2011 after serving three years as executive vice president—executive officer (2008-10) and five seasons as the team's director of marketing programs and business development (2003-07).

The Chargers' bond with their fans and the San Diego community is always top of mind for Spanos, and the 2013 offseason yielded several key examples. In an effort to drive attendance, build a stronger home-field advantage and help minimize local television blackouts, Spanos spearheaded a rescaling of the stadium's ticket prices and lowered the price of nearly 10,000 season seats. From 2008-12, the Chargers were one of just five NFL teams that didn't raise ticket prices in that five-year period. Twenty-seven of the NFL's 32 teams raised prices, including many more than once.

It was the second time in three years that Spanos lowered ticket prices. His decision to lower the price of 6,500 seats going into the 2011 season proved successful as it provided Chargers fans with more of the most affordable NFL tickets in the country while also easing the path to additional sellouts and live local telecasts.

A prime example of Spanos' out-of-the-box thinking took place in June when the team designated Monday, June 10 "Thank You San Diego Day." On that day the entire organization ventured out in groups throughout the county, spending an afternoon thanking fans and San Diegans for their support while sharing the team's excitement for the coming season. The event drew rave reviews from the local citizenry as well as local and national media outlets, further cementing the bond between the team and its fans.

Spanos has led several initiatives that have created more value for season ticket holders. To reward and thank the Chargers' most loyal customers whom he refers to as the team's "life blood," Spanos has created the most attractive list of benefits ever available, including exclusive events with the team at Training Camp and Qualcomm Stadium, exclusive fan forums with players and key personnel, behind-the-scenes tours, and once-in-a-lifetime prize packages and opportunities.

Spanos also works closely with the team's customer service, stadium and security partners continually searching for ways to enhance Chargers fans' game-day experience and the team's Fan Conduct Program. Fan behavior is a strategic priority for the NFL and the Chargers organization. During the NFL's unannounced stadium security checks of all 32 venues in 2011, the Chargers had the most outstanding review and ranked first among all teams in the League's "Fan Conduct Best Practices" audit.

In an effort to quench Chargers fans unending thirst for information about their team, Spanos created the organization's first digital media department. The department has been instrumental in providing an endless supply of unique content available only on the team's official website, while expanding the Chargers' social media footprint.

One of Spanos' first big-picture decisions involved the development and introduction of the Chargers' new logo and marks in 2007, including new uniforms. Six years later in 2013, he helped implement some minor tweaks designed to enhance the color scheme of the uniforms. Spanos also coordinated efforts with the stadium concessionaire to launch the opening of the Chargers Team Store at Qualcomm Stadium and he has worked closely with the merchandise partners who supply the store as well as the team's Online Pro Shop at Chargers.com.

Spanos has continued the Chargers' long-standing tradition of community support and involvement. In 2002, he founded "Chargers Auction," which offers official Chargers merchandise and team-worn memorabilia online. To date the endeavor has raised more than $530,000 for charity. Spanos has served on the Executive Committee and the Board of Directors for the San Diego Hall of Champions Sports Museum and he is a Trustee for the San Diego Sports Commission. He also serves on the Board of Directors for the San Diego Regional Chamber of Commerce and the San Diego Police Foundation.

TOM TELESCO

General Manager

19th NFL Season, 1st season with Chargers

On January 9, 2013, Chargers President Dean Spanos named former Indianapolis Colts Vice President of Football Operations, Tom Telesco, the team's new general manager. Telesco is overseeing all aspects of football operations and player personnel decisions for the Chargers.

"We set out to find the right person to bring about positive change for the San Diego Chargers," said Spanos at the time of his hiring. "It was a tough decision, but in the end, all signs pointed to Tom. He is highly respected among his NFL peers. His work ethic is extraordinary. He is honest, humble, engaging and an excellent communicator. And, most important, he knows how to build a winning football team.

"Now that we have this critical piece in place, our goal is land the right coach to lead the team back to where it belongs: in the playoffs and to a Super Bowl championship."

Telesco, 40, is the youngest general manager in Chargers history. He spent the last 15 seasons with the Colts, serving in a variety of capacities, including vice president of football operations (2012), director of player personnel (2006-11), director of pro scouting (2004-05), pro scout (2001-03) and area scout (1998-00).

In Indianapolis, Telesco was a part of the decision-making process that brought quarterback Andrew Luck to the Colts with the No. 1 overall pick in the 2012 NFL Draft. Luck led the Colts to a record of 11-5 during his rookie season and a berth in the AFC Wild Card Playoffs. The Colts went from 2-14 to 11-5 in a span of one year as their roster went through a complete overhaul. At the end of the 2012 season, the roster featured 36 new players from the end of the previous year.

Telesco's tenure with the Colts was one of the most successful eras of the franchise's history that also included a move into a new stadium, Lucas Oil Stadium, which played host to Super Bowl XLVI on Feb. 5, 2012. From 1998-12, the Colts went 154-86 and appeared in the playoffs 12 times, winning eight division titles, while finishing second four times. Those 12 postseason appearances included a victory over Chicago in Super Bowl XLI following the 2006 season and a loss to New Orleans in Super Bowl XLIV after the '09 season. Indianapolis' 154 wins from 1998-12 were the second-most in the NFL during that span (New England, 168).

"I'm thrilled that Tom has been named the general manager of the Chargers," said former Bills and Colts General Manager Bill Polian. "He is a first-rate executive, a first-rate football man and a first-rate person. I've had the pleasure of working with him for over 20 years. I can assure you and assure all Chargers fans that he will do a great job for them."

"I had the privilege of working with Tom for seven years in Indianapolis," said former Buccaneers and Colts Head Coach Tony Dungy. "He is a great football man but also a great person. He understands the game. He knows what good players look like. He is just very adept at identifying them and finding them. More than that I think he understands what makes a good organization. I think he is going to be fantastic for the Chargers. I'm excited for Tom and excited for the Chargers organization."

Telesco's first season in Indianapolis (1998) coincided with the Colts drafting of another quarterback with the first overall pick in the NFL Draft, Peyton Manning. Since that time, he was involved in a number of successful drafts with the Colts that included the selections of four-time Pro Bowl running back Edgerrin James, five-time Pro Bowl wide receiver Reggie Wayne and seven-time Pro Bowl outside linebacker Dwight Freeney.

A native of Buffalo, New York, Telesco worked as a summer intern at the Bills' training camps during the 1991-94 seasons. At the same time, he played wide receiver at John Carroll University in Ohio where he was a starter for the school's Ohio Athletic Conference championship team in 1994. Telesco graduated in '95 with a degree in business management, the same year he landed his first NFL job as a scouting assistant with the Carolina Panthers. He spent three years with the Panthers, including 1997 as an area scout before joining the Colts in '98.

Telesco and his wife, Larah, have three children: daughter Elena and sons Thomas and Nicholas.

MIKE McCOY

Head Coach

16th NFL Season, 1st season with Chargers

On Jan. 15, 2013, Chargers President Dean Spanos introduced former Denver Broncos Offensive Coordinator Mike McCoy as the 15th head coach in team history.

"We set out to find the right man to lead the San Diego Chargers on the field and that man is Mike McCoy," Spanos said. "Mike has all of the qualities we were looking for in a head coach and a leader. He has a very structured vision about how to build and run a football team. Mike and (new General Manager) Tom (Telesco) think very much alike and share very similar beliefs. Mike has shown he has one of the most innovative minds in football. He has a track record of building offenses and maximizing the abilities of his players. He's a devout family man and understands the value of building and maintaining a family environment here. Mike is energetic, enthusiastic, forward-thinking, and a team builder. Bottom line, he's a leader. And he's charismatic. I know our fans will enjoy getting to know Mike and watching what he does with the Chargers."

McCoy, 41, comes to the Chargers from Denver, where he helped the Broncos to their second-highest win total in franchise history as they went 13-3 and entered the playoffs as the No. 1 seed in the AFC. The Broncos won 11 straight games to end the regular season, the second-longest streak in team history, and became only the seventh Super Bowl-era team to win their final 11 contests.

"I've known Mike for many years and believe he is a tremendous coach," said Broncos coach John Fox. "We spent nearly a decade coaching together, beginning in Carolina when he was an assistant working with the quarterbacks. He's going to make an excellent head coach and is certainly qualified for the position. Mike understands offenses in this league. Beyond that, he's got a great football mind. His preparation and detail—his level of organization—is very strong."

With McCoy at the helm of the Broncos' offense, quarterback Peyton Manning threw a team-record 37 touchdown passes, while posting the second-best season of his career in yards (4,659) and completion percentage (68.6%). The Broncos ranked fourth in the NFL in total offense and their passing game featured a pair of standout receivers in Demaryius Thomas and Eric Decker, who combined to become the youngest receiving duo in NFL history to each top 1,000 yards and 10 touchdowns. Thomas led the way with 1,434 yards and 10 scores on 94 catches, while Decker scored 13 times while hauling in 85 passes for 1,064 yards. Injuries hampered Denver's running backs corps during the season but the group was resilient and combined to rush for 1,832 yards and 12 touchdowns.

"Mike's a good leader," said Manning. "He's had some good coaches that have been mentors to him; different coaches that he's worked with in his years in the NFL that I think he's incorporated some of their leadership philosophies and his own philosophy."

The 2011 season was a storybook one in Denver as McCoy helped the Broncos reach the AFC Divisional Playoffs after winning their first AFC West title since 2005. The Broncos upset the heavily-favored Pittsburgh Steelers in the Wild Card Playoffs at Sports Authority Field with quarterback Tim Tebow throwing an 80-yard touchdown pass to Thomas on the first play of overtime. The success of the '11 season was particularly satisfying for McCoy, who had completely revamped Denver's offense into a read-option attack that meshed with Tebow's playing style and the Broncos went on to lead the NFL with a franchise-record 2,632 yards on the ground.

A couple of other Broncos' players who starred while playing under McCoy included wide receiver Brandon Lloyd and running back Willis McGahee. Lloyd led the NFL in receiving yards (1,448) in 2010 and earned his first Pro Bowl selection, while also becoming just the fourth wide receiver in team history to receive Associated Press All-Pro honors and McGahee rushed for 1,199 yards in 2011 to earn his second-career Pro Bowl selection.

McCoy came to Denver after the '08 season, becoming Denver's offensive coordinator and quarterbacks coach. In his first season with the Broncos, quarterback Kyle Orton set career highs in every major passing category and two Broncos offensive players, wide receiver Brandon Marshall and left tackle Ryan Clady, earned Pro Bowl honors. Marshall caught 101 passes that season, tied for third in the NFL, and set an NFL record with 21 catches in a game against Indianapolis, while Clady added first-team Associated Press All-Pro honors to his Pro Bowl selection. Running back Knowshon Moreno also shined under McCoy, earning All-Rookie honors after leading the league's rookies in rushing yards, total yards from scrimmage and total touchdowns.

McCoy played quarterback at Long Beach State and the University of Utah before signing with the Broncos as an undrafted free agent in 1995. He ended up spending his rookie season on the practice squad in Green Bay and then had stops with NFL Europe's Amsterdam Admirals, his hometown San Francisco 49ers and the Philadelphia Eagles before concluding his playing career with the Canadian Football League's Calgary Stampeders in 1999.

McCoy transitioned into coaching a year later, joining the Carolina Panthers as an offensive assistant in 2000. Four weeks into his first season with the Panthers however, he was elevated to quarterbacks coach and helped Steve Beuerlein to a 3,730-yard season that ranked seventh in the NFL. McCoy would end up spending nine seasons in Carolina, serving as wide receivers coach (2001), quarterbacks coach (2002-08) and passing game coordinator (2007-08). The Panthers totaled three playoff appearances, two division titles, two NFC Championship Game appearances and a berth in Super Bowl XXXVIII (2003) during McCoy's nine years on the staff.

McCoy's main student in Carolina was quarterback Jake Delhomme, a Pro Bowl pick in 2005 who passed for more than 3,000 yards four times under his watch. Delhomme enjoyed his best season for the Panthers in 2004, registering personal bests in passing yards (3,886) and touchdown passes (29), totals that both ranked second in Panthers' history. A year later, the Panthers went 11-5 and advanced to the NFC Championship Game behind Delhomme, who earned his first Pro Bowl nod after ranking fourth in the NFL with 24 touchdown passes. McCoy did some of his best coaching with the Panthers in 2007 when the team went a franchise-best 12-4 in the regular season and earned a first-round bye in the playoffs. Injuries forced the Panthers to start four different quarterbacks (none for more than three games in a row) during that '07 season and Carolina became the first NFL team in 10 years to win at least one game with four different starters at quarterback (Delhomme, David Carr, Matt Moore and Vinny Testaverde).

MARK RIDGLEY

ASSISTANT COACHES

KEN WHISENHUNT

Offensive Coordinator
26th NFL Season
1st season with Chargers

Former Arizona Cardinals Head Coach Ken Whisenhunt is the Chargers new offensive coordinator for 2013.

A former NFL tight end and H-Back with the Atlanta Falcons, Washington Redskins and New York Jets, Whisenhunt, spent the last six seasons as the head coach of the Cardinals (2007-12). He won a franchise-record 49 games during his time in Arizona and went 4-2 in the postseason, including an appearance in Super Bowl XLIII after a team-record 12-win season in 2008.

Prior to becoming a head coach, Whisenhunt spent 10 NFL seasons as an assistant coach, including six as a tight ends coach (Baltimore 1997-98, New York Jets 2000 and Pittsburgh 2001-03), one as a special teams coach (Cleveland 1999) and three as an offensive coordinator (Pittsburgh 2004-06). At the conclusion of his second season with the Steelers (2005), Whisenhunt won a Super Bowl ring as Pittsburgh defeated Seattle, 21-10, in Super Bowl XL. The Steelers drafted quarterback Ben Roethlisberger in Whisenhunt's first season as offensive coordinator (2004) and he helped coach "Big Ben" into one of the NFL's top signal-callers.

Whisenhunt worked with another star quarterback in Arizona in Kurt Warner, who helped lead the Cardinals to their Super Bowl appearance and back-to-back NFC West titles in 2008-09, their first division title since 1975 and their first back-to-back division crowns since 1974-75. He and Warner spent three seasons together (2007-09) during which Warner passed for 11,753 yards and 83 touchdowns, including a team-record 30 touchdowns and 4,583 yards (second in team history) in 2008. That '08 squad scored a Cardinals' record 427 points, one year after the 2007 squad set a franchise record with 32 passing touchdowns and 404 points, second-most in team history.

Whisenhunt's first three seasons in Arizona produced records of 8-8 (2007), 9-7 (2008) and 10-6 (2009) as he became the first Cardinals coach to go .500 or better in his first three seasons with the team. The Cardinals were one of the NFL's best home teams under Whisenhunt as they combined to go 33-18 at University of Phoenix Stadium, including 3-0 in the playoffs. They were .500 or better in each of his six seasons as head coach, the longest such streak in franchise history. The Cardinals won an NFL-record four games in overtime in 2011 to improve Whisenhunt's record in OT contests to 7-2.

A native of Augusta, Georgia, Whisenhunt played quarterback and tight end at Georgia Tech from 1980-84. In 1985, the Falcons drafted him in the 12th round and he played nine seasons in the NFL, including four with the Falcons (1985-88), two with the Washington Redskins (1989-90) and three with the New York Jets (1991-93). He played in 74 games during his career and caught 62 passes for 601 yards and six scores.

He earned a degree in civil engineering from Georgia Tech and entered the coaching field in 1995, spending two seasons as the special teams and tight ends coach at Vanderbilt. After two years in Nashville, he landed his first NFL coaching job with Baltimore in 1997.

Whisenhunt is an avid golfer. A native of Augusta, Ga., he worked the 18th hole manual scoreboard as a teenager at the Masters golf tournament, the PGA's first major of the year. He's played the course on a number of occasions, including May 2008 when he shot an even par 72 that included an eagle on the par-4 11th hole. Whisenhunt contemplated a career in professional golf and after retiring as a player in 1993, he spent a year away from football and played golf extensively, including competing in the '94 U.S. Mid-Amateur at the Hazeltine National Golf Club in Chaska, Minn. Whishenhunt's best career score is a 65 and he has made two holes in one during his lifetime. He also technically had a third, but it went for a three on his scorecard after his original tee shot went in the water for a penalty.

Whisenhunt and his wife, Alice, have a son, Kenneth, Jr., and a daughter, Mary Ashley.

JOHN PAGANO

Defensive Coordinator
18th NFL Season
12th season with Chargers

The longest-tenured assistant on the Chargers' coaching staff, 2013 will mark Pagano's 12th season with the Chargers and his second as defensive coordinator.

During his first season as defensive coordinator, the Bolts improved from 16th in the NFL in total defense in 2011 to ninth in '12. The team made its biggest leap in its run defense, improving 14 spots from 20th in 2011 to sixth in '12.

The Chargers scored a total of seven defensive touchdowns in 2012, second in the NFL to Chicago (12), and two shy of the team record set by the 1961 squad that returned nine interceptions for touchdowns. The 2012 Chargers returned five interceptions and two fumbles for scores. The Chargers also increased their sack total, going from 32 in 2011 to 38 in 2012, including a team-record-tying 11-sack performance in a Dec. 23 win against the New York Jets.

San Diego's defense received big performances from a number of young players in 2012. Kendall Reyes, the team's second-round pick in 2012, finished the year third on the team with 5.5 sacks, while Corey Liuget, the squad's top pick in the 2011 draft, finished the year second on the squad with seven. For the season, Reyes paced the defensive line with 19 quarterback pressures and 15 quarterback hits, while Liuget ended the year as the defensive line's leader in sacks, tackles (61), tackles for loss (15) and passes defensed (9).

Pagano originally joined the Chargers in 2002 as the team's quality control coach for the defense and moved his way up the ranks, first as an assistant linebackers coach, then as the outside linebackers coach and linebackers coach before moving into the coordinator's role last season.

In 2010, the Chargers had the NFL's No. 1 ranked defense and the squad was second in the league in sacks. Since Pagano first started working with the team's linebackers in 2005, a player from that group led the team in tackles and sacks every season, including Shaun Phillips who paced the squad in 2012 with 9.5. Pagano also worked closely with Shawne Merriman, who led the NFL in sacks in 2006, was selected to play in three Pro Bowls and won the NFL's Defensive Rookie of the Year Award in 2005.

Pagano was born and raised in Boulder, Colo. An all-state linebacker at Fairview High School, he played at Mesa State from 1985-88, earning a degree in business marketing. His older brother, Chuck, is the head coach of the Indianapolis Colts.

Both John and Chuck played for their father, Sam, who spent 26 years as the head coach at Fairview High. Sam also coached internationally in Taiwan, Germany, France and Italy.

Pagano and his wife, Kimberly, have two sons, Jagger and Brody.

KEVIN SPENCER

Special Teams Coordinator
23rd NFL Season
1st season with Chargers

In January, the Chargers hired Spencer, a long-time NFL special teams coach to man the same post in San Diego.

NFL Special Teams Coach of the Year in 2003 as chosen by the league's special teams coaches, Spencer has spent the last 15 seasons coaching NFL special teams, including stops in Indianapolis (1998-01), Pittsburgh (2002-06) and Arizona (2007-12). He won a Super Bowl championship with the Steelers after the 2005 season (Super Bowl XL) and an NFC Championship with Cardinals in 2008. In Indianapolis, rookie Terrence Wilkins returned two punts and a kickoff for touchdowns while working under Spencer, including one of each in 1999 that led to Wilkins' selection to a number of NFL All-Rookie teams. In Pittsburgh, Spencer worked with Antwaan Randle-El, who set a team record with four punt returns for touchdowns during their five seasons together. And in Arizona, Spencer worked with Patrick Peterson, who tied the NFL record with four punt return touchdowns during his rookie season, becoming only the fourth player in league history with four punt return scores in a season. Peterson also had four punt returns of 80-plus yards, the first player in NFL history to do so, and his 99-yard punt return for a touchdown in overtime during a game against the St. Louis Rams was the second-longest punt return in NFL history. Return specialist LaRod Stephens-Howling also had outstanding success under Spencer. In 2010, Stephens-Howling led the NFL with 1,542 kickoff return yards and scored on returns of 102 and 96 yards.

A native of Queens, New York, Spencer played football and lacrosse at Springfield (Mass.) College. He earned his bachelor's degree from Springfield and a Master's from Cortland State in 1976. He entered the coaching field as a graduate assistant at Cortland State in 1975 and spent the next 16 seasons on the college and high school levels, including five years as the head coach at Wesleyan (Conn.) University. Spencer began his NFL coaching career with the Cleveland Browns in 1991 and spent time with the Browns (1991-94) and Oakland Raiders (1995-97) before joining the Indianapolis Colts in '98.

Spencer and his wife, Rosemarie, have two sons, Timothy and Jack.

JOE BARRY

Linebackers
12th NFL Season
2nd season with Chargers

A longtime NFL linebackers coach and former defensive coordinator for the Detroit Lions, Barry will coach his second season with the Chargers in 2013.

In Barry's first season, the Chargers racked up 38 sacks, 21 of which were tallied by the team's linebackers, including a team-leading 9.5 by Shaun Phillips. The linebackers also picked off four of the team's 14 passes in 2012, two of which were returned for touchdowns by Demorrio Williams, who became the first Bolts linebacker since 1979 to return two picks for scores in the same season. Inside linebackers Takeo Spikes and Donald Butler ranked second and third on the team in tackles with 99 and 94, respectively.

A native of Boulder, Colo., Barry attended Fairview High School, the same high school as Chargers defensive coordinator John Pagano. He played at Fairview for Pagano's father, Sam, who was the head coach. Barry then spent the 1989-90 seasons at the University of Michigan before transferring to the University of Southern California, where he earned varsity letters in 1992 and '93. He graduated from USC in 1994 with a degree in communications.

Barry morphed into coaching the following year, landing a graduate assistant's job at USC in 1995. He spent five seasons coaching collegiately before landing his first NFL position as a quality control coach with the San Francisco 49ers in 2000. A year later, he was named linebackers coach for the Tampa Bay Buccaneers and in 2002, he won a Super Bowl ring with the Bucs as they defeated the Oakland Raiders, 48-21, in Super Bowl XXXVII in San Diego. The title capped off a season in which the Buccaneers led the NFL in total and scoring defense, and in which linebacker Derrick Brooks was named NFL Defensive Player of the Year.

Barry and his wife, Chris, have two daughters, Camryn and Lauren, and twin sons, Nick and Sam.

JOE D'ALESSANDRIS

Offensive Line
6th NFL Season
1st season with Chargers

In January, the Chargers gained 36 years of coaching experience when they selected D'Alessandris to coach the offensive line.

A former collegiate guard from Western Carolina, D'Alessandris spent the last 36 years as a coach in the NFL, college, the Canadian Football League and the World League. This will mark his 35th year in 37 years of coaching that he will have worked with the offensive line.

D'Alessandris joins the Chargers from Buffalo where he tutored the Bills' offensive line from 2010-12, including a 2011 season in which the Bills led the league in fewest sacks allowed (23). The Bills started eight different offensive line combinations in '11 and the 23 sacks allowed was the third-fewest in team history during a 16-game season. The play of the offensive line paid large dividends in the Bills' running game as they ranked fifth in the NFL in average yards per carry in 2011 and fourth in 2012.

D'Alessandris' first NFL job came in Kansas City (2008-09) when he served as the Chiefs' assistant offensive line coach. Under his watch in 2009, guard Brian Waters was voted to his first-career Pro Bowl and Jamaal Charles recorded his first-career 1,000 yard season.

A native of Aliquippa, Pa., D'Alessandris earned four letters and started three years at guard for Western Carolina. Team MVP and a team captain as a senior, he graduated in 1977 and earned a master's degree two years later, both degrees from Western Carolina. It is also where he began his coaching career as a graduate assistant during the 1977 and '78 seasons. It led to his first full-time job as the offensive line coach at Livingston University in 1979. He then spent the next 29 years between Livingston, Memphis, Tennessee-Chattanooga, Ottawa of the Canadian Football League, Birmingham of the World League, Samford, Texas A&M, Memphis of the Canadian Football League, the University of Pittsburgh, Duke and Georgia Tech.

In 2010, he was inducted into the Beaver County (Pa.) Sports Hall of Fame and the Center High School Hall of Fame.

D'Alessandris and his wife, Toni, have three children, Anna, who's married to Allen Thomas, Kelly and Emily.

FRED GRAVES

Wide Receivers
12th NFL Season
1st season with Chargers

A former halfback and split end at the University of Utah, the Chargers hired Graves to coach wide receivers in January.

Graves has spent the last 37 years coaching college and professionally, including 36 years coaching wide receivers. At his most recent stop in Carolina (2011-12), Steve Smith topped 1,000 yards both seasons under Graves, his first 1,000-yard campaigns since 2008. A five-time Pro Bowl selection, including 2011, Smith caught 152 passes for 2,568 yards and 11 touchdowns in two seasons while working under Graves.

A native of Los Angeles, Graves coached a total of 26 years on the collegiate level, including 19 years (1982-00) as the wide receivers coach at his alma mater, the University of Utah. He moved on to the NFL in 2001 when the Buffalo Bills tabbed him to coach their receivers. Eric Moulds and Peerless Price both delivered 1,000-yard seasons for the Bills under Graves and Moulds put together the first 100-reception season in team history. In 2002, Moulds, Price and rookie Josh Reed combined to catch 231 passes for 3,053 yards and 21 scores for the Bills.

After three seasons in Buffalo (2001-03), Graves spent a year in Cleveland (2004) and one in Detroit (2005). Graves did not coach in 2006, but returned to the NFL in '07 with the Tennessee Titans, spending four seasons coaching a group that included Justin Gage, Kenny Britt and Nate Washington.

Graves played at Utah from 1969-71 and led the Utes with 45 catches as a senior. He graduated with a degree in business and entered the coaching ranks in 1975 as the tight ends and wide receivers coach at Northeast Missouri State. He split time between NE Missouri State, Western Illinois and New Mexico State before starting his 19-year stretch at Utah.

Graves and his wife, Michele, have a daughter Amber; son Marcus, and two grandchildren, Tenille and Isaiah.

DON JOHNSON

Defensive Line
9th NFL Season
5th season with Chargers

Johnson returns to the Chargers for his fifth season to tutor a young defensive line that ranked sixth in the NFL against the run in 2012.

Two players who stood out from the '12 squad were defensive ends Corey Liuget and Kendall Reyes. Reyes was the team's second-round pick in '12 and he finished the year third on the team with 5.5 sacks, while Liuget, the top pick in the 2011 draft, finished the year second on the squad with seven sacks. Reyes paced the defensive line in 2012 with 19 quarterback pressures and 15 quarterback hits, while Liuget ended the year as the defensive line's leader in sacks, tackles (61), tackles for loss (15) and passes defensed (9).

In 2010, Johnson helped the Chargers lead the NFL in total defense. The Bolts ranked second in the league in sacks and fourth in run defense. Defensive tackle Antonio Garay enjoyed a breakout season, earning Pro Bowl alternate recognition after setting career highs and leading the defensive line in tackles, sacks, tackles for loss and quarterback hits.

Johnson came to San Diego from Chicago, where he was a mentor to two-time Pro Bowl defensive tackle Tommie Harris and helped the Bears to the 2006 NFC title a berth in Super Bowl XLI.

Johnson began his quest to become an NFL coach when he participated in the NFL's Minority Internship Coaching Program with the San Francisco 49ers in 1997 and '98.

A native of Newark, N.J., Johnson played linebacker at Butler Community College and Jersey City State in the mid-1970s. He earned a tryout with the New York Jets and later played for the USFL's New Jersey Generals.

Johnson has spent 26 years as a high school and college basketball official, including eight at the NCAA Division I level. He was the president of the Orange County (Calif.) Basketball Officials Association for four years and the California Basketball Officials Association for two.

Johnson and his wife, Deborah, have two daughters, Denise and Leanna, and a son, Don, Jr. Their son, Duane, died in an automobile accident in 2002.

Johnston joined the Chargers in 2013 from Cleveland, where he spent the last three seasons heading up the Browns' strength and conditioning program. The 1997 Strength and Conditioning Coach of the Year by the Professional Football Strength and Conditioning Coaches Society and a 2005 inductee into the Strength and Conditioning Hall of Fame in York, Pa., Johnston began his NFL career with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers (1987-91). In 1999, Johnston followed former Packers Head Coach Mike Holmgren to Seattle, where he spent five seasons (1999-03) and worked with a team that made two playoff appearances. Johnston worked two more years as the strength and conditioning coach at the University of Alabama (2004-05) before leaving football to work in the non-profit and business sectors. In 2010, he returned to the NFL with the Browns.

A native of Mexia, Texas, Johnston graduated from Stephen F. Austin University and earned a master's in physical education from Alabama in 1984. He began coaching high school football in Teague, Texas in 1978 and continued to coach in high school and college, including a four-year stint at Alabama from 1983-86, until he joined the Buccaneers in 1987.

JASON MICHAEL

Tight Ends
8th NFL Season
3rd season with Chargers

A former national champion quarterback at Western Kentucky, Michael has demonstrated great rapport with future Hall of Fame tight end Antonio Gates, who became the Chargers' all-time leader in receptions and touchdown catches during Michael's first two seasons in San Diego. Gates had another solid season in 2012, tying for the team lead with seven touchdown catches, while Michael helped mold Ladarius Green, whom the Chargers drafted in the fourth round in '12.

Michael began his coaching career as a graduate assistant at the University of Tennessee where he worked with the Volunteers' defense (secondary) and special teams. He made NFL inroads as a quality control coach with the Oakland Raiders in 2005, and in 2006 he served as the quarterbacks coach and quality control with the New York Jets when Chad Pennington won NFL Comeback Player of the Year honors. Michael has since coached quarterbacks and tight ends. In 2007, while handling tight ends for the Jets, Chris Baker was the team's third-leading receiver. In 2010 when he coached quarterbacks for the San Francisco 49ers, a trio of signal callers combined to pass for more than 3,600 yards and 19 touchdowns. And during his first year with the Chargers, Antonio Gates led the team with 64 catches.

Michael was born in Portsmouth, Ohio and graduated from Lawrence County High School in Louisa, Kentucky. He quarterbacked the Hilltoppers to the 2002 NCAA I-AA championship with a 34-14 win over McNeese State, and was named the school's Male Athlete of the Year in 2003. Michael graduated from WKU with a degree in civil engineering technology while being named a I-AA Athletic Directors Academic All-Star and a second-team Verizon Academic All-District IV honoree.

RON MILUS

Secondary
14th NFL Season
1st season with Chargers

In January 2013, the Chargers hired former Denver secondary coach Ron Milus to coach their secondary.

Milus spent the last two seasons (2011-12) in Denver. In 2012, the Broncos had one of the NFL's top defensive units and they led the league in allowing the fewest yards per pass play (6.4). Denver ranked second in the NFL in total defense and third against the pass en route to winning the AFC West with a 13-3 record and earning the top seed in the AFC playoffs. Cornerback Chris Harris returned two of his three interceptions for touchdowns and veteran corner Champ Bailey was selected to the Pro Bowl for the 12th time in his career.

Milus' most recent stint with the Broncos was the second of his career. In 2000, he broke into the NFL coaching ranks as the defensive backs coach for the Broncos. A cornerback and return specialist at the University of Washington in the mid-1980s, Milus started coaching at Lincoln High School in his hometown of Tacoma, Washington in 1988. He spent three years coaching defensive backs at Lincoln, earned a graduate assistant's position working with the outside linebackers at Washington in 1991 and then spent the 1992-98 seasons as the defensive backs coach for the Huskies, who made two Rose Bowl appearances during his tenure. The Huskies led the nation with 22 interceptions in 1993 and they led the Pac-10 with 16 in 1995. In 1999, Milus spent a year coaching defensive backs at Texas A&M before joining the Broncos a year later.

Milus' first stint in Denver lasted three years (2000-02) and he subsequently coached defensive backs in Arizona (2003), the New York Giants (2004-05), St. Louis (2006-08) and Carolina (2009-10) before returning to Denver in 2011. Among the highlights from his first stop in Denver, the secondary accounted for 21 interceptions in 2000, its highest total since 1987. In 2001, cornerback Deltha O'Neal earned Pro Bowl honors after tying for third in the NFL with nine interceptions, most on the team and third-most in Broncos history.

Milus and his wife, Sandra, have two sons: Ryan and Bobby. Ryan runs track at Arizona State and Bobby is a sophomore cornerback at Mesa (Az.) Junior College.

FRANK REICH

Quarterbacks
22nd NFL Season
1st season with Chargers

A former NFL quarterback Reich is in his first year as the Chargers' quarterbacks coach.

He spent the previous seven seasons coaching with the Indianapolis Colts and Arizona Cardinals after earning a coaching internship with the Colts in 2006. After two seasons (2006-07) as an intern, the Colts promoted him to offensive assistant in '08, working with their wide receivers and quarterbacks. Reich worked with a talented cast that included quarterback Peyton Manning and wide receivers Reggie Wayne and Pierre Garcon. He spent the 2012 season as the wide receivers coach for the Arizona Cardinals where he worked with six-time Pro Bowl pass-catcher Larry Fitzgerald.

A third-round pick of the Buffalo Bills in 1985, Reich played 14 NFL seasons, including 10 with Buffalo (1985-94), one with Carolina (1995), one with the New York Jets (1996), and two with Detroit (1997-98). He retired in 1998.

Reich was involved in two of the greatest comeback victories in football history, one as a collegian and the other as a pro. During his senior season at the University of Maryland in 1984, Reich led the Terrapins to a 42-40 win over the University of Miami in a game that his squad trailed 31-0. At the time, it was the largest deficit ever overcome in a college game. Nine seasons later as the backup quarterback for the Buffalo Bills (1992), Reich started for an injured Jim Kelly in an AFC Wild Card Playoff game against Houston and rallied the Bills from a 35-3 deficit in the third quarter to a 41-38 win over the Oilers. To this day, it is still the greatest comeback in NFL history.

A native of Freeport, N.Y., Reich grew up in Lebanon, Pa., where his father was a high school coach. His younger brother, Joe, is currently the head coach at Wingate (N.C.) University.

Reich and his wife, Linda, have three children.

OLLIE WILSON

Running Backs
23rd NFL Season
11th season with Chargers

Embarking on his 23rd season of coaching running backs in the National Football League, Wilson has helped develop a deep stable of top-flight ballcarriers. His most recent protégé is Ryan Mathews, the team's leading rusher each of the past two seasons. Injuries slowed Mathews in 2012, but he rushed for a team-leading and career-high 1,091 yards under Wilson in 2011. Mathews has also become an adept pass-catcher, pulling in 89 catches over the last two seasons.

Since 2008, the Chargers have scored 68 touchdowns on the ground while averaging more than 1,650 yards per season, including a high of 1,864 yards in 2011.

A native of Worcester, Mass., Wilson played football, basketball, baseball and ran track at Doherty High School. He attended Springfield College and was an honorable mention All-America wide receiver. He earned bachelor's and master's degrees in physical education and made inroads to the NFL by participating in the league's Minority Coaching Internship Program with both the Houston Oilers and Falcons.

Wilson began his NFL coaching career with the Falcons in 1991. In six seasons (1991-96), Wilson coached three 1,000-yard rushers, including the late Craig "Ironhead" Heyward, a Pro Bowl pick in 1995. During his second stretch in Atlanta, the Falcons rushed for an NFL-best 13,994 yards and set several team rushing records, including single-season rushing yards (2,939 in 2006) and touchdowns (23 in 2002).

Wilson is married to Nadine.

CRAIG AUKERMAN

Assistant Special Teams
4th NFL Season

Aukerman joins the Chargers in 2013 after spending two seasons with the Jacksonville Jaguars, including 2012 season as their assistant special teams coach.

The Jaguars had a star in rookie punter Bryan Anger, who led all NFL rookies and ranked sixth in the NFL with a 47.8-yard punting average and a 40.8-yard gross average that was the league's seventh-highest. Aukerman spent the 2011 season as a defensive staff assistant for the Jaguars and he worked primarily with the team's linebackers. Jacksonville ranked sixth in the NFL in total defense in '11 and was led by linebacker Paul Posluszny, who led the Jags with a career-high 192 tackles, including nine for loss, and Daryl Smith, who was second on the team with 166 stops, including a franchise-record 15 for loss.

A native of McComb, Ohio, Aukerman was a two-time NAIA All-America at the University of Findlay (Ohio) where he lined up at defensive back and wide receiver, while also contributing on special teams during a career that spanned the 1995-98 seasons. He graduated in 1999 with a degree in elementary education and a year later began coaching as the school's wide receivers coach.

Aukerman spent the next 10 seasons coaching collegiately before making a leap to the NFL in 2010 when he was hired as a defensive assistant with the Denver Broncos. He spent one year with the Broncos where he worked on the same staff as Chargers Head Coach Mike McCoy.

Aukerman and his wife, Summer, have two sons, Cayden and Bryce.

84 DANARIO ALEXANDER

Wide Receiver
6-5, 217
4th NFL Season
2nd with Chargers

Free Agent - '12
Missouri
Marlin HS
Marlin, Tex.

One of the feel-good stories to come out of San Diego in 2012 was the arrival of wide receiver Danario Alexander. Cast aside by his former team after a couple of injury shortened seasons, the Chargers took a chance on the lanky pass-catcher and he rewarded them with one of the best half-seasons in recent memory.

Alexander played in 10 games for the Chargers and quickly became one of Philip Rivers' favorite targets. He teamed with Malcom Floyd to give the Bolts a pair of six-foot-five receivers who could stretch the field. Alexander caught 37 passes for 658 yards and seven touchdowns, which tied for most on the team and were the third-most in the NFL by any player after Nov. 1.

Alexander grew up in Marlin, Texas where he idolized the Dallas Cowboys and their talented trio of Troy Aikman, Emmitt Smith and Michael Irvin. He paid particular close attention to Irvin and NFL great Randy Moss and patterned his game after them.

At Marlin High School, Alexander was a three-sport standout in football, baseball and track & field. He entered high school as a 5-9, 105 pound freshman and blossomed into a 6-5, 215 pounder by his senior year.

An outstanding senior year at Marlin High led Alexander to the University of Missouri, where he had an up and down career. Alexander endured three surgeries to his left knee before exploding as a senior and posting one of the best seasons in NCAA Football Bowl Subdivision (formerly Division I-A) history. He finished his senior campaign in 2009 with 113 catches for an NCAA-leading 1,781 yards and 14 touchdowns. His yardage total was ninth-most all-time at the FBS level, while his receptions tied for 18th and his yards per game average ranked 20th.

Despite an outstanding senior season, the NFL Draft came and went without Alexander hearing his name called, partly due to a knee injury he suffered at the Senior Bowl and a subsequent fourth operation on his left knee. He ended up signing late as an undrafted free agent with the in-state St. Louis Rams but was way behind in his NFL development. Alexander started the season on the Rams' practice squad, but he worked hard and earned a promotion to the active roster in mid-October. He even was given the nickname "DX Missile." Coincidentally, his first NFL game came on Oct. 17, 2010 against the Chargers and Alexander caught a 38-yard touchdown pass in the game to help lead the Rams to a 20-17 victory.

Alexander spent two injury-shortened years with the Rams and when he suffered a hamstring injury in 2012, the team opted to part ways with the Texas native.

Alexander spent the next several months recovering and had a few NFL tryouts, including one with the Chargers in mid-October. After the tryout, he found himself at the airport on his way back to St. Louis when his agent called and told Alexander that the Chargers wanted to sign him. He put pen to paper on Oct. 22 and the rest of the season was one of storybook proportion.

Alexander studied sociology at Missouri. After he is done playing football, he wants to return to school for a graduate degree and possibly attend medical school to study orthopedics.

One of Alexander's closest friends is Philadelphia Eagles wide receiver and former Missouri teammate, Jeremy Maclin. For the last two years, Alexander has hosted a football camp in his hometown of Marlin, Tex. Maclin and a number of NFL stars, including Chargers teammates Eddie Royal and Mike Willie, lent their expertise at his 2013 camp in June.

Away from football, Alexander enjoys spending time with his family and playing golf.

64 COLIN BAXTER

Center

2nd NFL Season
3rd with Chargers

Free Agent - '12
Arizona
Peninsula HS
Rolling Hills, Calif.

Baxter gives the Chargers an experienced interior lineman who can play both center and guard as well as contributing on special teams.

The 6-3, 310-pounder has long been known as a tough, hard-nosed competitor. As a child, he was thrown out of a little league baseball game for mowing over a catcher with a shoulder-first slide into home. In high school, he was a force both on the football field and the wrestling mat, where he posted a 37-7 record as a senior. And at Arizona, Baxter started 49-straight games, playing the last half of his senior season with a torn meniscus in his right knee. Only surgery, which would prepare him for the NFL, prevented him from playing in his final collegiate game, the 2010 Alamo Bowl.

Baxter likes classic cars. In high school, he drove a 1964 Ford Galaxie that he and his grandfather worked on while Baxter was a teen.

97 BRONT BIRD

Inside Linebacker
6-4, 250
2nd NFL Season
3rd with Chargers

Free Agent - '12
Texas Tech
Permian HS
Odessa, Tex.

One of the Chargers' toughest cuts at the end of training camp in 2012 was the decision to waive Bird. The former Texas Tech Red Raider and graduate of the famed Permian High School in Odessa, Texas, had an outstanding camp and preseason, but he ultimately became a victim of the numbers game.

Unsure of his NFL future, Bird moved to Williston, North Dakota and entered the private sector, overseeing a wastewater treatment business that he started with several current and former teammates. He also spent time in his native Texas, where he is part-owner of the Right Cross Boxing Gym.

Then in late November when injuries began to deplete the team's linebacking corps, Bird received a call from the Chargers and within a day he was back in San Diego on the practice field. Bird played in the Chargers' final five games and he contributed with a couple of big performances in two late-season wins. His first career interception off Pittsburgh's Ben Roethlisberger helped seal a Dec. 9 win that was the Chargers' first ever regular-season win in the Steel City, and his career-high seven-tackle effort against Oakland helped the Bolts close out the 2012 season with a 24-21 win over their arch rivals.

TRANSACTION HISTORY: Signed three-year contract, July 28, 2011...waived Sept. 3...re-signed to practice squad Sept. 5...signed to active roster Oct. 31...waived Aug. 31, 2012...re-signed to active roster, Nov. 28.

23 RONNIE BROWN

Running Back
6-0, 223
9th NFL Season
2nd with Chargers

UFA (Philadelphia) - '12
Auburn
Cartersville HS
Cartersville, Ga.

Brown returned to the Chargers in March, agreeing to a new one-year contract. The ninth-year pro played in 14 games for the Bolts in 2012 and he was utilized primarily for his strength as a third-down back, tying for second on the team with 49 receptions, good for 371 yards.

In 2005, Miami selected Brown with the second overall pick in the NFL Draft. He played six seasons in Miami, rushing for 4,815 yards and 36 touchdowns, while catching 184 passes for 1,491 yards and a pair of scores. He still ranks third on the Dolphins' all-time list for rushing yards and touchdowns, and is tied with Hall of Fame running back Larry Csonka for the second-most 100-yard rushing games in team history. From 2005-07, Brown averaged better than 4.0 yards per carry for the Dolphins, becoming the team's first back to do so for three-straight seasons since 1983-85. He posted his only 1,000-yard season in 2006, rushing for 1,008 yards, and he was selected for the Pro Bowl in 2008 after scoring a career-high 10 touchdowns.

A native of Cartersville, Ga., Brown was the state's 2A Player of the Year in football as a senior at Cartersville High. He also was a stellar baseball player who was drafted by Major League Baseball's Seattle Mariners in the 50th round of the 2000 draft. Brown bypassed the major leagues to attend Auburn where he became a two-time All-SEC pick.

In Sept. 2010, Brown started the Ronnie Brown Project and a campaign entitled "23 Ways to Stop Youth Violence." It was a project with one main goal: to stop violence in schools. His target was middle and high school students in Miami-Dade and Broward Counties in Florida, and Brown worked closely with the Jason Taylor Foundation, Teen Truth Live and the Miami-Dade Violence Intervention Project to make the program a success.

Brown was a communications major at Auburn. During his junior year, he interned at the Auburn Network, editing and producing highlight films. Brown and his wife, Taylor, his college sweetheart, still attend Auburn football games when the schedule permits.

In March, the couple celebrated the birth of their first child, son Dillon Rhys.

Brown's hobbies include traveling, bowling and movies.

86 VINCENT BROWN

Wide Receiver
5-11, 190
3rd NFL Season
3rd with Chargers

Draft 3A- '11
San Diego State
Rancho Cucamonga HS
Rancho Cucamonga, Calif.

Vincent Brown was off to a lightning-fast start in 2012 when in an instant, his season suddenly came to an end.

It happened that fast.

Brown opened the '12 preseason with a big effort against Green Bay, leading all receivers with four catches for 81 yards. Then just nine days later in the third quarter of the team's second preseason game against Dallas, Brown caught an 18-yard touchdown pass to give the Bolts a 10-7 lead, but while being tackled from behind after making the catch, Brown suffered a broken left ankle. Initially, there was hope of a return in 2012 but the injury took longer than expected to heal and Brown was lost for the season. His speed and athleticism were sorely missed.

Brown worked hard to rehabilitate his ankle and actually was able to return to practice late in the '12 season. With those reps and a full offseason under his belt, he is excited about the prospects of returning to the level that prompted the Chargers to select the former San Diego State Aztec in the third round in the 2011 NFL Draft.

As a rookie, Brown averaged an impressive 17.3 yards per catch, despite being thrown right into the action as a result of the NFL Lockout. He finished his rookie season with 19 catches for 329 yards and the Chargers were looking forward to big things in 2012.

When the Chargers drafted Brown, he became the 14th former Aztec drafted by the team, and the first since quarterback Jesse Freitas in 1974. A two-time All-Mountain West Conference pick, Brown left school as the third all-time leading receiver in San Diego State history with 209 catches and 3,110 yards.

Brown studied philosophy at San Diego State and became the first member of his family to graduate from college when he earned his degree in May 2012. He completed his coursework at the conclusion of his rookie season with the Chargers and while doing so, co-authored an article that appeared in the Journal of the Philosophy of Sport in September 2012.

So excited were San Diegans that Brown was selected by his hometown team that in Sept. 2011, he and teammate Shareece Wright were invited to throw out the first pitch before a Padres game at Petco Park.

Nicknamed V.J., Brown enjoys cooking, playing cards and dominoes, listening to music and playing the drums. He is a very talented drummer who learned to play when he was six years old.

3 DEON BUTLER

Wide Receiver
5-10, 182
4th NFL Season
1st with Chargers

Free Agent - '13
Penn State
Hylton HS
Woodbridge, Va.

The Chargers added speed to the squad in April when they signed former Seattle Seahawk Deon Butler.

A native of Woodbridge, Va., Butler enrolled at Penn State as a walk-on cornerback and left the State College, Pa. campus as the Nittany Lions' all-time leading receiver. He made an immediate impact, setting a freshman record with nine touchdown catches. The Seahawks drafted him in the third-round in 2009, trading away three picks to move up in the draft to make that selection, and Butler played in all 16 games as a rookie. A year later, he set career highs with 36 catches, 385 yards and four touchdowns, but he suffered a broken leg after catching a two-yard touchdown pass late in a December game against NFC West rival San Francisco. That injury ended up costing Butler the remainder of the 2010 season and most of the 2011 season while he recovered. Butler was released at the end of training camp in 2012, but the Seahawks re-signed him late in the season as injuries depleted their wide receivers corps and Butler was on the roster when Seattle traveled to Washington to face his hometown team, the Redskins, in the 2012 NFC Wild Card Playoffs. Even though Butler was inactive for the game, it was special to be at FedEx Field for a playoff game against the team he grew up rooting for.

Butler, whose given name is Vincent Deon, was a crime, law and justice major at Penn State where he took the first steps toward a career in forensic science. He's currently enrolled in PSU's graduate program for cyber security, which Butler hopes will one day land him a job with the Department of Homeland Security.

Though Butler's birth name is Vincent, he began going by Deon after a sportswriter covering him in high school called him "Neon Deon," a nod toward former NFL All-Pro cornerback Deion Sanders. Deon, however, was not the only talented athlete in the Butler family. His brother, Lee, was a guard for the basketball team at the University of Miami (Fla.) during the 2004-05 and 2005-06 seasons.

He enjoys mystery novels, playing basketball and riding jet skis.

56 DONALD BUTLER

Inside Linebacker
6-1, 242
4th NFL Season
4th with Chargers

Draft 3 – '10
Washington
Del Campo HS
Fair Oaks, Calif.

Donald Butler has quickly evolved into one of San Diego's top defensive players. He was well on his way to a second-consecutive 100-tackle season in 2012 when his year was cut short by a groin injury, one that resulted in his missing four games late in the year. Despite the injury, Butler still accumulated 94 tackles, third among Chargers defenders.

Butler was one of the team's top feel-good stories in 2011. A former third-round pick from 2010 whom the Chargers traded up 12 spots to select, the Bolts were looking for big things from the former Washington Husky as a rookie. But one afternoon during an early training camp practice, Butler tore his left Achilles tendon during a pass rush drill and his rookie season ended before it began.

Butler spent all of 2010 rehabilitating and when 2011 arrived, the door of opportunity swung wide open. Butler paid close attention and took copious notes from veteran inside linebacker Takeo Spikes, who had signed as a free agent that July. The two ended up starting side-by-side and Butler's repaired Achilles held up as he and Spikes ranked 1-2 on the team in tackles with 119 and 102, respectively. By the time the '11 season concluded, Butler had started all 16 games and he was the only Chargers defender to hang a number in every statistical defensive category.

Butler studied construction management at Washington. His mom, Janet Rice, is a single parent who has worked for the Oakland (Calif.) Housing Authority for a number of years. Her career path is what spurred an interest in Donald in the business side of construction. For two years while he was in college, he interned with the Walsh Construction Co. in Tacoma, Wash.

66 JEROMEY CLARY

Guard-Tackle
6-6, 320
7th NFL Season
8th with Chargers

Draft 6A - '06
Kansas State
Mansfield HS
Mansfield, Tex.

The second-longest tenured player on the Chargers' offensive line, Jeromey Clary switched from tackle to guard in 2013 and he has excelled.

Clary started 14 games in 2012 and 46 of the last 48 games at right tackle, but with the arrival of top draft choice D.J. Fluker, the coaches have asked Clary to slide over to guard and serve as a mentor for the rookie right tackle.

Clary was the Chargers' winner of the Ed Block Courage Award in 2010 after recovering from a serious ankle injury in 2009 that required surgery. He came back from the injury and played every snap during the 2010 and '11 seasons and in July 2011, the Chargers rewarded him with a new four-year contract.

Clary became a starter late in the 2007 season. A reserve for most of the year, the coaches inserted him into the starting lineup at right tackle in early December to give the team's struggling running game a spark. Over the final five games, the Chargers rushed for 880 yards, scored eight touchdowns and went 5-0. Clary's ascencion into the starting lineup helped the Bolts capture the AFC West title en route to a berth in the AFC Championship Game.

Clary has now spent the better part of the last five full seasons in the Chargers' starting-11. During that time, the Bolts have averaged 1,657 rushing yards per season and scored 68 rushing touchdowns. Furthermore, Clary and his mates along the offensive line have given Philip Rivers time to pass for more than 3,500 yards and 25 touchdowns in each of those five seasons.

Clary and his wife, Breanna, have two sons, Cannon and JJ.

Clary likes country music. His favorite artist is The Zac Brown Band. His hobbies include golf and spending time with his family at San Diego's beaches and amusement parks.

22 DEREK COX

Cornerback
6-1, 195
5th NFL Season
1st with Chargers

UFA (Jacksonville) – '13
William & Mary
Rose HS
Greenville, N.C.

The Chargers made a key signing during the early stages of March's free agency period with the addition of former Jacksonville Jaguars cornerback Derek Cox to a four-year deal. A third-round pick of the Jaguars in 2009, Cox racked up a team-leading 12 interceptions over the last four seasons (2009-12), more than double the total of the Jaguars' next-closest defender.

A native of Greenville, N.C., Cox was a state champion football and baseball player at Rose High School. At William & Mary, he became a two-time team captain and a two-time All-Colonial Athletic Association defender. With his selection by the Jaguars in the third round of the NFL Draft, Cox became the second-highest drafted player in William & Mary history. He's the first former Tribesman to play for the Chargers since kicker Steve Christie (2001-03).

As a rookie, Cox didn't wait long to make an impression on Jaguars fans. On the first possession of his first-career game in the 2009 season opener, Cox intercepted then-Indianapolis quarterback Peyton Manning in the end zone, and on the second possession of the game, he recovered a fumble by running back Joseph Addai. Cox was only the second Jacksonville rookie to open the season as the team's starting cornerback and he started all 16 games, leading the team with four picks. As a second-year player in 2010, Cox was limited to 13 games and 11 starts, but again led the squad with four interceptions. He appeared in just six games in 2011, but returned to start 12 of 12 games played in 2012 and once again led the Jaguars with four interceptions.

Cox has a fraternal twin sister, Shannon, a brother, Travis, who played football at East Carolina and two other siblings, sister, Alisha, and oldest brother, Lyman. Travis' teammate at ECU was former Jaguars quarterback David Garrard, who was a teammate of Derek's in Jacksonville. Cox's parents have been married for 44 years and still reside in Greenville. His mom, Claudette, is a retired school teacher, and his father, Lyman, still runs his own construction and renovations business.

In Jacksonville, Cox was one of the Jaguars' most-active players in the community. A member of the Ebony Expression Gospel Choir, he recorded a public service announcement for the Jacksonville Children's Chorus to encourage kids to get involved in chorus, and he served as a spokesperson for the Jacksonville Food Bank. Cox also supported causes and events that dealt with homelessness, prostate cancer awareness, and the prevention of teen pregnancy and HIV/AIDS. Earlier this year, he was invited to speak about teamwork and leadership at the FBI's office in Jacksonville as part of Black History Month.

Cox and the former Julie Dewberry were married this in July in Charlottesville, Virginia. They met in college. Dewberry graduated from the George Mason University School of Law while Cox was beginning his NFL career with the Jaguars. They both enjoy music and Dewberry taught Cox to play the piano. The couple owns two dogs, a Yorkshire Terrier named Rambo and a Rottweiler puppy named George.

Cox, who collects and enjoys reading self-help and self-improvement books, envisions a career in business after his NFL playing days come to an end. In February 2013, he participated in the NFL's Business Management and Entrepreneurial Program at the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania.

Late last season the Chargers signed Dillard to their practice squad and the former fourth-round pick of the New York Giants will have a chance to showcase his skills as he competes for a roster spot in 2012.

Dillard, whose brother, Gabe Lynn, is a starting cornerback at the University of Oklahoma, played for the Sooners' longtime rival, the University of Nebraska where he was a second-team all-conference pick as a senior in 2009. He finished that '09 season with a career-high 83 tackles, second on the team and just two behind Ndamukong Suh, who went on to become the second overall pick in the 2010 NFL Draft by the Detroit Lions.

77 KING DUNLAP

Tackle
6-9, 330
6th NFL Season
1st with Chargers

UFA (Philadelphia) - '13
Auburn
Brentwood Academy
Brentwood, Tenn.

In March, the Chargers landed one of the NFL's biggest free agents, literally, when they signed 6-9, 330-pound tackle, King Dunlap, to a two-year contract.

The former Philadelphia Eagle spent the majority of his first five seasons as a reserve before moving into the starting lineup in 2012, opening 12 games for the Eagles.

Dunlap's father, King Dunlap IV, is a former defensive tackle who played collegiately at Tennessee State before the Baltimore Colts picked him in the fifth round of the 1969 NFL Draft. His mother, Robin, is a former track star who also competed at Tennessee State, while his younger sister, Victoria, is a starting forward for the WNBA's Seattle Storm. Victoria also played collegiately at Kentucky where she was an All-America and the SEC Player of the Year who also competed in the high jump for the Wildcats' track and field team.

Dunlap, who loves roller coasters, finds the only downside to being 6-9 is that he's too tall to ride most of them. He hit his big growth spurt in the eighth grade, going from 5-11 to 6-5. He played middle linebacker as a youth before shifting to the defensive line and ultimately to the offensive line.

Dunlap, whose full name, King David Dunlap V, was derived from the Bible's King David, has two sons, King VI and Jaylen, and a daughter, Kayla. Lifelong friend and former University of Alabama linebacker, Darren Mustin, is the godfather to son, King Dunlap VI.

Draft 1 – '09
Northern Illinois
Marmion Military Academy
Aurora, Ill.

The Chargers' first-round pick from the 2009 NFL Draft is looking toward taking another step forward in his pro career.

English played in 14 games last season, the most he's appeared in since his rookie year. He played in all 16 games with two starts in 2009, but he was limited to just 13 games and two starts during the 2010-11 seasons while struggling to recover from a broken foot.

As a collegian at Northern Illinois, English was a two-time winner of the Vern Smith Leadership Award as the top player in the Mid-American Conference. He became only the second defensive player in MAC history to win the award once, and more impressively, he became only the fourth player ever to win it twice. English left Northern Illinois as the school's all-time leader in sacks (31.5) and tackles for loss (63). An honor roll student, he was also one of only 30 students nationwide to be nominated to receive the Lowe's Senior CLASS Award for excellence in Classroom, Character, Community and Competition.

English has battled asthma since early childhood. As an adult, it has steered him toward a partnership with the American Lung Association and his LEAD (Leading Education to Athletes for their Dreams) Foundation, which he created with the help of his mother, Susan. English has hosted a number of events and programs, including a benefit concert and all-star gala in San Diego, a football camp and a one-on-one reading and mentorship program in his hometown of Aurora, Ill. English also helped create a program called Open Airways that helps schools diagnose asthma in students.

English's uncle, Charles Richardson, lettered as fullback at Wisconsin in 1972.

80 MALCOM FLOYD

Wide Receiver
6-5, 225
8th NFL Season
10th with Chargers

Free Agent - '04
Wyoming
River City HS
Sacramento, Calif.

The veteran member of the Chargers' receiving corps, Floyd is the team's reigning Offensive Player of the Year.

Floyd was on his way to a 1,000-yard season in 2012 when his campaign was cut short by two games as result of an ankle injury. He still managed to lead the team with a career-high 56 catches and score five touchdowns.

He'll again pair with Danario Alexander to give the Chargers a formidable pair of six-foot-five field stretchers in San Diego's new offense headed up by Offensive Coordinator Ken Whisenhunt and Head Coach Mike McCoy.

The Chargers love Floyd's big-play ability and in September 2012, just days after the team's third game of the year, he signed a three-year contract extension that goes through the 2015 season and will most likely allow him to finish his career in Lightning Bolts.

A mainstay in the Chargers' offensive lineup since 2008, Floyd's totals the last five seasons include 208 catches for 3,628 yards and 21 touchdowns. His 17.4 yards per catch average during the most-recent five-year stretch is the third-highest in the NFL. Only Vincent Jackson (18.3) and DeSean Jackson (17.5) have averaged more yards per catch during that time.

Floyd performed a rather impressive feat in 2011 when 41 of his 43 catches went for first downs. The 95.3 percent clip was the second-highest in NFL history (min. 32 catches). Only Henry Ellard, who totaled 71 first downs on 74 catches (95.9%) for the Washington Redskins in 1994, posted a higher percentage. Floyd's first 23 catches of the season all went for first downs and his first catch that didn't result in a first down wasn't until Dec. 11. Floyd finished 2011 with a career-high 856 yards and a career-best 19.9-yard average, which was the highest in the league among players with more than 800 yards receiving. It was also the ninth highest average in team history among players with at least 40 catches.

An undrafted free agent from a heralded class in 2004, Floyd is one of the team's most popular players. He's a second generation NFL wide receiver who followed in the footsteps of his older brother, Malcolm, who played wide receiver for the Houston Oilers, Tennessee Titans and St. Louis Rams in the mid '90s. The elder Floyd is currently the head football coach at C.K. McClatchy High School in Sacramento, Calif.

Floyd's mother, Leataata, still resides in Sacramento where she volunteers as a mentor, tutor, counselor and ambassador, who teaches Polynesian dancing after school each day at one of the poorest schools in the city. In 2012, the Sacramento School District paid tribute to Floyd by changing the name of the school where she has given so much of her time from Jedediah Smith Elementary to Leataata Floyd Elementary.

Floyd and his wife, Daphne, have two sons, Maiu and Malc. In his spare time, Malcom enjoys playing basketball and spending time grilling out with his family. An all-conference hoopster in high school, Floyd's team won the school's intramural championship while he was an undergrad at Wyoming.

93 DWIGHT FREENEY

Outside Linebacker
6-1, 268
12th NFL Season
1st with Chargers

UFA (Indianapolis) – '13
Syracuse
Bloomfield HS
Bloomfield, Conn.

The Chargers bolstered their defense this offseason by signing seven-time Pro Bowl outside linebacker Dwight Freeney from the Indianapolis Colts.

Freeney spent his first 11 professional seasons in Indianapolis, helping the Colts to a Super Bowl title after the 2006 season (Super Bowl XLI). A native of Bloomfield, Connecticut, where he set a state record for career sacks, Freeney was the Colts' first pick in the 2002 NFL Draft (11th overall) after an All-America career at Syracuse. It concluded with him being named the Big East Conference's co-Defensive Player of the Year after he led the nation with 17.5 sacks as a senior. Freeney didn't waste any time making his presence felt in the NFL. He earned All-Rookie honors in 2002 after setting a franchise record with 13 sacks, second all-time among rookies to the 14.5 recorded by Tennessee's Jevon Kearse in 1999.

Besides seven Pro Bowl selections, Freeney was named All-Pro four times, he was selected to the NFL's all-Decade Team for the 2000s in 2009 and the Kansas City Committee of 101 named him its Defensive Player of the Year in 2005. He racked up a Colts-record 107.5 sacks, becoming the 26th player in NFL history with more than 100 career sacks. Freeney and Robert Mathis combined to give the Colts a devastating one-two punch as they became the first defensive end tandem from the same team to be named to three consecutive Pro Bowls (2008-10) since 1970. Freeney's ledger includes sacks against 53 different quarterbacks and 27 of the NFL's 32 teams. At the end of the 2012 season, he had the fifth-most sacks among active players, ranking behind only Atlanta's John Abraham (122.0), Minnesota's Jared Allen (117.0), Chicago's Julius Peppers (111.5) and Dallas' DeMarcus Ware (111.0). Freeney is the only player in Colts history to post seven double-digit sack seasons, including a franchise-record and NFL-leading 16 in 2004, when he became the first player in team history to win the league's sack title. He set a franchise record by recording at least one sack in nine-straight games over the 2008-09 seasons and owns the three-highest single-season sack marks in Colts history.

Freeney's career totals heading into 2013 include 163 games played, 143 starts, 378 tackles, 44 forced fumbles, 14 passes defensed and three interceptions.

Including his Super Bowl appearance, Freeney has played and started 17 postseason games during his career.

As a high schooler, Freeney didn't start with ambitions of becoming one of the NFL's best players. His older brother, Hugh, played quarterback at Bloomfield, but Freeney started his athletic career as a goalie for the school's soccer team. Both of Freeney's parents, Hugh, Sr. and Joy, were Jamaican natives and that was the game he'd primarily been exposed to as a child. It was only after some good-natured ribbing from classmates about his soccer uniform that Freeney opted for a move to the gridiron as a sophomore. He ended up a four-sport star for the Warhawks, lettering in football, basketball, baseball and soccer. He led the football team to a state title in 1997 and even though football was the sport that ultimately led to a professional career, Freeney was an excellent center fielder and power hitter for the baseball team. He hit one of the longest home runs in school history, clearing a road that runs behind the school's baseball field. With his legacy cast, Freeney returned to Connecticut in 2007 for Dwight Freeney Day, which included the retirement of the No. 44 uniform he wore as a prep.

Freeney's success on the field catapulted him into an array of opportunities off the field, including the nonprofit world and the entertainment industry.

He oversees the Dwight Freeney Foundation, which has hosted a number of events. They include a football camp, a FanFest designed to thank Colts fans, as well as a program that provided Thanksgiving meals for needy families through Indianapolis' Boys and Girls Clubs. Freeney also raised funds for charities in his home state of Connecticut through events that included a celebrity golf classic.

Freeney's celebrity status has led to red carpet invitations for a wide variety of events from the ESPY's to the Grammy Awards. His star quality and easy-going nature have taken him to events that range from album release parties to fundraisers for Pediatric AIDS. Freeney has been a frequent guest and contributor for numerous sports television shows, including ESPN's "Rome is Burning", The NFL Network's "Total Access" and FOX Sports Net's "Best Damn Sports Show Period." Freeney also was featured on ESPN's Monday Night Football Countdown's "Unmasked," in 2012 and he was a guest on the popular daytime talk show, "Dr. Phil." His other screen credits include an appearance on Fox's highest rated reality series, "Hell's Kitchen," and he starred in NBC's hit Sunday Night Football commercial with Faith Hill. Freeney's popularity also has led to appearances on the covers of Sports Illustrated and The Sporting News, while he was featured as Ebony's hottest bachelor of 2008 and has been written about in People Magazine, Men's Health and USA Today.

Freeney is of Jamaican heritage. He enjoys cooking, particularly Caribbean and Jamaican food. Freeney's other hobbies include golf and bowling.

59 ANDREW GACHKAR

Inside Linebacker
6-3, 240
3rd NFL Season
3rd with Chargers

Draft 7 – '11
Missouri
Blue Valley West HS
Overland Park, Kan.

A seventh-round draft pick in 2011, Andrew Gachkar has done exactly what he needed to do to make the team: excel on special teams. Gachkar tied for the team lead with 12 special teams tackles as a rookie and as a second-year player he tied for fourth. He's also gained valuable experience in limited time as a reserve linebacker. That experience again bodes well for the former Missouri Tiger as he heads into his third NFL season.

Gachkar overcame a life-threatening ailment to even be able to play football. In 2007, after his freshman year at Missouri, he was diagnosed with Thoracic Outlet Syndrome. He had developed a blood clot because his collarbone and rib cage were too close together to allow proper blood flow through his veins. As a result, he underwent major surgery to remove one of his ribs, and a second surgery after another clot developed. Gachkar spent more than 20 hours in surgery and nearly a month in the hospital and he lost 30 pounds. The surgeries initially put his football future in doubt, but Gachkar was diligent in his rehabilitation and he made it back for the 2008 season without missing a game.

Gachkar left Missouri as a first-team All-Big 12 choice. He led one of the most improved defenses in the nation in 2010 with a team-best 81 tackles, while also leading the Tigers in interceptions, forced fumbles, fumble recoveries and blocked kicks.

Gachkar and his high school sweetheart, Lauren Nuckolls, were married in Missouri in March 2013.

85 ANTONIO GATES

Tight End
6-4, 255
11th NFL Season
11th with Chargers

Free Agent - '03
Kent State
Central HS
Detroit, Mich.

Antonio Gates is one of the NFL's top tight ends of all time. In 2012 the future Hall of Famer became the franchise's all-time leader for career touchdown catches. He enters 2013 with 83 career scores.

In 2012, Gates tied for the team lead with seven touchdown catches, while ranking second in receptions and yards. It was the ninth year in a row that he totaled at least seven touchdown catches. Gates and quarterback Philip Rivers have been on the opposite end of 56 touchdown catches, the most in NFL history between a quarterback-tight end tandem.

In 2013, the NFL Network ranked Gates at No. 73 on their list of the top 100 players in the NFL. It was a list that was compiled in voting by players.

In addition to leading the team in touchdown catches, Gates holds team records for receptions (642) and consecutive games with a touchdown catch (tied, nine), and he ranks third in receiving yards (8,321). Both of the players who rank ahead of him in terms of yards are Hall of Fame wide receivers, Charlie Joiner (9,203) and Lance Alworth (9,584). Gates has a chance to pass both in 2013, needing 883 yards to pass Joiner and 1,264 to pass Alworth.

Besides his position as the preeminent tight end in franchise history, Gates is beloved in the San Diego community. He has given back since he arrived as a free agent basketball phenom from Kent State University and continues to do so. His signature Shop with a Charger event is one of the most popular holiday events in town as Gates hosts homeless, neglected and abused children to a special night that includes a Christmas shopping spree. He is also the honorary chairman for the Shoot to Cure HD, which raises much-needed research funds for the Huntington's Disease Society of America. And he works closely with Promises2Kids, an organization that offers support to San Diego's foster youth community.

Gates' route to the NFL has been well-chronicled. When he signed with the Chargers in 2003, he had not played football since his senior season at Central High School in Detroit. He began his collegiate career at Michigan State under the assumption that he could play both football and basketball, but when the football coach relented, Gates chose to focus on hoops and decided it was best to leave the East Lansing campus. An up-and-down start to his basketball career sent him to three different schools before he finally found a home at Kent State, where in two seasons he helped lead the Golden Flashes to back-to-back Mid-American Conference championships and the Elite Eight of the 2002 NCAA Tournament. Gates ended his career as the sixth-leading scorer in school history and in Feb. 2010, he returned to the Kent, Ohio, campus to have his No. 44 jersey retired by the school.

Gates now heads into 2013, his 11th NFL season, with several additional milestones in sight. He has scored 498 career points and needs just two more to become the sixth player and the third non-kicker to score at least 500 for his career. And his 642 career catches rank fifth all-time among tight ends. With 21 more, he'll pass Hall of Fame tight end Ozzie Newsome (662) for the fourth-most catches by a player in their position group in league history.

Gates is a member of the NFL's All-Decade Team (2000-09), he's one of the Chargers' 50 Greatest Players of All-Time, an eight-time Pro Bowl all-star and a three-time first-team All-Pro.

Gates' paternal grandfather, Henry Hank, was a professional boxer in the 1950s and '60s. who fought 97 professional bouts as a middleweight and light heavyweight, winning 62 of them. His 1962 fight against Joey Giardello was voted the Fight of the Year by Ring Magazine. Old photos show a striking resemblance between Gates and his grandfather, and many in the family believe that Gates inherited his athletic ability from him.

Had Gates not opted for a career in athletics, he might have tried his hand as a firefighter. A couple of years ago, a group of firefighters attended a training camp practice and one of the most enamored players was Gates. He told several of them that long ago he'd dreamed of being a firefighter so several weeks later, the assistant San Diego fire chief returned to Chargers Park and presented Gates with a SDFD firefighters jacket with his own name and number.

38 MARCUS GILCHRIST

Cornerback-Safety
5-10, 198
3rd NFL Season
3rd with Chargers

Draft 2A – '11
Clemson
Andrews HS
High Point, N.C.

A second-round pick in the 2011 NFL Draft, the Chargers will take advantage of Marcus Gilchrist's experience at safety after he spent the majority of his first two seasons as the team's nickel corner.

Gilchrist played in all 16 games last season and he made four starts. His 76 tackles were third-most among the secondary and fifth-most on the team. He also collected his first sack and broke up five passes.

As a rookie, Gilchrist won the team's nickel job right out of training camp and he earned his first start just four games into the season. Not surprisingly, that day's opponent, the Miami Dolphins, went right after the rookie corner, but Gilchrist intercepted the first pass thrown in his direction and his defense helped the Chargers to a victory.

Gilchrist came to the Chargers from Clemson University where he was a star among stars. Four of his defensive teammates were selected in the 2011 NFL Draft. According to the Tigers' coaches though, it was Marcus' football IQ that made him stand out, along with an impressive showing at the NFL combine where he posted a 38-inch vertical leap and put up 26 bench-press repetitions at 225 pounds, second-most among all defensive backs.

Gilchrist had toughness and discipline instilled at home at an early age from his father, Ronny, a retired United States Marine. Ronny played sports and boxed in the service. He had Marcus doing push-ups and sit-ups at an early age, 200 a day when he started playing youth sports, and more as he got older. Marcus' mother, LaJeune, was also the daughter of a coach.

One of Gilchrist's passions is collecting shoes. He owns more than 200 pairs of shoes, including a number of different varieties of Nike's Air Jordan, named for future NBA Hall of Famer, Michael Jordan.

15 RICHARD GOODMAN

Wide Receiver-Kick Returner
6-0, 192
3rd NFL Season
4th with Chargers

Free Agent – '10
Florida State
St. Thomas Aquinas HS
Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

Richard Goodman, or "Goody" as he's known by teammates, is raising the bar in San Diego. He's been the team's featured kick returner the last two seasons and he set the franchise record for the longest kickoff return in team history when he brought back a kick 105 yards for a touchdown in the 2011 season finale against Oakland. Goodman was in the midst of another big year in 2012 when he was felled by a hamstring injury while returning the opening kickoff during the Bolts' Oct. 28 game in Cleveland. The injury ended a franchise-record streak for Goodman of seven straight games (dating back to 2011) in which he had at least one return of 30 yards or longer.

Before the injury, Goodman was averaging 27.6 yards per return for the season, same as his career average. Had he played the full 2012 season, Goodman most likely would have attained the necessary 75 returns to qualify for the team's all-time kickoff return average record (25.3), set by Leslie "Speedy" Duncan. Through a rigorous rehabilitation program, Goodman's hamstring has completely healed and with another solid season and 24 more kickoff returns, he should easily take over the franchise mark in 2013.

A gym rat, Goodman loves to work out. He plays football with a chip on his shoulder after almost being overlooked to play at a major college. As a prep at powerhouse St. Thomas Aquinas High School in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., Goodman didn't even play until his senior year. By then, most of the major colleges had doled out their scholarship offers, but when he began to beat some of the top prep recruits in the state during the playoffs his senior season, colleges began to take notice. Florida State was one of the first to offer a scholarship and the sincerity of former coach Bobby Bowden is what led Goodman to Tallahassee to play for the Seminoles.

One of Goodman's childhood heroes was Michael Irvin, another alum of St. Thomas Aquinas. The two men grew up in the same area and Goodman has tried to train, compete and approach the game the same way that the Hall of Fame receiver did during his illustrious career. Goodman's best friend is another St. Thomas alum, Chicago Bears safety Major Wright.

Goodman is the oldest of four children who was raised by a single mom with help from his paternal grandmother, Olinthia, who passed in 1998. Now that he's grown, Goodman has ambitions of starting a foundation to assist single moms. Goodman has a teardrop tattooed below his right eye in memory of his late grandmother and another on his left forearm that's a tribute to his mother.

In his spare time, Goodman works to elevate his game and become a better person off the field.

89 LADARIUS GREEN

Tight End
6-6, 240
2nd NFL Season
2nd with Chargers

Draft 4 – '12
Louisiana-Lafayette
Booker T. Washington HS
Pensacola, Fla.

For Ladarius Green, the Chargers' fourth-round pick in the 2012 NFL Draft, his rookie season was an opportunity to watch, learn, spend time in meetings with, and train alongside a future Hall of Fame tight end in Antonio Gates.

Green played in just four games as a rookie, showing flashes of what's to come with four catches for 56 yards. Now in his second pro season, the door of opportunity is wide open as he'll have a chance to see more playing time in the Chargers' new offensive system.

Green came from the University of Louisiana-Lafayette where he was a three-time All-Sun Belt League choice. The 6-6, 240-pounder caught 149 passes for 2,201 yards and 22 touchdowns during his career with the Ragin' Cajuns and his 22 touchdown catches were the second-most in school history behind NFL free agent wide receiver Brandon Stokley. Green played his final college game against San Diego State in the 2011 New Orleans Bowl and his five-catch, 121-yard with a touchdown effort left an impression on the local fan base.

Green excelled in the classroom at ULL, earning a degree in finance in just three-and-a-half years. He aspires to one day pursue a career in investment banking.

Both of Green's parents, Shannon and Walter, served in the Army and Green was born in Berlin, Germany, while his parents were serving.

Despite his 6-6 frame, Green's nickname is "Pee Wee." It is a moniker he was given as a high school junior when he stood just 5-10. Even though he hit a major growth spurt shortly thereafter and shot up to his present height, the name had stuck and teammates still refer to him as Pee Wee.

Green's first cousin is former Chargers guard Tyronne Green. They were teammates during Ladarius' rookie season in San Diego.

TRANSACTION HISTORY: Fourth-round pick (110), April 28, 2012...signed May 11.

2012: First-career catch went for season-long 31 yards on 3rd-and-6 play in Chargers' Sept. 16 win over Tennessee... season-high three catches Nov. 18 at Denver.

COLLEGE: First-team All-Sun Belt as junior and senior, and second-team as sophomore...also named to All-Louisiana College Football's first team...invited to 2012 Senior Bowl... in final college game vs. rival Louisiana-Monroe, tied school record with 13 catches, good for 136 yards and two touchdowns...also recovered onside kick with 2:05 left in fourth quarter to set up game-winning touchdown drive... 91-yard catch in 2009 was third-longest in Sun Belt history and fourth in school history...Team MVP as sophomore in '09 after ranking third in conference in yards per game and yards per catch...played at Louisiana-Lafayette from 2008-11.

4th NFL Season
1st with Chargers

Free Agent – '13
Arizona
Williamsville HS
Williamsville, N.Y.

In April, the Chargers signed former Denver Broncos fullback Chris Gronkowski.

A University of Arizona alum, Gronkowski has appeared in 35 career games, including 14 for Denver last season.

Gronkowski is the older brother of New England's Rob Gronkowski and the younger brother of Cleveland's Dan Gronkowski. The three brothers are the first trio from one family to play in the NFL since Brian, Gary and Rich Baldinger all played in the league in 1992. The Gronkowski's great-grandfather, Ignatius, was a member of the United States Olympic Cycling Team that competed in Paris in 1924, and their father, Gordon, played offensive line at Syracuse.

Besides playing for Chargers Head Coach Mike McCoy last season in Denver, Gronkowski also has history with Chargers General Manager Tom Telesco. He began his career with Dallas as an undrafted free agent in 2010. Waived by the Cowboys prior to the 2011 season, Gronkowski was claimed by Indianapolis, where Telesco was the Colts' Director of Player Personnel. The Colts traded Gronkowski to the Broncos in May 2012.

A native of Williamsville, New York, Gronkowski began his collegiate career at the University of Maryland and later transferred to Arizona. He played baseball for the Wildcats in 2006 and joined the football team in 2007.

61 NICK HARDWICK

Center
6-4, 305
10th NFL Season
10th with Chargers

Draft 3B - '04
Purdue
Lawrence North HS
Indianapolis, Ind.

The Chargers' Lineman of the Year in 2011 and 2012, and a member of the Chargers 50th Anniversary All-Time Team, Hardwick has long been a steadying force as the senior member of the team's offensive line.

Hardwick was one of only two linemen to start every game last season on a line that saw three different starting left tackles, and two different starters at both left guard and right tackle. He now heads into his 10th NFL season in 2013 having started 50 straight games at center and a total of 119 for his career.

Hardwick had one of his best seasons as a pro in 2012, though for a time he contemplated stepping away from the game and from the only city he's played in as a professional. After the 2011 season ended, Hardwick became an unrestricted free agent, he had recently become a new father, and he had just watched one of his best friends and linemates - left guard Kris Dielman - retire after suffering a serious concussion. All three factors led Hardwick to ponder whether he wanted to continue playing football, and if he did, whether he wanted to play it in San Diego or make a fresh start elsewhere. But when the dust settled just prior to the start of free agency, Hardwick decided that home is where the heart is, and he opted to sign a new three-year contract with the Chargers. It was a big decision for Hardwick and his family, but having the chance to continue his career in the same city where he started lifted a huge burden from the shoulders of he and his wife, Jayme.

With all the accolades, it's hard to believe that just four seasons ago in 2009, Hardwick suffered an ankle injury so severe that it nearly ended his career. He missed 13 games that season, but returned in time for a late-season push to the playoffs and he hasn't missed a game since. Charged with calling out the blocking schemes and making changes at the line of scrimmage, Hardwick shares a close bond with quarterback Philip Rivers.

When Hardwick returned from the ankle injury and started all 16 games for the NFL's No. 1 ranked offense in 2010, teammates honored him with a share of the team's Emil Karas Memorial Award as its most inspirational player.

A Pro Bowl selection in 2006, Hardwick has been a starter since his rookie season (2004). The Chargers have rushed for at least 1,700 yards in all but one season that he has started at least 12 games, including a team-record 2,578 yards in '06.

Hardwick grew up in Indianapolis. As a youth, he played hockey on an international traveling team and was a standout prep wrestler. With wrestling as a possible ticket to fulfill his dreams of becoming a Marine aviator, Hardwick went to Purdue on a Marine Corps ROTC Scholarship. One of his father's cousins, Joe McCormick, was a former Air Force pilot and he inspired Hardwick to acquire his pilot's license before he turned 18. He earned the money to pay for his flying lessons by collecting golf balls at a local driving range. But Hardwick's mission was altered after former Chargers quarterback Drew Brees led the Boilermakers to the 2001 Rose Bowl. Hardwick saw the excitement it generated on the Purdue campus, and the following fall he decided to walk on to the school's football team. A year after earning a spot as a scout team defensive tackle, he became the Boilermakers' starting center and earned all-conference honors.

Hardwick maintains close ties to his alma mater where Jayme also competed as a member of the school's women's soccer team. In 2007, he endowed an annual football scholarship that is given to a walk-on player who earns it, just as Hardwick did. And in 2008, Purdue presented him with the Drew Brees Mental Attitude Award, presented by the Joe Tiller/Northwest Indiana Chapter of the National Football Foundation. Hardwick became the fourth former Boilermaker to receive the award.

Owner of a management degree from Purdue, Hardwick is the Chargers' union representative and he guided the players through the NFL Lockout in 2011. He sharpened his business acumen when he attended the NFL's Business and Entrepreneurial Program at the Wharton School at the University of Pennsylvania in 2009. It is a special program where NFL players and front office employees spend a week learning a broad range of business topics from some of the country's most well-known educators.

In December 2011, the Hardwicks became first-time parents. Hudson Harold Hardwick, was born the night before the Chargers' nationally-televised game against the Baltimore Ravens and the next night, NBC showed America a picture of baby Hudson during the broadcast of the game.

Hardwick has been involved in a number of charitable causes throughout his career, but his main devotion is to the Marine Corps-Law Enforcement Foundation (MCLEF), an organization that raises money to provide advanced education for the children of Marines and law enforcement officers killed in the line of duty.

In his free time, Hardwick enjoys reading, drawing and spending time at the beach with his family.

CHARGERS IN POWER BLUES

Philip Rivers

The Chargers' "Power Blue" / powder blue jerseys first reappeared in 1994 during the NFL's 75th Anniversary Season. Since then, the Chargers have worn their alternate jersey 24 times, posting a 14-10 record in those games. The team redesigned its uniform in 2007, introducing a new version of the powder blue alternate jersey, and the team is 9-5 in the most current version. From 1994-06, Chargers wore their "Throwback" jerseys, modeled after uniforms worn by 1963 AFL Championship squad, 10 times and posted a 5-5 record.

79 MIKE HARRIS

Tackle

2nd NFL Season

Free Agent - '12
UCLA
Duarte HS
Duarte, Calif.

One of the gutsiest performances of the 2012 season was turned in by an undrafted rookie from UCLA. Mike Harris exceeded all expectations as he performed at one of the NFL's most-challenging positions.

A former right tackle at UCLA, the 6-5, 318-pounder wasn't even one of the team's most sought after undrafted free agents. But when injuries kept incumbent starter Jared Gaither off the field during training camp, Harris became the "next man up." He performed well in Gaither's absence and slowly began to earn the confidence of his teammates and the coaching staff. And when the 2012 season opener in Oakland arrived, Harris was tabbed as the team's starting left tackle.

Harris had his ups and downs as a rookie but he ended up playing in 15 games with nine starts and that experience will give him a leg up on the competition as he heads into his second professional season.

Draft 1 – '12
South Carolina
Richmond County HS
Rockingham, N.C.

The Chargers' defense suffered a major blow in May when Ingram, the team's first-round draft pick in 2012 and a projected starter at outside linebacker, suffered a torn ACL in his left knee.

Ingram was coming off a rookie campaign in which he racked up 18 quarterback pressures, tied for second-most on the squad, along with 12 special teams tackles, which tied for the team lead. He played in all 16 games, made two starts and gained valuable experience while working amidst a veteran-laden group of fellow linebackers.

Ingram's marriage to the Chargers was a match that drew much excitement as he was still on the board when the Bolts held the 18th choice in the first round of the 2012 NFL Draft. There had been knocks about his 30 1/2 inch reach, short by NFL standards, but Ingram had been a jack-of-all-trades at the University of South Carolina. He posted the fourth-most sacks in school history and the fifth-most tackles for loss on his way to being named just the third consensus first-team All-America in school history, and the first since 1984. Ingram was a team captain as a senior and a key cog on a Gamecocks squad that ranked third in the nation in total defense and 11th in scoring D. He was also part of a resurgence at South Carolina that peaked when the Gamecocks won a school-record 11 games in his final season, including a 30-13 win over Nebraska in the Capital One Bowl on New Year's Day.

Once he arrived in San Diego, it didn't take long to silence the naysayers about whether his reach would hinder his ability to make plays on the professional level. During the first quarter of his first NFL game, a preseason contest against the Green Bay Packers, Ingram pressured reigning NFL MVP Aaron Rodgers into a hurried throw that was intercepted by one of Ingram's teammates. It was a big moment against a quarterback who threw 45 touchdowns and only six interceptions the entire previous season and it would be a sign of things to come.

For Ingram's family back in Rockingham, North Carolina, his success was hardly a surprise. His father, George Melvin Ingram, Jr., predicted that his infant son would one day play in the NFL prior to his premature passing from a massive heart attack in 1998. Raised by his mom, Nancy, and two older sisters, Ingram became a cult hero in Rockingham where the football star and three-year starter at point guard for the school's basketball team earned the nickname "SupaMelvin."

So gifted was Ingram that he once walked out of a high school math class so he could go to the school's gym to break the hang-clean record in his school clothes. After a brief warmup, he did so with a lift of 380 pounds, five more than the previous school record. And prior to the 2006 Shrine Bowl All-Star Game featuring the top high school seniors from North and South Carolina, Ingram threw the fastest pass during a pregame carnival, posting the fastest throws with both his left and right hands. In addition to his athletic feats, Ingram has no problem doing a standing back-flip, he can spin a football in his hand, he can dunk one over a crossbar, he can dunk a basketball with ease and he can throw a football more than 70 yards without taking a step.

96 JARRET JOHNSON

Outside Linebacker
6-3, 260
11th NFL Season
2nd with Chargers

UFA (Baltimore) - '12
Alabama
Chiefland HS
Cedar Key, Fla.

Jarret Johnston plays perhaps one of the most unremarkable positions in football. A strong-side linebacker in a 3-4 defense, it's a position where you're unlikely to load up the stat sheets with staggering numbers, but in the defensive scheme, Johnson is one of the most important players for its success. And few have ever played the position as well as Johnson has for 10 NFL seasons.

Johnson came to the Chargers in 2012 as one of the NFL's top-rated free agents. Listed as the 14th-best available free agent by SI.com, he signed a four-year contract with the Chargers last March.

Johnson brought stability to the strong-side 'backer position for the Chargers, as well as a tremendous work ethic that was ingrained in him during nine seasons with the 2012 Super Bowl Champion Baltimore Ravens. Johnson served as a valued mentor for fellow strong-side linebacker, Melvin Ingram, the Chargers' top pick in last season's NFL Draft, and he finished his first season in San Diego with 47 tackles and 1.5 sacks. But more importantly, Johnson's consistency and effort helped the Bolts rank ninth in the NFL in total defense and sixth against the run.

Johnson's durability is one of the traits that made him so attractive to the Chargers. He left Baltimore having played in a team-record 129-straight regular-season games, including 80 consecutive starts. Nicknamed "J.J." and "Double-J" by his former teammates in Baltimore, Johnson epitomized the term "blue-collar player" during his nine seasons wearing the Ravens' purple and black.

Johnson, wife Anna, and daughter, Molly-Caroline, reside in Niceville, Fla., close to Eglin Air Force Base. Johnson has long been a supporter of our nation's armed forces and with San Diego's large population of Marines and Navy personnel along with the team's outreach to area installations, Johnson felt right at home.

Johnson is an avid outdoorsman who loves to boat, hunt and fish. He comes from a family with a long and trying legacy of men who made a living as commercial crabbers and fishermen. Beginning with his great-grandfather, all of the men in the Johnson family worked on the water, including his father, Ludwig, who was tragically lost at sea when Jarret was just two weeks shy of his eighth birthday. Johnson grew up fishing with his father and his death took a severe emotional toll. It also left his mother, Aida, alone to take care of Johnson and his sister, Mary Beth, with no job and no insurance. She returned to nursing school and made ends meet working a job as an emergency response technician. The only drawback was that the job required her to drive nearly 150 miles each day to and from work. To aid the family after Ludwig's death, one of Jarret's dad's best friends, Harry Rogers, who had worked on oil rigs up in Alaska, relocated to Florida to help Aida and provide Johnson with a father figure. Several years later with life more stable, Aida moved the family to Chiefland, Fla., where Johnson launched his football career at Chiefland High School. It set Johnson on a path in which he would become the first male in the family to not work as a fisherman.

For a long time, Johnson resented the water, but a couple of years ago while visiting Rogers in Florida as he was fighting a losing battle with cancer, Johnson stumbled upon an old book that contained some of his father's old fishing logs. He discovered that his father not only fished for a living, but worked as a fishing guide, a fireman, and he even wrote a fishing report for the local newspaper. This discovery and all that the books contained helped provide Johnson with some closure and it rekindled an interest in fishing and being on the water.

Johnson again lives on the water in Niceville where he owns a 22-foot Pathfinder fishing boat and has aspirations of one day becoming a commercial fishing guide. He recently purchased a large boat and name it "Hot Spur," in honor of his great grandfather, a Danish immigrant whose first fishing boat went by the same name.

And even though Johnson enjoys hunting and fishing, he has a Chocolate Labrador Retriever and has been a spokesperson for the Humane Society and several campaigns aimed at stopping animal abuse.

Keiser joined the Chargers from Carolina in May. He spent his first two seasons with the Panthers, joining them as an undrafted rookie free agent from Stanford in 2011. Keiser made the final cut as a rookie, and in just his second NFL game against Detroit, he racked up two sacks against Lions quarterback Matthew Stafford. He finished his rookie season on the active roster, adding two more sacks and an interception. In 2012, Keiser played in just four games before being placed on the "Reserve-Injured" list Nov. 14 due to a left elbow injury.

At Stanford, Keiser was an honorable mention all-Pac-10 defensive end-outside linebacker. He was also a member of the Stanford Conservative Society, a group that provided venues for conservatives, libertarians, and moderates to meet, mingle, discuss their views, listen to prominent political leaders, and occasionally work on community service projects – such as their annual "Christmas Cards for Soldiers" event. A science, technology and society major with an interest in politics and current events, Keiser served in a leadership capacity, acting as a vice president and financial officer for the group.

94 COREY LIUGET

Defensive End
6-2, 300
3rd NFL Season
3rd with Chargers

Draft 1 – '11
Illinois
Hialeah HS
Miami, Fla.

Corey Liuget made tremendous strides in his second NFL season in 2012. He assembled a campaign that earned him the team's defensive player of the year award, but many thought his season should have ended with a trip to Honolulu to represent the AFC in the Pro Bowl.

The source of Liuget's breakout season actually traced back to the end of his rookie year. The team's first-round pick in the 2011 NFL Draft, Liuget had to grow up in a hurry as the NFL Lockout wiped out what would have been his first offseason. Instead of working out with teammates and studying with coaches, Liuget was forced to go it alone. Then when the lockout ended and the season rolled around, injuries hammered the Chargers' defensive line and the young rookie was pressed into immediate duty. Liuget ended up playing in 15 games with 13 starts. By season's end though, his weight had ballooned to 327 pounds, due in large part to an extended visit from his mom, Lorene, and her home cooking. Rather than continuing to pack on pounds, Liuget made a decision to travel back to Florida where he could train at his alma mater, Hialeah High School in Miami, with former coaches Gary Sanchez, Alex Terry and Steve Smith. The move paid dividends as Liuget lowered his weight to 300 pounds and it set the wheels in motion for his breakthrough season. Liuget went on to lead San Diego's defensive line in sacks (7), tackles (61), tackles for loss (15) and passes defensed (9) in 2012, and his nine passes defensed were second in the NFL among defensive linemen behind Houston's J.J. Watt's 15. Liuget's improved conditioning also contributed to a strong finish to the season as he tallied five sacks in the team's last six games, including a career-high two in the Chargers' Dec. 23 win over the New York Jets.

Work ethic is one trait that was drilled into Liuget at an early age. His father, DeJa, was killed while visiting Corey's grandmother in Haiti in 1993. It left Lorene to raise Corey and his four older brothers and sisters as a single parent in Miami's housing projects. When her kids were young, Lorene enlisted their help to make ends meet. She would boil peanuts, make candy apples, conch fritters and sweet potato pies, which Corey and his brothers and sisters would sell. It worked and it taught all of the kids about work ethic and discipline.

Liuget went on to have a standout career at Hialeah High. Despite hailing from a close-knit family that tops 100 in number and a strong recruiting push from the big in-state schools, he opted to chart his own path and enroll at the University of Illinois. After a couple of years in Champaign, Ill. though, Liuget grew homesick and contemplated returning home after his sophomore season. Some tough love from his mom persuaded him to stick it out and instead of moping over the situation, Liuget used it as motivation. He lost 25 pounds between his sophomore and junior seasons, and feeling re-invigorated, had a career year for the Fighting Illini in 2010. Liuget then chose to leave school a year early and apply for the NFL Draft. The Chargers loved the toughness, tenacity and relentless approach to the game that he showed and made him their first-ever first-round pick from Illinois.

Liuget appreciates living in San Diego, a city with a strong military history, as his two older sisters, Ideidre and Latronika, both serve our country in the Army.

This year, Liuget took a vacation to the Dominican Republic and the 6-2, 300-pounder learned to surf and scuba dive.

Draft 1 – '10

Ryan Mathews, the ninth-ranked rushing leader in franchise history, has recovered from two broken collarbones and he has his sights set on big goals for 2013.

Mathews' 2012 season featured its ups and downs as it was marred by the two fluke injuries. He had reported to camp bulked up and in outstanding shape, having trained hard in the team's offseason program. He was looking forward to big things in his third NFL season, but on the third play of the Chargers' first preseason game, Mathews suffered a fractured right collarbone. The injury caused him to miss the rest of the preseason and the first two weeks of the regular season. Mathews went on to play in 12 games, starting nine, but in the second quarter of the Chargers' Dec. 16 game against Carolina, Mathews fractured his left collarbone and his 2012 season came to an end.

Mathews made a significant ascent from year one to year two of his NFL career. The first-round pick in 2010 racked up more than 1,500 yards in 2011, capping the year with an invitation to play in the Pro Bowl, along with a nod as the team's offensive player of the year. Mathews rushed for 1,091 yards and added 455 as a pass-catcher to become just the 14th player in team history to top 1,500 total yards from scrimmage. He was originally tabbed a second-alternate for the Pro Bowl, but when two players ahead of him pulled out of the game, his invitation to Hawaii arrived. It was a deserving honor for a player who ranked seventh in the NFL in scrimmage yards, 10th in rushing yards and seventh in yards per carry. Mathews really found his legs late in the 2011 season, rushing for over 100 yards in three-straight games. During that same stretch, he put together a string of five-straight games in which he had at least one run of 20 yards or longer. Only two other players in franchise history, Natrone Means and Paul Lowe, had similar streaks.

Mathews' path to the NFL was a difficult one. He was raised by a single mother, Tricia, who gave birth when she was just 16. With her own mother battling a drug addiction, Tricia turned to relatives to find a place to live and raise Ryan. Unfortunately, she ran out of options and ultimately settled on the backseat of a 1969 Oldsmobile Cutlass Supreme. Their story is both heartbreaking and inspiring. After several months of living in the car, bathing and washing Ryan's clothes at a public park and feeding him from a Riverside, Calif. soup kitchen, Tricia found a stable home with her grandmother, Glenna, in nearby Tehachapi.

With a roof over her head, Tricia found work while her grandmother looked after young Ryan. Tricia worked up to three jobs a day to save money and support her son. After years of saving and living with Ryan's grandmother, Tricia had saved enough money to move them to Bakersfield, where Ryan enrolled at West High School. It was there that Tricia landed a well-paying job, but one of the drawbacks was that it included extensive travel. At the time, the Mathews household had grown by one as Ryan's best friend, Dante, had moved in with them to escape a home rife with drug use. With Tricia away working, Ryan and Dante often had the apartment to themselves and as a result, Ryan's academics began a steady slide.

Things became particularly bad following a 235-yard, six-touchdown performance by Mathews in the league championship game his junior year. With a D-average and on the verge of being ineligible for his senior year, Mathews was challenged by both his mother and Fresno State Head Coach Pat Hill, who had heavily recruited the young back. It was a crossroads for the budding star. His mother's plea carried the most weight as she reminded him of the sacrifices she made to raise him and it had a profound effect. Mathews fulfilled a promise to buckle down in school. He maintained his eligibility and proceeded to put together a 3,396-yard, 44-touchdown senior season that had coaches calling from across the country.

Despite the attention, Mathews stayed true to his commitment to Coach Hill. A classic downhill runner with a blend of power and speed, Mathews broke out as a junior at Fresno State, rushing for a school-record and NCAA-leading 1,808 yards and 19 touchdowns. He tallied 17 runs of at least 20 yards and enjoyed some of his best days against the nation's top defenses, including a 234-yard, three-touchdown performance against Boise State. Mathews became the only player in the nation to rush for more than 100 yards against three Top-25 teams in 2009, doing so against No. 5 Cincinnati, No. 6 Boise St. and No. 14 Wisconsin.

Eager to make amends for his mother's sacrifices and his own misdeeds, Mathews applied for early entry to the 2010 NFL Draft. Ironically, one of his childhood heroes was LaDainian Tomlinson and Mathews secretly hoped to be drafted by the Chargers. Unbeknownst, the Chargers were so smitten with Mathews that they traded up 16 spots to select him with the 12th overall pick in the first round. And coincidentally, he became the first running back selected by the Chargers in the first round since Tomlinson in 2001.

Mathews and his mom now oversee the Trish and Ryan Mathews Door of Hope Chest Foundation. They have partnered with the Salvation Army and assist homeless women and children transition to independent living. Mathews serves as a spokesperson for the Chargers-Kaiser Permanente Bolts to the Q, a 5k run whose proceeds go toward the Salvation Army Door of Hope Chest.

Mathews is also working with Shock Doctor, a company that specializes in football protection products. Mathews serves as an ambassador and product development advisor.

In his free time, Mathews is a big video gamer. One of his favorite games is World of Warcraft. Last January, Mathews received an invitation to visit Blizzard Entertainment's headquarters in Irvine, Calif. to tour the facilities and meet the game's development team.

In addition to his passion for video games, Mathews enjoys spending time with his two dogs, Goose and Maverick, and watching Quentin Tarantino films. A freakishly talented wakeboarder, Mathews also likes to spend time on the water at the wheel of his MasterCraft ski boat.

33 LE'RON McCLAIN

Fullback
6-0, 260
7th NFL Season
2nd with Chargers

UFA (Kansas City) - '12
Alabama
Tuscaloosa County HS
Northport, Ala.

Tough and dependable, Le'Ron McClain gave the Chargers a little bit of everything after signing a three-year contract in 2012. A two-time All-Pro, McClain helped pave the way for a 1,461-yard season from the team's running backs.

In six NFL seasons, the Alabama native has missed only one game during his career due to injury and he hasn't had a fumble in the last four seasons (2009-12). McClain carried only 14 times last season but he has proven he can shoulder a bigger load, having rushed for career highs of 902 yards and 10 touchdowns for Baltimore in 2008.

McClain maintains close ties to his native state and in 2011 when an EF4 tornado touched down in Tuscaloosa, he became one of the area's leading philanthropists.

McClain has been an active community participant since entering the NFL. In 2007, he created the Learning Minds Foundation, which emphasizes smart work, self-discipline, focus, teamwork and respect. One element of the Foundation is an All-Star Football Camp that he hosts annually in his hometown of Northport. In 2009, McClain served as a spokesperson for KaBOOM!, a nonprofit that aims to provide accessible playgrounds for children across America. In recognition of his efforts in the community, the Baltimore Orioles invited McClain to throw out the first pitch before a game against the Texas Rangers in April 2009.

McClain is also the CEO for I.E. Entertainment, a production company that specializes in hosting charity events. And he's the creator and host of the "Beyond the Jersey," a reality show about the budding NFL superstar.

In 2012, McClain returned to school at the University of Alabama to complete his classwork in Human Environmental Services. He received his diploma, walking with classmates during graduation ceremonies in May.

McClain has a daughter named Alex. His hobbies include basketball, fishing, movies, reading and shopping. His younger brother, Ronday is a starting running back at Concordia (Ala.) College. He'll be a senior in 2013.

12 ROBERT MEACHEM

Wide Receiver
6-2, 215
7th NFL Season
2nd with Chargers

UFA (New Orleans) - '12
Tennessee
Washington HS
Tulsa, Okla.

Robert Meachem is looking forward to 2013. He came to San Diego in 2012 from New Orleans, where he was a first-round pick in 2007 and a Super Bowl champion with the Saints following the 2009 season. He has an impressive resume that includes 155 career catches, 2,476 yards (16.0 avg.) and 25 touchdowns.

Meachem was raised in Tulsa, Okla., where he owns an 8.5-acre farm that his grandfather, Leon, passed down to Robert when he was born. Meachem learned to ride horses and rope calves before he turned six and it provided a safe haven from Tulsa's notoriously violent streets. Meachem's dad, Robert, was an accomplished calf roper himself and they traveled to rodeos in California, Nevada, Texas and Louisiana. Meachem's very first horse was named "Little Man."

Meachem's other love was basketball. When his father built a regulation-height basket on their farm, Meachem would shoot baskets from the back of his horse. As an eighth grader, he led his AAU team to a national title and in the ninth grade, he faced a team that featured LeBron James and dunked over the Miami Heat star early in the contest. His success on the hardwood continued as he led Tulsa's Booker T. Washington High School to back-to-back state titles following the 2001 and '02 seasons. Meachem still plays basketball during the offseason and he has a vast collection of more than 100 pairs of Air Jordan sneakers.

Football, however, was Meachem's ticket to success. A Parade All-America as a prep, he blossomed into a collegiate All-American at Tennessee and opted to leave school after his junior season.

Meachem has a spiritual side. It comes from his late sister, Tammie, who was 12 years older and helped raise him as a child. She taught him about tough love and helped him develop into a young man. Tammie suffered from severe asthma and a non-related skin disease and passed when Meachem was just in seventh grade.

Meachem and his wife, Shea, have three daughters, Adrianna, Ryli and Harlan. The family has been very active in the community, hosting Christmas toy drives in New Orleans while also running the Follow Your Dreams Foundation, whose mission is to help youth get involved in community activities and to help provide them with avenues to participate in sports, music lessons and cultural activities. Meachem awards college scholarships and he hosts a football camp in Tulsa that is only open to kids who participate in his Read 60 Program, a literacy program that encourages young people ages 8-18 to take 60 minutes each day to read.

One of Meachem's distant cousins is former Chargers wide receiver and kick returner, Eric Metcalf.

His hobbies include traveling and going to the movies.

60 DAVID MOLK

Center
6-1, 300
2nd NFL Season
2nd with Chargers

Draft 7A – '12
Michigan
Lemont Township HS
Lemont, Ill.

While most of the playing time during his rookie season was spent on special teams, Molk gained valuable experience working with Pro Bowl center Nick Hardwick both on the practice field and in meetings.

Molk joined the Chargers from the University of Michigan where he won the 2011 Rimington Award as the nation's best center. He was a finalist for the Rimington Award in 2010, a consensus first-team All-America in '11 and a first-team All-Big Ten pick his final two seasons in Ann Arbor. When Molk did win the Rimington Award, he became only the second Wolverines player to win the award and he was the school's first outright winner.

At Michigan, Molk became a starter during his redshirt freshman year and he didn't miss a start until his final collegiate game. During warmups for the 2012 Sugar Bowl, Molk felt a pop in his foot and coaches opted to sit the fifth-year senior. As he watched the offense struggle on the first series due in part to a couple of errant snaps, Molk put himself into the game for the second series and he didn't miss a snap the rest of the way as the Wolverines rallied for a 23-20 win over Virginia Tech.

Molk, who was a three-time Athlete of the Year by the National Strength and Conditioning Association, drew raves at the '12 NFL Combine after posting the most bench-press reps among centers at 225 pounds (41).

Molk is a special talent who plays football and lives life with a never-say-die attitude. It's a mantra that came from losing his mom, Gail, to breast cancer when he was just in the seventh grade. She had battled cancer for 12 years and in its final stages it had reached her brain. Before her passing though, Molk scored a touchdown during the final game she ever saw him play and after crossing the goal line, he ran right from the end zone to her seat above the field and presented her with the ball. Today that same ball still sits in the living room of the Molk family home in Lemont, Ill.

Draft 2B - '11
Michigan
Venice HS
Los Angeles, Calif.

For nearly two years, Jonas Mouton was chomping at the bit to take the field. He finally got his chance late in 2012 and played in three of the team's final five games.

An inside linebacker, Mouton was the second of the team's two second-round picks in 2011. A promising training camp and first preseason though was derailed when a shoulder injury sent Mouton to the "Reserve-Injured" list. Behind his teammates in practice and experience, Mouton patiently waited for his opportunity and he made his long-awaited NFL debut last December against Cincinnati.

Prior to his being drafted, Mouton was the Big Ten Conference's top tackler (117) as a fifth-year senior at Michigan in 2010. He recorded an impressive 264 total tackles as a three-year starter for the Wolverines and the Los Angeles native was a second-team All-Big Ten choice in 2010, also receiving the Wolverines' Roger Zatkoff Award as the team's top linebacker.

Mouton came from Venice High School, where he was one of school's best-ever players. On the first snap of his first-ever high school game, Mouton knocked out a player from rival Carson High. And in college he was given the nickname "The Assassin" after several of the Wolverines' foes met a similar fate.

9 NICK NOVAK

Kicker
6-0, 198
6th NFL Season
4th with Chargers

Free Agent - '12
Maryland
Albemarle HS
Charlottesville, Va.

The trials and tribulations of Nick Novak's NFL career are the kind that would discourage most, but the San Diego native has an intense desire to succeed and he's become a shining star for the Chargers. His dedication and perseverance were rewarded this March when the Chargers signed the hometown kid to a new four-year contract that will keep him in San Diego through 2016.

Novak originally linked up with the Chargers in 2010. It was a chance for a fresh start. In 2009, with no opportunities to kick for a team and the country mired in a financial crisis, Novak spent the year at his alma mater, the University of Maryland, cold-calling alumni looking for donations. Though he ended up losing a close training camp competition to Nate Kaeding, the NFL's most-accurate kicker of all-time, his stint with the Chargers put him back on football's radar screen. The Chargers had been the sixth team Novak had spent time with after brief stints in Chicago, Dallas, Washington, Arizona and Kansas City. After the Chargers let him go, Novak caught on with the Florida Tuskers of the fledgling UFL. It was a positive career move. He hit 15 of 18 field goals for the Tuskers and was named the league's Special Teams MVP. Later that same season, the Chargers actually attempted to re-sign Novak after Kaeding suffered a groin injury, but the UFL's rules and stipulations prevented the Bolts from doing so. In 2011, a seventh team—the New York Jets—signed him, but again he lost a close competition, this time to veteran Nick Folk.

Disappointed, Novak returned to San Diego to live and train. He happened to be having lunch with former NFL kicker Michael Husted the day of the Chargers' 2011 season opener against Minnesota when Kaeding injured his knee on the game's opening kickoff. Just days later, Novak got the call he long waited for. The Chargers called and wanted to sign him as the team's replacement for Kaeding.

Novak went on to enjoy a storybook season for the Chargers. A career 63.3-percent field goal kicker prior to 2011, he made his first 12 field goals for the Bolts, including two in a three-point win over Kansas City, four in a 10-point win over Miami and five in a five-point win at Denver that included a then career-long 51-yarder and a clutch 35 yarder with just 24 seconds left in the fourth quarter. Novak finished the season making 27 of 34, while setting team records for field goals of 40 (12) and 50 (4) yards or longer.

The 2012 season was a virtual instant replay for Novak. Healthy, Kaeding returned to the roster and edged out Novak in another close training camp battle. It was so close in fact that some thought Novak might have won the job after hitting a game-winning 45-yard field goal as time expired in the team's third preseason game at Minnesota.

Again Novak was disappointed at his release, but he continued to train. Then just two days before the Chargers' fourth game of the 2012 season, Kaeding injured his groin in practice and within a couple hours, Novak had returned to Chargers Park, signed a contract and boarded a plane to fly with the team to Kansas City. Two days later inside Arrowhead Stadium, Novak went 3-for-3 on field goal tries, hitting from 24, 47 and 45 yards, and he helped the Bolts to a 37-20 win and a 3-1 start to the season.

Within weeks of Novak's re-joining the team, the Chargers released Kaeding and officially handed him the job. He responded by going 18-of-20 for the season, including a perfect 18-18 from inside 50 yards. His 90-percent conversion rate was the third-highest for a season in team history. Novak also helped the Chargers rank among the league leaders in drive starts following kickoffs. Opponents began their drives at the 20.4-yard line, third best in the NFL, as 22 of his 62 kickoffs went for touchbacks.

Novak is one of the team's most active community participants. He regularly visits area schools to speak on important topics, including bullying. He's hosted free kicking clinics. In 2011, he lent his name and his right leg to the American Cancer Society in honor of a family friend, Annie Arth, who died of ovarian and breast cancer in 2005, Novak helped raise more than $7,500 for ACS, contributing $100 for every made field goal, a total that was matched by both the Chargers and his agent. Last season, Novak steered his financial contributions toward the Chloe Nichols Foundation, which provides college scholarships for students involved in creative arts, while also bringing attention to the serious medical warnings and possible side effects of prescription drugs.

Novak was born in San Diego, which makes his story even more fascinating. He lived here until he was 13, when his parents relocated to work at the University of Virginia. One of Novak's close friends growing up was Kellen Winslow, Jr., son of the Chargers' Hall of Fame tight end by the same name. The two share the same godmother.

Novak went to the University of Maryland after a stellar high school football and soccer career in Virginia. He was a scholar-athlete for the Terrapins and twice beat Philip Rivers and North Carolina State with late fourth-quarter kicks.

In 2011, Novak participated in the NFL Business Management and Entrepreneurial Program at the Harvard Business School.

Novak's mom, Julie, a nurse at the Health Science Center at the University of Texas-San Antonio, was recently inducted into the American Academy of Nursing. His dad, Bob, also works in healthcare as an audiologist, working with wounded veterans.

74 RICH OHRNBERGER

Center-Guard
6-2, 300
5th NFL Season
1st with Chargers

UFA (Arizona) - '13
Penn State
East Meadow HS
East Meadow, N.Y.

The Chargers added an experienced center and guard to their rotation when they inked Ohrnberger, a former Arizona Cardinal, to a one-year deal in March.

The 6-2, 300-pounder from Penn State has played in 18 career games and started four. He was drafted by the New England Patriots in the fourth round of the 2009 NFL Draft following a collegiate career during which he was a two-time All-Big Ten choice and a third-team All-America selection as a senior. Ohrnberger played in five games his first two seasons with the Patriots, seeing limited time at right guard and on special teams. He spent the 2011 season on Reserve-Injured with the Patriots due to a head injury and was released in February 2012. He signed with Arizona on Aug. 1, 2012 and played in 13 games, making two starts at both right guard and center. He suffered a knee injury on Dec. 9 against Seattle and was again placed on Reserve-Injured on Dec. 10.

Ohrnberger's reputation for comedy and off-color humor dates back to his college days at Penn State. He has become somewhat of a cult figure on twitter for his off-color tweets and is followed by more than 26,000 fans on the social media site @ohrnberger. While at Penn State, Ohrnberger once impersonated a teammate during a media conference call and he performed a live stand-up comedy routine at the Hollywood Improv during team activities leading up to the Nittany Lions appearance in the 2009 Rose Bowl.

26 JOHNNY PATRICK

Cornerback
5-11, 190
3rd NFL Season
1st with Chargers

W (New Orleans) - '13
Louisville
DeLand HS
DeLand, Fla.

The Chargers claimed former New Orleans Saints cornerback Johnny Patrick off waivers in late February.

A third-round pick of the Saints in 2011, Patrick played in nine games as a rookie and 14 games last season.

The 24-year-old Patrick is a native of DeLand, Florida. Besides football, he played basketball and ran track as a prep, posting the district's fastest times in the 100 and 200 meter sprints. He signed with the University of Louisville as a wide receiver, but after a slow start to his college career, he switched to cornerback and in his first start as a true freshman against North Carolina State, Patrick recorded an interception against the Wolfpack.

Patrick spent the remainder of his Louisville career on defense, earning first-team All-Big East honors as a senior. He went on to finish his career with 171 tackles, 22 passes defensed, nine interceptions and two blocked field goals. More importantly, he earned his degree in justice administration, becoming his family's first college graduate. Patrick also continued his track and field career at Louisville, competing as a sprinter during his freshman and sophomore seasons.

Patrick credits a lot of his success in life to his father, Johnnie, who basically raised him as a single parent.

In his free time, Patrick enjoys fishing, bowling, watching movies and playing video games.

UFA (Dallas) - '13
Virginia
Bath County HS
Hot Springs, Va.

In March, the Chargers signed former Dallas Cowboys tight end John Phillips to a three-year deal.

Phillips is a 6-5, 251-pounder who can do all things required of the tight end, block and catch the football, as well as contribute on special teams. In four seasons with the Cowboys, he caught 30 passes for 218 yards and a pair of touchdowns, while racking up 22 tackles on special teams.

Phillips is a native of Hot Springs, Virginia, a small-town in the middle of the Allegheny Mountains, about 200 miles southwest of Washington D.C. Hot Springs doesn't have a stoplight and Phillips grew up enjoying hunting and fishing in its rural environment. He's hunted since childhood, pursuing everything from deer, turkey, bobcats and even bears. He also enjoys fly fishing in the rivers of Bath County and bass fishing from his cousin's boat.

One of Phillips' closest friends is St. Louis Rams defensive end Chris Long, who was the No. 2 overall selection in the 2008 NFL Draft. In college, Phillips and Long shared a house with retired New York Giant Chris Swinton, New England's Rasi Dowling and Chicago's Nate Collins.

Draft 2 – '12
Connecticut
Nashua North HS
Nashua, N.H.

If the Chargers handed out a rookie of the year award in 2012, it likely would have gone to Kendall Reyes, the team's second-round pick in the 2012 NFL Draft. The defensive lineman from the University of Connecticut and tiny Nashua North High School in New Hampshire exceeded expectations in his first professional season.

Reyes led the Chargers' defensive line with 19 quarterback pressures and 15 quarterback hits, and he finished the year third on the team with 5.5 sacks and nine tackles for loss. He recorded his first two NFL sacks against future Hall of Fame quarterback Peyton Manning and on Dec. 23 during a road win against the New York Jets, racked up 3.5 sacks, the most by a Chargers rookie in 26 years. Reyes closed out his initial campaign by earning All-Rookie honors from ESPN.com.

To those in Reyes' hometown, his success came as little surprise. As a prep, however, Reyes was a 220-pound wide receiver and not the 300-pound defensive end that he morphed into as a pro. In high school, he scored the first touchdown in his school's history on an 85-yard kickoff return. He also excelled on the hardwood, starting at power forward for the school's basketball team and he was one of state's premier track and field performers. It led him to Connecticut where Reyes added 80 pounds to his wide receiver's frame and became an All-Big East defensive end who is so athletic that he can complete a running backflip. And when the Chargers drafted him with the 49th overall pick in the 2012 NFL Draft, Reyes became Nashua North High School's first NFL draft pick and the first player from Nashua to be drafted since the Cincinnati Bengals selected tackle Herb Webster in the fifth round of the 1988 NFL Draft.

Reyes still spends quite a bit of time in Nashua during the offseason. In March, the Boys and Girls Club of Greater Nashua inducted him into its Hall of Fame. Reyes spent much of his time as a youth at the Club, where he sharpened his athletic and academic skills. Now he works with the Club to help develop initiatives for today's youth. A former class president at Nashua North High, Reyes also spends time at his alma mater talking to student-athletes about education and being good community citizens.

78 CHAD RINEHART

Guard
6-5, 321
6th NFL Season
1st with Chargers

UFA (Buffalo) - '13
Northern Iowa
Boone HS
Boone, Iowa

When free agency dawned in March 2013, the Chargers wasted little time in bolstering their offensive line with the signing of a veteran player who can line up at either guard spot. The Chargers got just that player in Rinehart, who will play for his former position coaches in Buffalo: offensive line coaches Joe D'Alessandris and Andrew Dees.

Rinehart was limited to seven games and two starts for the Bills in 2012 due to an ankle injury that landed him on the "Reserve-Injured" list, but in 2011 he played in all 16 games, making eight starts at right guard and four at left guard. During that '11 season, Buffalo's offensive line allowed a league-low 23 sacks (third-fewest in team history) and the team's 4.9 rush average was the league's fifth-best and tops in the AFC.

Coming out of college at Northern Iowa, Rinehart was one of the nation's most highly-touted players. He was from the small town of Boone, Iowa (pop. 12,000) and he fit the mold of the stereotypical corn-fed midwestern offensive lineman. Rinehart actually worked on a corn farm as a youth, baling hay and detasseling corn. The son of a truck driver father and school teacher mother, Rinehart was being sought by the Naval Academy, but he instead enrolled at Northern Iowa as a 6-foot-5, 300-pound offensive lineman. He had a stellar career for the Panthers, posting a career blocking consistency grade that was the highest of any NCAA Division I-AA player over the previous 15 years. He earned All-America and all-conference honors and was a finalist for the Draddy Award, which goes annually to the nation's top scholar-athlete and community citizen.

Rinehart is still a popular figure in his native Iowa. He's remained active in the community, supporting both the YMCA and the Boone Chamber of Commerce.

17 PHILIP RIVERS

Quarterback
6-5, 228
10th NFL Season
10th with Chargers

Trade (New York Giants) - '04
North Carolina State
Athens HS
Athens, Ala.

The most accurate and proficient quarterback in franchise history, Philip Rivers is looking forward to playing for new Head Coach Mike McCoy, Offensive Coordinator Ken Whisenhunt and Quarterbacks Coach Frank Reich in 2013. It will be his 10th season with the San Diego Chargers and his eighth as the team's starting quarterback.

A four-time Pro Bowl pick and a four-time team MVP, Rivers is the Chargers' franchise leader in completion percentage (63.6) and passer rating (94.5). He threw for 3,606 yards and 26 touchdowns in 2012, extending his team-record streaks of 3,500-yard passing seasons and 25 touchdown seasons to five. Only five quarterbacks in NFL history can claim five or more consecutive seasons with at least 25 touchdown passes, including Peyton Manning (1998-2010), Brett Favre (1994-98), Dan Marino (1984-88), Drew Brees (2006-12) and Aaron Rodgers (2008-12). Rivers also passed John Hadl's career yardage total during the season to become the second-most prolific passer in team history.

Rivers enters the 2013 season with 27,891 career passing yards, 189 touchdowns and a 94.5 career passer rating. As he nears 30,000 yards and 200 touchdowns, only 34 quarterbacks in NFL history have thrown for more than 30,000 yards, only 33 have thrown more than 200 touchdown passes and his passer rating ranks sixth in NFL history among quarterbacks with at least 1,500 attempts.

In seven seasons as the team's starting quarterback, Rivers has led the Chargers to four AFC West titles, three second-place finishes, a record of 70-42 (.625) as a starter (regular-season), a 30-12 (.714) mark in AFC West games and a 40-16 (.714) ledger at Qualcomm Stadium.

Rivers' knack for strong finishes came to the forefront again in 2012 as he led the Chargers to December road wins over the Pittsburgh Steelers and New York Jets. The NFL's second-highest rated passer in December/January (98.6) with a 61-to-19 touchdown-to-interception ratio, including eight touchdowns and only one interception in 2012, Rivers improved his record in those months to 29-5. Only Green Bay's Aaron Rodgers has a better Dec./Jan. passer rating than Rivers (105.9). Rivers also maintained his position as one of the NFL's top quarterbacks for the second half of the season. His 96.7 passer rating in Weeks 9-16 is third all-time and his record after Nov. 1 is 45-17 (.726).

Besides his wife Tiffany and the couples' six children (four girls and two boys), Rivers main devotion has been geared toward helping to find permanent, loving homes for foster kids. In 2011, he was named one of three finalists for the prestigious Walter Payton NFL Man of the Year Award for his work with the Rivers of Hope Foundation, an endeavor he and Tiffany oversaw from 2010-12 to help unwanted, abandoned and orphaned children. The Foundation raised more than $1,000,000 for the cause through football camps, a 5K Fun Run and personal contributions from Rivers. The Foundation also supported the San Pasqual Academy, a residential education campus designed specifically for foster teens.

Rivers originally came to the Chargers in 2004 in a blockbuster trade with the New York Giants. Less than an hour after the Bolts selected Eli Manning with the No. 1 pick in the '04 NFL Draft, Manning was on his way to the Big Apple in exchange for Rivers and a slew of draft picks. Rivers spent the majority of his first two years on the sidelines behind Drew Brees, taking the reigns in 2006. His first campaign was memorable as Rivers was voted to the Pro Bowl after leading the Chargers to a team-record 14 wins, including 10-straight to close out the season. The Chargers finished undefeated at home for the first time in team history and the '06 squad scored a team-record 492 points. During the season, Rivers became the first quarterback in NFL history to rally a team from 17-point deficits in consecutive weeks. During those two wins at Cincinnati and Denver, Rivers led 19-straight scoring drives that ended in touchdowns, a team record and the fifth-longest streak in NFL history. Rivers finished the year as the NFL leader in passer rating during the fourth quarter (116.6) and the third and fourth quarters combined (99.3).

In Rivers' second season as a starter (2007), he led the Chargers to the AFC Championship Game. The Chargers took an eight-game win streak into the title game and Rivers' toughness, both mental and physical, was put on full display in the final weeks of the regular season and the playoffs. During a December victory at Tennessee, Rivers had to leave the game after spraining his knee in the first half. He returned in the second half and led the Chargers to a come-from-behind victory in overtime. He continued to play and fought through the final month of the season in severe pain. A different knee injury sent him to the sideline during the Bolts' Divisional Playoff game in Indianapolis and after backup Billy Volek led the Chargers to an improbable win over the Colts, Rivers had arthroscopic surgery to repair a torn ACL on Monday and just six days later he started and took every snap on a frigid day in the AFC Championship Game at New England.

In 2008, Rivers threw a team record 34 touchdown passes, tied with Brees for most in the NFL. He recorded his first 4,000-yard season led the league with a passer rating of 105.5, also a team record, while joining Brees as the only Chargers quarterbacks to post a season rating of 100.0 or higher. Rivers posted the NFL's second-highest passer rating on third downs (110.7) and in the fourth quarter (111.7), throwing an NFL-best 15 touchdown passes on third down while leading the Chargers to an NFL-best 152 points in the fourth quarter. He logged six 300-yard games, the most since Fouts had seven in 1985, including back-to-back games, something not done by a Chargers quarterback since 1991. And Rivers capped off 2008 with a sensational December, leading the Chargers to the playoffs

Rivers visits the Vatican

This May, the entire Rivers family took a trip to Rome during a break from the team's offseason program. While there, the family had an opportunity to visit the Vatican where Rivers' youngest son, Peter, was blessed by Pope Francis himself.

with a 4-0 mark to improve his career record in December to 14-0. Rivers completed 80 of 121 (.661) for 1,054 yards, 11 touchdowns and just one interception. His passer rating for the month, a lofty 120.3, was second in the NFL.

The 2009 season saw Rivers selected to the Chargers' 50th Anniversary All-Time Team. He threw for 4,254 yards, tossed 28 touchdown passes and posted a rating of 104.4. He was one of only five QBs in '09 to pass for more than 4,000 yards, throw 25 or more touchdowns and record a season passer rating higher than 100.0. Four times — tied with Brett Favre for most in the NFL — Rivers posted a single-game passer rating of 130.0 or better. During an 11-game win streak to close out the regular season, Rivers completed 69.0% of his passes and posted a rating of 112.0. He threw 21 touchdown passes and only six interceptions and his cumulative passer rating during those 11 weeks was the highest in the NFL.

In 2010, Rivers threw for a career-high and NFL-leading 4,710 yards. It was the 10th-most yards for a single season in NFL history and third-most in team history. He posted a career-high six 300-yard games, including a team-record 455-yard performance in Seattle. The 4,000-yard season was his third-straight, tying Fouts for the most in team history. By the midpoint of the '10 season, Rivers had thrown for 2,649 yards, an NFL record for the first eight games of a season, breaking yet another mark which Fouts (2,580) had set in 1982. Rivers completed an NFL-leading 66 passes of at least 20 yards, 12 of which went for touchdowns, second-most in the NFL. Rivers ranked second in the NFL in passer rating (101.8), capping a 2008-10 stretch in which he was the only quarterback in the league to post a season passer rating over 100 each season. He joined Steve Young and Peyton Manning as the only passers ever to post a rating of 100.0-or-higher for three straight years. Rivers' rating was bolstered team single-season record 66.0% completion percentage. Rivers also threw 30 touchdown passes to become the first quarterback in team history with 25 or more in three-straight seasons. It included a team-record stretch of 23 straight games with a touchdown pass, surpassing the previous mark of 20-straight set by Fouts during the 1979-80 seasons. Amidst that streak was a pair of four-TD efforts in consecutive games against Houston and Denver, something that only Fouts (1985) and Brees (2004) had previously done for the Chargers. Eleven different players caught touchdown passes from Rivers in 2010, most in team history for a non-strike season.

The 2011 season saw Rivers complete a team-record 366 passes and threw for 4,624 yards. He joined Dan Marino (1980-81), Warren Moon (1990-91), Manning (2009-10) and Brees (2010-11) as the only players in NFL history with back-to-back 4,500-yard passing seasons. And he joined Manning (1999-04 and 2006-10) and Brees (2006-11) as the only quarterbacks with at least four-straight 4,000-yard seasons. Demonstrating great peripheral vision and field awareness, four players had at least 50 catches for the Chargers in 2011, something that had only been done two other times in team history (1984 and '05). Late in the season, Rivers assembled a career-long string of 170 passes without an interception, easily surpassing his previous best of 143.

Rivers grew up in Decatur, Alabama. His dad, Steve, a former linebacker at Mississippi State, was the head football coach at Decatur High School and Philip was a water boy for the team. Shortly before Philip was set to enroll at Decatur, Steve took the head coaching job at nearby Athens HS and Philip followed. He played linebacker as a sophomore and moved to quarterback as a junior. After graduation, he enrolled at North Carolina State where he led the Wolfpack to four bowl games and a 34-17 record, including 3-1 in bowl games. A five-time MVP in Bowl games, including the 2004 Senior Bowl, Rivers is still the Wolfpack's all-time leader for career passing yards (13,484), attempts (1,710), completions (1,087), touchdowns (95), completion percentage (63.6%), and 300 (19) and 400-yard games (seven). His passing yardage total still ranks seventh all-time among Division-I quarterbacks.

The latest Rivers prodigy, Philip's younger brother, Stephen, is a redshirt sophomore quarterback at LSU. He wears the same No. 17 that Philip wears in San Diego.

11 EDDIE ROYAL

Wide Receiver-Kick Returner
5-10, 185
6th NFL Season
2nd with Chargers

UFA (Denver) - '12
Virginia Tech
Westfield HS
Chantilly, Va.

Eddie Royal will be reunited in 2013 with new Chargers Head Coach Mike McCoy, his former offensive coordinator in Denver.

Royal joined the Chargers as a free agent in 2012, ready to contribute as a slot receiver while handling the team's punt return responsibilities. But a series of setbacks hampered the beginning of his career in San Diego. Royal suffered a groin injury during the first day of training camp and shortly thereafter, his mom fell ill and he found himself making several trips home to Virginia to be by her side.

Despite the slow start in San Diego, Royal finished the year strong and he's confident that a healthy season awaits and that he will have an opportunity to display his game-changing talents for Chargers fans in 2013.

Compactly built at 5-10 and 185 pounds, Royal opened eyes at the NFL Combine in 2008 when he bench-pressed 225 pounds 24 times, most among all receivers. The Broncos made him a second round pick that year and he immediately let his presence be felt, racking up nine catches for 146 yards and a touchdown in his NFL debut against the Oakland Raiders. When the '08 season concluded, Royal earned All-Rookie honors from both Pro Football Weekly and the Professional Football Writers of America, as well as The Sporting News after a season in which he posted the second-most catches by an NFL rookie, totaling 91 catches for 980 yards and five touchdowns. Royal also set Broncos rookie records in all three categories, he led all NFL rookies in those categories, and he became the league's first player since the NFL merger in 1970 to record his team's longest run, reception, kickoff return and punt return in the same season.

Royal's sister, Capt. Christina Royal, is a graduate of the Virginia Tech Corps of Cadets and she is currently a special agent in the United States Air Force's Office of Special Investigations. She was the first-ever female regimental commander and the first-ever African-American regimental commander for the Corps of Cadets, where she was in charge of all the cadets at the school. Royal's brother, Chris, played defensive back at Marshall University from 2002-05 and he later played in the Arena Football and AF2 Leagues. In 2007, Chris was the 2007 Spalding Rookie of the Year for the Wilkes-Barre/Scranton Pioneers of AF2. Currently, he is a graduate assistant coach at Marshall.

Royal enjoys boxing as a means of staying in shape for the rigors of football. He also enjoys bowling, shooting pool, playing golf and basketball, and going to the movies.

72 STEPHEN SCHILLING

Guard-Tackle
6-5, 312
2nd NFL Season
3rd with Chargers

Free Agent - '12
Michigan
Bellevue HS
Bellevue, Wash.

A former sixth-round draft pick, Schilling is back for a third-season with the Bolts after re-joining the team late in the 2012 season.

As a rookie in 2011, Schilling began his career on the practice squad, however, late in the season with injuries mounting on the offensive line, he was signed to the active roster. The former honorable mention All-Big Ten choice from Michigan started two games at guard in late-November, including his first-ever start at historic Soldier Field.

Last season Schilling was waived by the Bolts at the end of training camp, but he kept active and stayed in shape. Then in December when injuries again took their toll on the line, the Bolts dialed Schilling's number and he returned to play in two of the team's final four games.

Schilling was a four-year starter at Michigan. He played both right tackle and left guard and was a three-time winner of the Hugh R. Rader Jr. Memorial Award as the Wolverines' top offensive lineman. Schilling redshirted as a true freshman in 2006 and then went on to start 49 games over the next four seasons.

Schilling's girlfriend, Katie, played soccer at Michigan and is a graduate of the University's law school.

Schilling enjoys golf, movies and listening to music.

5 MIKE SCIFRES

Punter
6-2, 215
11th NFL Season
11th with Chargers

Draft 5 - '03
Western Illinois
Destrehan HS
Destrehan, La.

Mike Scifres (SIGH-fres) boomed his way into the Chargers' record books in 2012. Already the team's record-holder for career punting average (45.3), Scifres was voted the team's Special Teams Player of the Year last season after setting a new team record with an average of 48.3 yards per punt, a mark that shattered the previous high of 46.7, which he set back in 2010. And thanks to the Chargers' outstanding coverage units, Scifres posted a 40.6-yard net average in 2012, second in the franchise's 53-year history.

Scifres also maintained his grip as the NFL's most accurate punter of all time. In 2012, he dropped 30 of 81 punts inside the 20 (37.0%) and heads into 2013 as the most accurate of all-time among punters with at least 500 career attempts, landing 227 of 573 (39.6%) inside the 20.

Scifres was drafted by the Chargers in 2003 at the recommendation of Kyle Smith, the son of former Chargers General Manager A.J. Smith. As a freshman at Youngstown State, Smith had returned punts against Scifres, who played for Missouri Valley Conference foe, Western Illinois. He spent his first season learning behind Chargers Hall of Fame punter Darren Bennett and then took over full-time punting duties in 2004. Since then, Scifres has become a member of the Chargers' 50th Anniversary All-Time Team, a six-time Pro Bowl alternate (2004-09) and a two-time Chargers Special Teams Player of the Year. To put his career into historical context, Scifres has punted 573 times and among punters with at least that many attempts, his gross average (45.3) ranks fourth and his net average (38.5) ranks fifth. Complete punting statistics that include opponent returns and touchbacks only date to 1976, but since those statistics have been kept, Scifres' 244 returns against are the second-fewest and his 52 touchbacks are the third-fewest.

Scifres, who has punted in eight playoff games during his career, enjoyed his breakout moment during a 2007 divisional playoff win in Indianapolis that sent the Chargers to the AFC Championship Game in New England. He set a team postseason record against the Colts by averaging 59.0 yards per punt, including a postseason team-record 66-yarder with the Bolts backed up at their own 14-yard line and only 1:42 left in the fourth quarter. Kicking from his own goal line, the Colts fielded Scifres' punt all the way back at their own 20, and his effort lit a fire on the Chargers' sideline. San Diego's defense then promptly went out and ended the Colts' season on downs four plays later, sending the Chargers on to the title game.

Scifres' upswing continued into 2008 as he set a team record and ranked third in the league with a 40.9-yard net average. He and the Chargers' coverage teams allowed zero or negative punt return yards in seven of 16 games and Scifres had only five touchbacks in 51 punts (9.8%) for the entire season. He landed 19 of 51 (37.3%) inside the 20. Among players with 40-or-more punts, only two allowed fewer than Scifres' 146 return yards, and only five teams had more than 15 punt return yards against the Chargers all season.

Scifres' outstanding season carried into the playoffs where he enjoyed a record-breaking night in an AFC Wild Card Playoff win over the Colts. He landed all six of his punts inside the 20, the highest number and percentage of punts ever landed inside the 20 during a playoff game, and averaged a playoff-record 51.7 net yards per punt as the Colts managed just six punt return yards for the entire game. The Colts were forced to start drives at their own 10, 19, 3, 7, 9 and 1-yard lines following punts and his last punt may have been his best as it rolled out of bounds at the one-yard line and set the stage for the Chargers to make a late fourth-quarter comeback.

The 2011 season was another that turned out to be memorable for Scifres. Just days before the regular season began, the team signed him to a five-year contract extension that will run through the 2016 season. When he put pen to paper though, little did Scifres realize that within a few days, his workload would also include kickoffs, field goals and point after tries. That happened in the '11 season opener against Minnesota after Nate Kaeding suffered a season-ending knee injury on the opening kickoff of the season. Scifres, who on paper always had been the team's backup kicker but had never actually been called upon to do so, coolly responded by hitting three extra points and a game-tying 40-yard field goal early in the fourth quarter en route to a 24-17 victory. It was his first made field goal in a live game since his sophomore year in college when he kicked a 56-yard game-winner in overtime against Northern Iowa for a conference title.

Beyond his heroics in Week 1, Scifres posted some eye-popping numbers in 2011. He averaged 47.5 yards per punt and fell just three attempts shy of qualifying for the team's single-season record (min. 50). Scifres punted 47 times in '11, he finished the year ranked sixth in the NFL in gross punting average and had only two touchbacks, tying his career low.

A native of Destrehan, La., one of Scifres' prep teammates was Baltimore Ravens' safety Ed Reed. When the two were high school teammates, Reed was actually the superior punter and as a result, Scifres was relegated to kickoffs, field goals and extra points. The two have remained good friends and today look back and laugh at their high school exploits.

Scifres' hobbies include golf, weightlifting and Pilates. He and his wife, Stacie, have twin daughters Berkeley and Bristyn, and a son, Brodyn.

51 D.J. SMITH

Inside Linebacker
6-0, 239
3rd NFL Season
1st with Chargers

Waivers (Green Bay) - '13
Appalachian State
Independence HS
Charlotte, N.C.

In late April, the Chargers added a promising young defender to their linebacking corps when they claimed Smith off waivers from the Green Bay Packers.

A sixth-round pick by the Packers in 2011, Smith was the only member of their rookie class to appear in all 16 games. Last season Smith moved into the Packers' starting lineup for the first six games of the season after starter Desmond Bishop suffered a hamstring injury in the 2012 preseason opener in San Diego. Smith collected 42 tackles and two sacks in the Packers' first six games, but he suffered a serious knee injury Week 6 at Houston and spent the remainder of the season on "Reserve-Injured."

Considered undersized by many at 5-foot-11, Smith was overlooked by most Division I schools coming out of high school. It was a shock for the four-year letterwinner and three-year starter who never lost a game during his prep career and helped lead Charlotte, North Carolina's Independence High School to four straight 4A state titles. Smith ended up enrolling at Appalachian State where he went on to become the NCAA Football College Subdivision's active leader with 525 career tackles. As a freshman in 2007, Smith played for the Mountaineers' squad that upset the nationally-ranked Michigan Wolverines at Michigan Stadium.

Away from the gridiron, Smith enjoys spending time with his family, relaxing, and watching movies and sitcoms. He is extremely close with his mom, Pamela, and the two speak before every one of D.J.'s games.

70 MAX STARKS

Tackle
6-8, 345
10th NFL Season
1st with Chargers

UFA (Pittsburgh) - '13
Florida
Lake Highland Prep HS
Orlando, Fla.

The Chargers added a wealth of experience to their roster in May when they agreed to a contract with former Pittsburgh Steelers offensive tackle Max Starks. The 6-8 Starks is expected to compete with 6-9 King Dunlap for the starting left tackle job in one of the tallest competitions in recent memory.

Starks spent his first nine NFL seasons with the Steelers, including 2012 when he started all 16 games at left tackle. It was an impressive accomplishment, considering that Starks had suffered a torn ACL during the Steelers' Wild Card Playoff loss in Denver at the end of the 2011 season, yet he bounced back and played every offensive snap for the Steelers in 2012.

It wasn't the first time that Starks had overcome serious injury. In 2010, Starks suffered a neck injury which required a surgical procedure that included a cervical fusion. It was an injury that kept him sidelined until October of the 2011 season, but Starks made it back to the field and started the final 12 games for the Steelers. Toward the end of their season, his teammates voted him their winner of the Ed Block Courage Award for his perseverance in overcoming the injury.

A native of Orlando, Florida and a former Florida Gator, the Steelers selected Starks in the third round of the 2004 NFL Draft (75th overall). He won two Super Bowl rings with Pittsburgh, starting at right tackle in Super Bowl XL after the 2005 season and starting at left tackle in Super Bowl XLIII at the end of the 2008 season. Starks has experience at both tackle positions while starting 96 of 123 regular-season games played and eight of his 10 career playoff games.

Starks is a second-generation NFL player. His biological father, Ross Browner, was one of six relatives who played in the NFL. Browner was a first-round pick of the Cincinnati Bengals in 1978 (No. 3 overall). He played defensive end for the Bengals for nine seasons (1978-86) before concluding his career with the Green Bay Packers in 1987. Browner played collegiately at Notre Dame where he was a two-time All-America (1976, '77) and the winner of both the Lombardi and Maxwell Awards.

Incredibly, Starks grew up without knowing that his biological father had been an NFL star. He grew up in Orlando, Florida with his mother and stepfather, Elleanor and Max Starks. Starks' mom had lived in Cincinnati for a time and she was in a relationship with Browner while he was playing for the Bengals. Unbeknownst to him, she had become pregnant while they dated and gave birth to Max Starks IV, just two weeks before Browner and the Bengals faced the San Francisco 49ers in Super Bowl XVI in January 1982. For 17 years, Elleanor kept this secret to herself. Only in 1999 when Starks had grown into a massive 17-year-old did she reach out to Browner to tell him that he had a son he had no idea existed. Part of her reasoning for reaching out when she did was that Starks had become one of the nation's most-highly-recruited high school players and one of the schools recruiting him was the University of Southern California (USC), where two of Ross' brothers, Joey and Keith, had both played. Starks' mom feared that questions would be raised during his recruiting visit to USC, so in a preemptive strike, she sent a letter to Browner and included several photos of Max. It took a little time for the initial shock to wear off from both father and son, but shortly after receiving the letter from Elleanor, Starks and Browner met face-to-face for the first time at a football camp in Georgia.

As the years passed, father and son rekindled their relationship and in a bit of irony, when Starks played in his first Super Bowl for the Steelers after the '05 season, he did so in the same city (Detroit) that his father had played his first Super Bowl just weeks after Starks was born. When this happened, Browner and Starks became just the eighth father-son combo in NFL history to both play in a Super Bowl.

The term gentle giant applies because Starks is one of the NFL's most compassionate players when it comes to community service. In 2004, he started the Max Starks Charitable Fund, an outreach program which focuses on literacy and education. As a child growing up in Orlando, Starks spent many hours with his peers at the Boys and Girls Clubs of Orlando. By the time he was in the eighth grade, Starks had joined Future Florida Educators of America, a group in which members performed community service, including helping to clean up neighborhoods and serving Thanksgiving and Christmas meals to citizens living in Orlando's homeless shelters. And when he was in the ninth grade, Starks was working as a high school tutor, assisting elementary school children with their classwork. As a senior, he was one of eight tutors invited to attend a national service learning conference and he returned to Orlando and started a program where tutors visited underprivileged elementary schools to help students prepare for standardized tests. The outreach continued during his collegiate years at Florida, where he visited Gainesville-area schools to promote reading and learning, and he worked with Kids Against Drugs, Alcohol and Tobacco. In honor of all of his work in and around his native Orlando, Starks was given a key to the city in 2006, along with having his No. 77 retired at Lake Highland Prep.

Starks has hosted a number events that are linked to his foundation. His signature event is a football camp that he hosts each June at Lake Highland Prep. It's a free camp that's open to both boys and girls ages 7-14. In addition to football skills, the camp stresses literacy, education and the importance of maintaining a positive image both on and off the field.

Breast cancer is another cause that is near-and-dear to Starks.

His mom is a breast cancer survivor and he holds an annual Thanksgiving food drive that helps raise awareness for the disease. In 2009, the Steelers named him their Walter Payton Man of the Year for his efforts with both breast cancer and his foundation.

One last major cause that Starks has lent support to is the fight against human trafficking. He sits on the board of directors for Cents of Relief, a nonprofit that works to prevent human trafficking and provide healthcare for its victims, particularly women who've been forced into prostitution and their children.

Besides the various charities and critical causes that Starks is associated with, he's also found time to make a USO Tour and visit the USS Theodore Roosevelt at sea.

One of the reasons that Starks has been so devoted to giving back is because so many reached out to him when he was a youngster. One of those who lent a helping hand was former Orlando Magic center Shaquille O'Neal. As an eighth grader, Starks worked as a ball boy for the local NBA team and word had slipped out that Starks was having a hard time finding athletic shoes that would fit his size 19 foot. Having caught wind of the story, O'Neal came to the rescue and passed along several pairs of shoes to Starks.

One of Starks' non-football passions is music, especially classical music. A percussionist himself, Starks sat on the board of directors for the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra. He also assisted the Symphony by narrating youth programs for some of the city's elementary school children. He was exposed to music at a young age. His mother was a fan of musical theater and often took Starks to the Bob Carr Performing Arts Center in Orlando. Starks actually appeared in the Nutcracker ballet as a fourth-grader and he later sang bass in the chorus at Lake Highland Prep High School.

Starks is married to Dr. Tiffany Calloway-Starks. The couple has a daughter, Waverly. They also have a Rhodesian Ridgeback named Leonidas.

When he was younger, Starks was given the nickname, "The Undertaker." Growing up, his family owned a funeral home in Central Florida and it wasn't uncommon for Starks to drive to school in the company hearse, a Navy blue '64 Cadillac.

25 DARRELL STUCKEY

Safety
5-11, 212
4th NFL Season
4th with Chargers

Draft 4 - '10
Kansas
Washington HS
Kansas City, Kan.

A fourth-round pick in 2010, Darrell Stuckey has become one of the Chargers' top special teams performers.

The 2012 season was no exception as for the second year in a row, Stuckey tied for the team lead with 12 special teams stops. He did so despite ending the season on the "Reserve-Injured" list and not playing in the team's final three contests. His total of 24 special teams tackles over the past two seasons is tied for eighth-most in the NFL, and all but one of the players with more have played in the full 32 games, while Stuckey played in just 26.

One of the team's fastest players, Stuckey is an all-around talent on special teams. In addition to his tackle totals in 2012, Stuckey led the NFL with six punts downed inside the 20, while also forcing a team-high two fumbles, recovering an onside kick and tallying six tackles inside the 20.

Stuckey is one of the Chargers' most-active players in the community. As a student at Kansas University, he was not only one of the school's most-talented athletes, but also one of it's most popular and academically gifted. Raised by a single mother, Michele Foulks, Stuckey graduated in four years and was named to the Athletic Director's Honor Roll. He was also one of the Jayhawks' most active participants in student government and community service. Stuckey enjoys delivering motivational speeches and regularly volunteers to lend a helping hand with community projects in San Diego.

Stuckey's 295 career tackles at Kansas were second-most all time among Jayhawks defensive backs. Only former NFL great Leroy Irvin (347) had more. As a junior, Stuckey tallied 93 tackles and became the Jayhawks' first non-linebacker to lead the team in tackles since 2000.

Stuckey has three brothers and three sisters. His younger sister, Denae, played basketball at Iowa State.

His hobbies include painting, drawing and collecting DVD movies.

In April 2011, Stuckey married longtime girlfriend, Lacie Reed. The couple recently celebrated the birth of their first child. Son Jayton James was born in Feb. 2013.

28 BRANDON TAYLOR

Strong Safety
5-11, 205
2nd NFL Season
2nd with Chargers

Draft 3 - '12
Louisiana State
Franklinton HS
Franklinton, La.

The Chargers knew Brandon Taylor was a special player, so it was no surprise when the team engineered a trade with Miami to move up five spots in the third round to select the former LSU Tiger with the 73rd overall pick of the 2012 NFL Draft.

Taylor's rookie season in San Diego was spent primarily learning on the practice field and in the classroom. He waited patiently for an opportunity to play on Sundays and that chance arose late in the season when he appeared in four games, two of which the Chargers won. Taylor also earned his first NFL start on Dec. 23 against the New York Jets, but the rookie suffered a severe knee injury in the game and he finished the year on the "Reserve-Injured" list.

Taylor grew up in Franklinton, La., the second-youngest of Curtis and Annette Taylor's nine children. He was groomed and toughened by two older brothers, Curtis and Jhyryn, both of whom played for the Tigers. Taylor charted his own path in football, making a challenging switch from cornerback to strong safety. His willingness to sacrifice for the team made him one of LSU's most popular players. Before his senior season, head coach Les Miles called Taylor into his office and informed the team captain that he'd been chosen to wear the Tigers' coveted No. 18 jersey. In a tradition that was born in 2003, the LSU coaching staff picks one player who exemplifies character and leadership to wear the No. 18 jersey each season. Taylor also had another honor bestowed upon him by teammates as he was selected to stand in the rally circle before each game to fire up the team. Both gestures were tremendous honors for the Louisiana native.

Brandon's brother, Curtis, played on LSU's National Championship team in 2007 and was drafted by the San Francisco 49ers in 2008. He's currently playing for the Arizona Cardinals.

TRANSACTION HISTORY: Third-round pick (73), April 27, 2012...signed May 15.

2012: NFL debut Dec. 2 vs. Cincinnati...made first NFL start Dec. 23 at New York Jets and shared seven-yard sack with defensive end Kendall Reyes...later suffered knee injury vs. Jets...placed on "Reserve-Injured" Dec. 26.

COLLEGE: Team captain as senior for nation's second leading defense in total yards and points allowed...finished career with 160 tackles, 11.5 tackles for loss, and four interceptions... played at LSU from 2008-11...general studies major.

PERSONAL: Born in Bogalusa, La....All-America and all-state cornerback at Franklinton (La.) High...Louisiana 4A Defensive Player of Year as senior in 2007.

92 CAM THOMAS

Defensive Tackle
6-4, 330
4th NFL Season
4th with Chargers

Draft 5A – '10
North Carolina
North Moore HS
Robbins, N.C.

A 2010 fifth-round draft pick out of North Carolina, the time is now for the former Tar Heel Cam Thomas as he enters 2013 as the most likely candidate to begin the season as the team's starting defensive tackle.

Thomas' stock has steadily risen the past two seasons. In 2011, he played in all 16 games and led the defensive line with four sacks; he finished second with six tackles for loss, 10 quarterback hits and nine pressures, and he tied for fourth with 26 tackles. Last season, Thomas again played in all 16 games, including three late season starts, and he was third among the team's defensive linemen in tackles (30), pressures (6) and quarterback hits (9).

Thomas is a mountain of a man with an infectious personality who goes by the nickname "Baby Zilla." As a collegian at North Carolina, he helped engineer a turnaround that culminated in his senior season when the Tar Heels paced the ACC and ranked 10th in the nation in run defense.

Thomas enjoys spending time with his daughter, bonding with his teammates, and listening to his favorite R&B singer, Rihanna.

63 JOHNNIE TROUTMAN

Guard
6-4, 330
Rookie NFL Season
2nd with Chargers

Draft 5 – '12
Penn State
Pemberton Township HS
Brown Mills, N.J.

Johnnie Troutman gets a rare second opportunity to be a rookie in 2013. The Chargers' fifth-round pick in the 2012 NFL Draft from Penn State, Troutman had surgery for a pectoral injury prior to the draft and spent the entire 2012 season on the "Reserve-Non-Football Injury" list. Healed, Troutman is expected to vie for playing time in 2013.

The reason the Chargers were able to overlook Troutman's injury and still select him in the fifth round was the fact that he started his last three seasons at left guard for the Nittany Lions without allowing a sack. Troutman was credited for throwing 38 touchdown-resulting blocks during his career, and as a senior in 2011, he wasn't flagged for a single penalty. During his junior and senior seasons, Penn State led the Big Ten in fewest sacks allowed. Troutman was an honorable mention All-Big Ten pick in '11 and he was named the Brooks-Irvine Memorial Football Club of New Jersey's Division I College Player of the Year.

TRANSACTION HISTORY: Fifth-round pick (147), April 28, 2012...signed May 11.

2012: Spent entire season on "Reserve-Non-Football Injury" list while recovering from pectoral surgery.

32 ERIC WEDDLE

Free Safety
5-11, 200
7th NFL Season
7th with Chargers

Draft 2 - '07
Utah
Alta Loma HS
Alta Loma, Calif.

Eric Weddle is the Chargers' Most Valuable Player, voted as such by teammates at the end of the 2012 season. Weddle garnered the team's top honor after leading the squad with 111 tackles. He also tacked on first-team All-Pro honors from CBSSports.com and Pro Football Weekly & the Professional Football Writers of America, and second-team All-Pro honors from the Associated Press.

Weddle has become one of the NFL's top game-changers. His 10 interceptions over the last two seasons (2011-12) tied for third-most in the NFL and among his 16-career picks, three have been returned for touchdowns, including a 23-yard scoring return against Peyton Manning and the Denver Broncos last November. Weddle has three career interceptions against Manning, two of which have been returned for touchdowns, while the third prevented a touchdown during a win over Manning's Colts in the divisional playoffs at the end of Weddle's rookie season. Weddle also has been a thorn in the side for the Kansas City Chiefs, recording four interceptions against them the last two seasons.

A Southern California native, Weddle grew up in Alta Loma, 115 miles north of San Diego. He and his wife, Chanel, his former high school sweetheart, married in La Jolla in July 2005. The couple has three children, daughters, Brooklyn Marie and Silver Jean, and son, Gaige. Weddle is a gym-rat and an avid golfer. He plays basketball and golf several times a week and is a single-digit handicap on the links. He also enjoys bowling and movie nights with the family. Eric and Chanel wed before his junior season at Utah. They lived near Utah State in Ogden, UT, where Chanel went to school and played soccer for the Aggies, while Eric commuted nearly an hour each way to Salt Lake City where the University of Utah is located for school and football.

Weddle was a special education major at Utah who helped tutor students with learning disabilities. As a professional, he has remained active in the community supporting a number of worthy causes, including breast cancer as his grandmother is a two-time survivor of the disease.

Weddle was drafted in the second round by the Chargers in 2007 after the team made a trade with Chicago to move up 25 spots in the round to select him. As a rookie, he was part of a secondary that led the NFL with 30 interceptions. Weddle moved into the starting lineup in 2008 and finished the year second on the team in tackles with a career-high 135, just one behind the team leader. He also set a team record with an 86-yard fumble return for a touchdown against the Atlanta Falcons.

Weddle's all-around game improved each year and in 2010, he received his first all-pro honors when he was selected to the AP's All-Pro second team after the Chargers finished the season ranked first in the NFL in pass defense. Weddle helped turn around a pass defense that just two seasons earlier ranked second-to-last in the league. Within months, the Chargers rewarded Weddle with a new five-year contract and it kicked off the best season of his young career in 2011. He helped clinch two early-season back-to-back wins with late fourth-quarter interceptions, becoming just the third Chargers defender to do so in the previous 20 years. It was the beginning of a Pro Bowl season in which Weddle tied for the NFL lead with a career-high seven picks. And it wasn't just Pro Bowl accolades that Weddle earned, as a slew of All-Pro accolades followed, accompanied by his selection as the Chargers' Defensive Player of the Year. Weddle even intercepted two passes in the Pro Bowl, one of which resulted in a touchdown after a lateral, while also breaking up a game-high three passes and tying for second with five tackles en route to a 59-41 win by the AFC.

Weddle's incredible rise through the NFL was recently chronicled in the book "No Excuses, No Regrets: The Eric Weddle Story," which was written by Trent Toone and published by Shadow Mountain. The book, which tells Weddle's story of overcoming adversity and accomplishing impossible dreams, hit bookshelves in May. Weddle's former coach at the University of Utah, Kyle Wittingham, wrote the foreword.

After a two-year sabbatical in the Pacific Northwest, Charlie Whitehurst returned to San Diego in 2012.

Whitehurst originally joined the Chargers in 2006 as a third-round pick after an All-ACC career at Clemson. He backed up Philip Rivers for four seasons (2006-09) until the Chargers dealt him to Seattle in 2010 for a second round choice in the '10 NFL Draft, and an additional third-round choice in the 2011 draft. Whitehurst spent two seasons in Seattle and he helped the Seahawks to an NFC West title in 2010 by leading them to a Week 17 victory over the St. Louis Rams in a nationally-televised NBC Sunday Night Football contest.

An honor roll student throughout his college career at Clemson, Whitehurst earned his degree in marketing in December 2004, a full year before his eligibility expired. He left the Clemson, South Carolina campus as the Atlantic Coast Conference's third all-time leading passer. One of the players who ranked ahead of him was Rivers, who spent his collegiate career at North Carolina State.

Whitehurst's dad, David, played quarterback for the Green Bay Packers from 1977-83 and the Kansas City Chiefs in 1984. When the Chargers played at Lambeau Field in 2007, the Packers were hosting the team's annual alumni weekend and the entire Whitehurst family made the trip to Northern Wisconsin to take part in the festivities and watch the Chargers play.

Whitehurst's sister, Carrie, also went Clemson where she was a forward on the Tigers' women's basketball team.

47 MIKE WINDT

Long Snapper
6-1, 237
4th NFL Season
4th with Chargers

Free Agent – '10
Cincinnati
Elder HS
Cincinnati, Ohio

It was a rather remarkable turn of events that led Mike Windt to become the Chargers' long snapper as a rookie in 2010. The first domino fell when David Binn, the team's all-time leader for career games played, was felled by a hamstring injury. With Binn on the "Reserve-Injured" list, the Chargers went through three veterans, James Dearth, Ryan Neill and Ethan Albright, yet none panned out. Dearth and Neill were both sidelined by injuries, while Albright was cut, opening the door for Windt. Signing the Cincinnati native proved to be a fortuitous move as Windt proved to be a capable snapper for punts and field goals, and less than a year later, the Chargers severed ties with Binn, who ended his tenure in San Diego having appeared in an amazing 256 career games.

While Windt still has a long ways to go to match the 17 seasons Binn logged in San Diego, he's off to a good start. In March, the Bolts locked Windt up for the long haul, inking him to a new four-year deal before the start of free agency.

Windt has demonstrated pin-point accuracy on snaps. Last season, he had a hand in Mike Scifres setting a new team record for single-season punting average, while two seasons ago, he helped Nick Novak set a franchise mark for single season field goals of 40 and 50 yards or longer.

Windt is engaged to Kate Fredrikson, an oncology nurse at Rady Children's Hospital in San Diego. The couple plans to wed in April 2014.

Windt's hobbies include golf, stand-up paddle-boarding and spending time with his English Bull-dog, Hemingway. He also has a taste for fine wines and music. Two of his favorite musicians are Michael Buble' and Frank Sinatra.

39 DANNY WOODHEAD

Running Back
5-8, 200
6th NFL Season
1st with Chargers

UFA (New England) – '13
Chadron State
North Platte HS
North Platte, Neb.

In March, when the Chargers signed running back Danny Woodhead, they landed one of the most popular athletes ever to come out of the state of Nebraska.

A native of tiny North Platte, Neb. (pop. 25,000), 300 miles north of Denver, Woodhead first came onto the national scene at Chadron State College after a record-setting career at North Platte High. Nebraska's 2003 Player of the Year, Woodhead was overlooked by the state's biggest schools, including the University of Nebraska, so he followed his older brother, Ben, to Chadron State where he became the first-ever athlete in school history to receive a full-ride scholarship. Despite his diminutive 5-8, 200-pound frame, Woodhead set a number of records for the Eagles, and he became a two-time winner of the Harlon Hill Award, Division II's equivalent of the Heisman Trophy. Woodhead left the Chadron, Neb. campus as the NCAA's all-time leading rusher (7,962 yards) and he tied the national mark with 109 touchdowns. Though Chadron State never won a national championship during Woodhead's career, the Eagles went 35-11 during his tenure, including back-to-back undefeated seasons and Rocky Mountain Athletic Conference titles his junior and senior years. Their only loss each of those two seasons came in the NCAA Division II quarterfinals where both times they were defeated by Northwest Missouri State. Still in March 2013, Woodhead was named to the Division II 40th-Anniversary Tribute Team.

Despite a record-breaking college career, Woodhead did not receive an invitation to participate at the 2008 NFL Combine. Instead he took part in a Pro Day on the University of Nebraska campus and posted a 40-yard dash time that would've been among the fastest at the Combine. Still, when the 2008 NFL Draft rolled around, all seven rounds came and went without Woodhead hearing his name called and he ended up signing a free agent contract with the New York Jets. Woodhead suffered a knee injury in training camp and spent his entire rookie year on the "Reserve-Injured" list. He returned in 2009 and played sparingly for the Jets, but in 2010 he was released after the first game of the season. It didn't take long for the rival New England Patriots to scoop up the Nebraska native and his career quickly hit an upswing. Woodhead played in 14 games for the Patriots and averaged a team-record 5.64 yards per carry for a squad that reached the AFC Divisional Playoffs. A year later, the jack-of-all-trades helped the Patriots to a 13-3 regular season that culminated with a trip to face the New York Giants in Super Bowl XLVI. And in 2012, he scored a career-high seven touchdowns in helping New England to a 12-4 mark and a trip to the AFC Championship Game.

Woodhead seemed destined to play football from early childhood. As a child, he drew numbers on the backs of his cowboys and Indians and he held make believe games in his bedroom. Looking for a bigger field, he even once drew a football field in the middle of the family's living room with a green marker. By fourth grade, he became a ball boy at North Platte High, where his dad, Mark, was an assistant coach.

Their family is extremely close. Woodhead was home-schooled until the ninth grade and his parents still live in North Platte, where Mark is now a school teacher and high school girls basketball coach. Both of his parents also attended Chadron State and Mark played wide receiver for the Eagles in the late 1970s. Danny and Ben roomed together at Chadron and they later served as the best men in each other's weddings. All of the men in the Woodhead family go by the nickname "Woody," except for Mark, who goes by "Big Woody." They all enjoy playing golf and Danny, a scratch player, is the family's best. Mom, Annette, is extremely devout and to this day she still sends Danny scriptures prior to each of his games.

Woodhead and his wife, Stacia, have a daughter, Gia Grace.

29 SHAREECE WRIGHT

Cornerback
5-11, 182
3rd NFL Season
3rd with Chargers

Draft 3B – '11
Southern California
Colton HS
Colton, Calif.

After two years of waiting patiently, the 2013 season offers a tremendous opportunity for Shareece Wright, who now finds himself in the thick of competition to become one of the Chargers' starting cornerbacks.

Wright had appeared on track for a big year in 2012 after appearing in just seven games as a rookie. He was coming off a solid preseason, one that included a performance against Dallas in which he had a 73-yard interception return, a sack and forced fumble, and two passes defensed. But on the first play of the Chargers' 2012 opener at Oakland, Wright hurt his foot while making a special teams tackle inside the 20 and it sent him to the sidelines for the rest of the night and for the next six games. Once healed, Wright played in each of the Chargers' last nine games, and he finished the year with 14 tackles on defense and seven on special teams.

A native of Colton, Calif., east of Los Angeles, the Chargers were Wright's hometown team and they were the team he was hopeful would draft him. He even brought a Chargers hat with him to his 2011 draft party just in case the call came, which it did after Wright's strong finish to an up-and-down collegiate career at nearby USC.

Wright works closely with the Junior Diabetes Foundation. The daughter of his former football coach from Colton High School has the disease and it inspired Wright to help. In September 2011, he was invited to throw out the first pitch at a San Diego Padres game as an introduction to his partnership with the foundation.

Draft 1 – '13
Alabama
Foley HS
Foley, Ala.

The San Diego Chargers used their first-round pick (No. 11 overall) in the 2013 NFL Draft to select former University of Alabama tackle D.J. Fluker.

A cornerstone for the two-time defending BCS Champion Crimson Tide, Fluker started all 27 games at right tackle the last two seasons. A second-team Associated Press All- America and first-team All-Southeastern Conference pick as a junior in 2012, Fluker graded out at 98.6% on his blocking assignments, surrendered only four sacks, and was flagged just two times as Alabama finished the season 13-1 and 7-1 in the SEC. Among his 2012 statistics, Fluker totaled 90 knockdowns, 22 pancakes and 15 touchdown-resulting blocks for an offense that averaged 445.5 yards per game, 31st nationally and fourth in the SEC. The Crimson Tide were even better on the ground, ranking 16th nationally and second in the SEC with 227.5 rushing yards per game.

Fluker left Alabama with a year of eligibility remaining after earning his degree in health studies in Dec. 2012. Since he graduated, Fluker was granted permission to compete in the 2013 Senior Bowl and its week-long practices, which helped raise his stock heading into April's draft.

A New Orleans native, Fluker's family was forced to flee the Bayou when Hurricane Katrina reared her ugly head in 2005. His family moved to Mobile, Alabama before relocating to Biloxi, Mississippi and ultimately Foley, Alabama. Fluker played his sophomore high school season at Mobile's McGill-Toolen Catholic High School as a defensive lineman and his junior year at Biloxi High School. As a senior, he enrolled at Foley, where the coaching staff converted him into an All-America offensive tackle. Highly sought-after by a number of major college programs, Fluker chose Alabama over Auburn, LSU, Oklahoma, Florida, Clemson and Florida State.

13 KEENAN ALLEN

Wide Receiver
6-2, 211
Rookie

Draft 3 – '13
California
Northern Guilford HS
Greensboro, N.C.

In the third round of the 2013 NFL Draft, the Chargers landed former California Golden Bears wide receiver Keenan Allen, a player widely projected as a first or second-round pick before a knee injury late in his junior season.

Unbeknownst to many, Allen was a player who had long been on the radar screen of Chargers General Manager Tom Telesco. Back in 2011, Telesco had attended Cal's game against USC at San Francisco's AT&T Park and he noted that Allen really stuck out that night on a field that was loaded with great players. Allen in fact enjoyed one of the most prolific days of his career that evening against the Trojans, catching a career-best 13 passes for 160 yards.

Allen left school after his junior season having caught a school-record 205 passes, for 2,570 yards (third in school history) and 17 touchdowns (seventh). It included a career-high 98 catches for 1,343 yards as a sophomore in 2011.

Allen's half-brother, Zach Maynard, was his quarterback all three years at Cal. Maynard had originally enrolled at Buffalo, but transferred to Cal so that he and Allen could play together. In 2011, the two combined for the longest pass play in school history when they hooked up on a 90-yard score against the Washington Huskies.

In addition to his pass-catching totals, Allen averaged 12.0 yards per return as a punt returner and 22.6 yards on kickoffs and he left the Berkeley campus with 3,458 all-purpose yards in just three seasons.

TRANSACTION HISTORY: Third-round pick (76), April 26, 2013...signed May 13.

27 STEVE WILLIAMS

Cornerback
5-10, 185
Rookie

Draft 5 – '13
California
Skyline HS
Dallas, Tex.

Williams' selection (No. 145 overall) in the fifth round of the 2013 NFL Draft marked the second-straight former California Golden Bear picked by the Chargers, following the selection of wide receiver Keenan Allen in the third round.

Williams tossed his hat into the NFL ring after only three seasons at Cal, including a 2012 junior campaign in which he earned honorable mention All-Pac-12 and team MVP honors. His 2012 statistics included career highs in interceptions (three), total passes defensed (13), tackles (80) and tackles for loss (seven).

Williams actually caught the eye of Chargers General Manager Tom Telesco in 2011, when the former Colts Director of Player Personnel had ventured to "The Big Game" in Palo Alto to scout Stanford quarterback Andrew Luck. Early in the game, Williams jumped an out route thrown by Luck, picking off the pass and returning it 45 yards to the Stanford four-yard line. Even though he was just a sophomore, that play stuck in the back of Telesco's mind. Luck, meanwhile, went on to be selected by the Colts with the first overall pick in the 2012 NFL Draft.

TRANSACTION HISTORY: Fifth-round pick (145), April 27, 2013...signed May 13.

COLLEGE: Honorable mention All-Pac-12, Bear Backers MVP on defense and team's Most Valuable Defensive Back as junior...Pac-12 Defensive Player of Week after interception and four pass breakups vs. Washington State in 2012...Bob Simmons Award as Most Valuable Freshman on Defense in 2010...finished career with 150 tackles, six interceptions, nine tackles for loss, 25 pass breakups, 31 total passes defensed, sack and three forced fumbles...redshirted in 2009 ...played at Cal from 2010-12...sociology major.

PERSONAL: Born in Dallas, Tex....two-time second-team Class 5A All-State at Skyline High in Dallas...invited to play in Under Armour All-America All-Star Game following senior campaign...first-team all-district as junior after helping guide squad to 12-2 mark and 5A Region II District 11 title.

Florida International

Miami, Fla.

The Chargers used their sixth round pick in the 2013 NFL Draft (No. 179) to select Tourek Williams, a three-time All-Sun Belt Conference pick from Florida International.

Williams was twice a second-team all-conference pick, as well as a first-team All-Sun Belt pick following his senior year. As a senior team captain in 2012, he led the Panthers with 6.5 sacks, 14.5 tackles for loss and two forced fumbles. Williams finished his career at FIU second in school history in career sacks (18), yards lost (155), tackles for loss (45.5) and tackle for loss yards (224). The only Panthers player to record more is former Chargers outside linebacker Antwan Barnes.

San Diego Chargers 24, Oakland Raiders 21
Sunday, December 30, 2012
Qualcomm Stadium (San Diego, CA)

The Chargers closed out the 2012 season with a 24-21 win over their arch-rivals, the Oakland Raiders, on a cold and rainy day in San Diego that also featured a brief hailstorm during pregame warmups. The Chargers opened the game in spectacular fashion, scoring on a 99-yard kickoff return and led the Raiders for the entire afternoon. The Bolts held a 24-7 lead heading into the fourth quarter when Oakland scored twice to tighten the contest. The win enabled the Chargers to finish the season in second place in the AFC West and with a 4-2 record in the division.

2008 AFC Divisional Playoffs
Pittsburgh Steelers 35, San Diego Chargers 24
Sunday, Jan. 11, 2009 - Heinz Field (Pittsburgh, PA)

The Chargers' run through AFC Playoffs came to abrupt end in Pittsburgh as Steelers dealt Chargers 35-24 setback on cold and snowy day in Steel City. Chargers staked out to early lead on long touchdown catch by Vincent Jackson and led or were tied for most of first half, but game's momentum changed right before and right after halftime. Down 10-7, Pittsburgh drove 66 yards for touchdown just before halftime, giving them their first lead of night at 14-10. Steelers got ball first coming out of locker room and drove 77 yards for another score that extended lead to 21-10. Darren Sproles' 63-yard kickoff return gave ball to Chargers at Pittsburgh's 23-yard line, but Philip Rivers' first-down pass was tipped and intercepted by Steelers. Though replays showed ball appeared to hit ground, play withstood instant replay challenge and Pittsburgh maintained possession. Chargers' defense held and forced punt, but punt inadvertently hit unknowing Eric Weddle and Steelers recovered and took over at Chargers' 23. Again Chargers defense would hold, stopping Pittsburgh on downs at one, but with Bolts offense unable to get out of shadow of its own goal line, Steelers got ball again in San Diego territory and 49 yards later, Steelers scored to take 28-10 lead. San Diego managed pair of late touchdowns, including 62-yarder by Sproles, who finished game with 274 all-purpose yards, but Pittsburgh held Bolts at bay and held on for win.

2008 AFC Wild Card Playoffs
San Diego Chargers 23, Indianapolis Colts 17 (OT)
Saturday, Jan. 3, 2009 - Qualcomm Stadium (San Diego, CA)

The San Diego Chargers' miracle season of 2008 stayed alive as Bolts rallied from 17-14 fourth quarter deficit behind outstanding defensive effort and legs of Darren Sproles to defeat Indianapolis Colts, 23-17, in overtime in Saturday night home playoff game at Qualcomm Stadium. After trailing 7-0 and 10-7, Chargers rallied and led 14-10 at half. In third quarter, Colts caught Chargers off-guard while substituting defenders and made them pay with 72-yard TD pass from Peyton Manning to Reggie Wayne. San Diego's defense settled down though and did not allow Colts any more points. key defensive stand late in fourth quarter, fueled by Tim Dobbins' sack of Manning at Colts' one-yard line, allowed offense time for one final drive in regulation. Philip Rivers drove Bolts to Colts' eight-yard line and Nate Kaeding's field goal from 26 yards out tied game with 31 seconds left. San Diego won coin toss in overtime and Rivers led offense on 11-play, 75-yard march that ended with 22-yard touchdown run by Sproles to win game in overtime. Sproles finished night with 328 all-purpose yards, third-most ever by player in NFL Playoff game. Dobbins' sack that enabled Bolts to begin comeback was first of his career.

2007 AFC Divisional Playoffs
San Diego Chargers 28, Indianapolis Colts 24
Sunday, Jan. 13, 2008 - RCA Dome (Indianapolis, IN)

The Chargers advanced to AFC Championship game in New England with 28-24 win in final-ever game at RCA Dome. contest included multiple lead changes that were sparked by handful of reserves who were forced into action after key starters were sidelined with injuries. Down 7-0, Philip Rivers threw interception and Colts drove to Chargers' 17-yard line, but Antonio Cromartie forced fumble by Marvin Harrison to end threat. Chargers capitalized, tying game on touchdown pass from Rivers to Vincent Jackson. Late in second quarter, Cromartie snagged his second takeaway when slightly overthrown Peyton Manning pass went off Reggie Wayne's fingertips. Cromartie returned interception 89 yards for what appeared to be go-ahead score, but holding call during return brought play back to midfield and teams went to locker room with Indy up 10-7. Chargers scored on their opening possession of second half and took their first lead at 14-10. Indianapolis then drove to Chargers' four, but rookie safety Eric Weddle interceped pass intended for Kenton Keith. On last play of third quarter, Rivers tossed his third touchdown pass of day, short screen that Darren Sproles took 56 yards to house, but euphoria of 21-17 lead was temporarily dampened as Rivers left game with sprained right knee suffered on play. With Rivers out, LaDainian Tomlinson also battling sore knee and Colts retaking lead 24-21, backups Billy Volek and Michael Turner were called on to carry load. And they delivered with Volek giving Chargers lead one final time on one-yard quarterback sneak with 4:54 remaining. Colts had two late tries to reclaim lead, but Bolts defense buckled down with two stops on downs, including one at Chargers' seven yard line and another that started far down field thanks to 66-yard punt by Mike Scifres as Chargers held on for victory.

2007 AFC Wild Card Playoffs
San Diego Chargers 17, Tennessee Titans 6
Sunday, Jan. 6, 2008 - Qualcomm Stadium (San Diego, CA)

The Chargers won their first playoff game since 1995 on cool day with intermittent rain showers before capacity crowd at Qualcomm Stadium. Bolts overcame slow start and 6-0 deficit at half to rally and outscore Titans 17-0 in third and fourth quarters to win game, 17-6. Chris Chambers and Vincent Jackson became first pair of Chargers to each record more than 100 yards receiving in playoff game since 1983 as Chambers went for 121, while Jackson tallied career-high 114, including touchdown catch that proved to be eventual game winner. Nate Kaeding field goal to open third quarter made score 6-3 and after defensive stop, Philip Rivers tossed 25-yard TD pass to Jackson for 10-6 lead. Tennessee drove deep into San Diego territory on their next drive, but Rob Bironas pushed 38-yard field goal wide to left and Chargers made them pay. Rivers engineered 12-play, 72-yard drive and LaDainian Tomlinson scored from one yard out on fourth-and-one play to put game away. Chambers 39-yard catch on third-and-10 play set up score. Late in game Tennessee was stymied in its comeback effort by three-and-out and Drayton Florence interception. Titans finished their year 10-7, while Chargers advanced to face Indianapolis in AFC Divisional Playoff round.

2004 AFC Wild Card Playoffs
New York Jets 20, San Diego Chargers 17 (OT)
Saturday, Jan. 8, 2005 - Qualcomm Stadium (San Diego, CA)

The Chargers' 2004 postseason came to early end as in 20-17 overtime loss to New York Jets in Wild Card Playoff Game at Qualcomm Stadium. sellout crowd of 67,536 braved elements as Drew Brees led furious fourth quarter comeback during which Chargers outscored New York 10-0 to send game into overtime. Given new life by roughing-the-passer penalty on what appeared to be San Diego's last play of game, Brees found Antonio Gates in end zone for one-yard touchdown pass with 11 seconds left to send game to extra period. It was only second overtime playoff game in team history. Both teams traded possessions in extra period before Nate Kaeding's game-winning attempt from 40 yards sailed wide right, opening door for New York to drive down and kick game winner with five seconds left in overtime. Keenan McCardell scored game's first touchdown on 26-yard catch. He was initially ruled out of bounds, but San Diego challenged call and ruling was reversed. It was McCardell's sixth-career touchdown catch in postseason. Brees opened game by completing his first eight passes and on McCardell touchdown drive, he was 5 of 5 for 61 yards and touchdown. He finished night 31 of 42 (.738), setting team playoff record for completion percentage.

Sunday, Jan. 10, 1993 - Joe Robbie Stadium (Miami, FL)

The Chargers history-making season ended with 31-0 loss to Miami Dolphins in Joe Robbie Stadium. Intermittent downpours and soggy field slowed both teams early as each squad was forced to punt on their first four series. second quarter proved disastrous for San Diego. Stan Humphries was intercepted three times with each leading to Dolphins touchdown and 21-0 halftime lead for Miami. San Diego also suffered fumbled snap on punt attempt in period. Chargers could not get on track in second half either, as Miami chalked up 10 more points and forced two more San Diego turnovers. Chargers' defense was on field most of game (37:08). Junior Seau recorded personal-best 19 tackles. Dolphins special teams put Chargers in poor field position on several occasions, including punts, which pinned San Diego's offense back on its own five, six, four and 15-yard lines.

1965 AFL Championship Game
Buffalo Bills 23, San Diego Chargers 0
Sunday, Dec. 26, 1965 - Balboa Stadium (San Diego, CA)

It was same two teams that met in 1964 Championship game with scene shifting from East to West Coast. But there obviously was no hometown advantage for San Diego Chargers. Coach Lou Saban's Buffalo Bills found 59-degree weather much to their liking in San Diego's Balboa Stadium, rolling to 23-0 victory before 30,361 downhearted fans. San Diego's offensive unit was unable to generate any type of serious attack after first quarter and Jack Kemp-led Bills broke loose in second period. Kemp teamed with end Ernie Warlick for initial score, 18-yard pass play capping 60-yard drive. Just 2:20 later, Bills struck again on 74-yard punt return by Butch Byrd and at halftime, Buffalo was ahead 14-0. In second half, Chargers were able to contain Buffalo's ground game and Kemp's passing, but couldn't stop talented toe of place-kicker Pete Gogolak. His soccer-style kicks connected twice in third quarter from 11 and 39 yards and once more in final period from 32 yards.

1964 AFL Championship Game
Buffalo Bills 20, San Diego Chargers 7
Sunday, Dec. 26, 1964 - War Memorial Stadium (Buffalo, NY)

Lou Saban sent his Buffalo Bills out for post-Christmas gift after three lean years and one near miss in American Football League. Bills found what they were looking for and wrapped up defending champion San Diego Chargers, 20-7, for AFL Championship before 40,242 howling hometown fans. Chargers started out as if they meant to repeat their 51-10 conquest of Boston Patriots in 1963 title game. They boomed from their own 20 in four plays with payoff 26-yard strike from retiring quarterback Tobin Rote to tight end Dave Kocourek. Keith Lincoln's PAT at 2:16 of first period was last time San Diego got on scoreboard. Disaster soon struck visitors when Lincoln was forced out of action with broken rib on "the tackle heard around world" by Buffalo linebacker Mike Stratton. Coupled with absence of Lance Alworth, injury to Lincoln left Chargers offense impotent. Buffalo forged to 13-7 halftime lead on field goals from 12 and 17 yards by rookie ace Pete Gogolak and four-yard touchdown run by halfback Wray Carlton. Bills tallied again in final quarter on sneak by quarterback Jack Kemp.

1963 AFL Championship Game
San Diego Chargers 51, Boston Patriots 10
Sunday, Jan. 5, 1964 - Balboa Stadium (San Diego, CA)

Before 30,127 in Balboa Stadium and 30 million more on national television, Keith Lincoln ran, caught and passed like no other athlete ever has in professional title match as Californians crumbled Boston Patriots, 51-10. Chargers' offense produced 610 yards. Lincoln accounted for 349 of them in virtuoso performance that included touchdown sprint of 67 yards, touchdown reception of 25 yards, 206 yards gained rushing, 123 gained pass receiving and 20 gained passing. Lincoln's heroics were mightily abated by others on San Diego team that played with brilliance. It was powerhouse show by team that had failed in two previous tries to win AFL title. But Patriots, with league's proudest defensive outfit, were no match for San Diegans. Splendidly prepared by Sid Gilman to combat Boston's almost constantly rushing linebackers, Chargers scored on their fourth scrimmage play, as well as their sixth and 10th. Patriots' ground attack suffered after fullback Larry Garron incurred head injury midway through second period. Garron later returned to game but remained in it only briefly.

HISTORY OF CHARGERS UNIFORM

Helmet was white with gray facemask. It had dark blue bolt and black numbers outlined in gold. Home jersey was Collegiate blue with white numbers on front, back and sleeves outlined in gold. White strip on each shoulder had dark blue bolt outlined in gold. Road jersey was white with Collegiate blue numbers on front, back and sleeves outlined in gold and white lightning bolts on sleeves outlined in gold. Was also Collegiate blue strip on each shoulder with white bolt outlined in gold. Pants were white with dark blue lightning bolt outlined in gold running down each leg. Owner Barron Hilton chose lightning bolts because he associated "Charge" of lightning with lightning bolt. He also liked bolts that were on helmets of Air Force Academy football team, but wanted something slightly different, so had "Chargers Bolt" designed to be different and placed on uniforms.

1961-65

Bolt on helmet, shoulders and pants is changed to gold. On home jersey, helmet and pants, bolt is outlined in blue. On road jersey, it is outlined in white.

1966

Bolt on helmet is changed to dark blue. Pants are changed to gold with solid white stripe running down each leg, outlined in blue. Stripe replaces lightning bolt.

1967

Gold bolt is placed back on helmet with blue outline. Home jersey is darker shade of blue and has white numbers on front, back and sleeves, and white strip on each shoulder with gold lightning bolt. Road jersey had darker blue numbers also on front, back and sleeves and blue strip on each shoulder with gold lightning bolt. Lightning bolt is placed back on pants, dark blue and outlined in white.

1968-71

Home jersey is changed to Powder blue with white numbers on front, back and sleeves with white strip on each shoulder and gold lightning bolt outlined in blue. Road jersey is still white with Powder blue numbers on front, back and sleeves, and Powder blue strip on each shoulder with gold lightning bolt outlined in white.

1972

Lightning bolt on pants is again replaced by solid white stripe running down each leg, outlined in Powder blue.

1973-78

Numbers on home uniform are changed to gold outlined in white. Numbers on road uniform remain Powder blue outlined in gold.

1979-83

Helmet is changed to Navy blue with gold facemask and gold lightning bolt outlined in Navy blue and white. Primary jersey is white with Royal blue numbers outlined in white and gold. Secondary jersey is Royal blue and features gold numbers on front, back and sleeves outlined in blue and white. Lightning bolt is brought back to pants. It is white with Royal blue outline.

1984

White lightning bolt on pants is placed inside blue strip. Patch is worn on front of jersey celebrating Silver Anniversary of Chargers being original AFL franchise.

1985

Home jersey is changed to Navy blue with gold numbers on front, back and sleeves outlined in Navy blue and white. There was white strip on each shoulder that had gold lightning bolt outlined in Navy blue. Road jersey is white with Navy blue numbers on front, back and sleeves outlined in white and gold, and Navy blue strip on each shoulder with gold lightning bolt outlined in Navy blue and white. Strip on pants is changed to Navy blue. Lightning bolt on pants is gold with Navy blue and white outline.

1986-87

Number on front, back and sleeves of home jersey is changed to white with Navy blue and gold outline.

1988-89

Lightning bolt on helmet is changed from gold to white and features Navy blue and gold outline. Facemask on helmet is changed from gold to Navy blue. White strip on Navy blue home jersey is removed, leaving white lightning bolt outlined in Navy blue and gold. Lightning bolt on shoulders of road jersey is changed to white with Navy blue and gold outline and remains on Navy blue strip. Lightning bolt on pants is removed and replaced with Navy blue strip outlined in white and gold.

1990-91

Road pants are changed to Navy blue with white stripe down each pant leg outlined in Navy blue and gold.

1992-06

White lightning bolt returns to pants. On home white pants, it is outlined in Navy blue and gold and is in blue strip down each pant leg. On road Navy blue pants, there is just white lightning bolt outlined in Navy blue and gold down each pant leg. There is no strip on road pants.

2007-11

Uniforms feature Navy blue jerseys and white pants for most home games, white jerseys and Navy pants for road games, and Powder blue jerseys with white pants for designated home games. On all jerseys, bolt has been moved down sleeve, below shoulder. Bolt is Gold and outlined in both powder blue and Navy. On Navy and Powder blue jerseys, bolt is in white strip, and on white jerseys, bolt is in Navy blue strip. Numbers are now on shoulder above bolt. Front of all jerseys have Chargers scripted across front above numbers and below NFL shield. Team name, numbers and player's names all feature new font. Home white pants feature strip down side of each pant leg with curved bolt in Navy strip to be worn with Navy jerseys and Powder blue strip to be worn with Powder blue jerseys. Navy pants feature same bolt inside of white strip down each pant leg. Helmet is changed to metallic-white and features Gold bolt outlined in Powder blue and Navy.

2012

In 2012, Nike became the official uniform provider for the NFL. The Chargers' color scheme did not change. The only changes to the uniform were a thin white flap that previously followed the V-neck line now stops just below the shoulder numbers, and Nike's emblematic swoosh appears on the left hip of the pants as well as on the right shoulder pad. Nike's uniform technology is hailed as less restrictive with greater ventilation.

2013

The Chargers made some slight modifications to the team's jerseys for 2013. The home jersey (Navy blue) will now have a blue collar that is the same color as the jersey. The nameplate has changed to two colors. The white road jerseys will feature a Navy blue nameplate outlined with gold, the Navy blue home jerseys will feature a gold font on the nameplate outlined in powder blue and the "Power Blue" alternate jerseys will be white outlined in Navy blue. Socks will feature a gold stripe. The helmets and pants will remain the same.

Following his retirement, Bauer spent four seasons (1983-86) as the Chargers' running backs and special teams coach. In 1987, he accepted a job as a sports anchor at News 8 in San Diego and remained there until 2003. Bauer graduated cum laude from California Lutheran University in 1976 with a degree in physical education. In September 2003, he was inducted into Cal Lutheran's first Hall of Fame class.

QUALCOMM STADIUM

Qualcomm Stadium, the Chargers' home since 1967, underwent an expansion in 1997 that included the addition of 11,500 seats, a club level, 37 new suites and a new west-end Jumbotron screen.

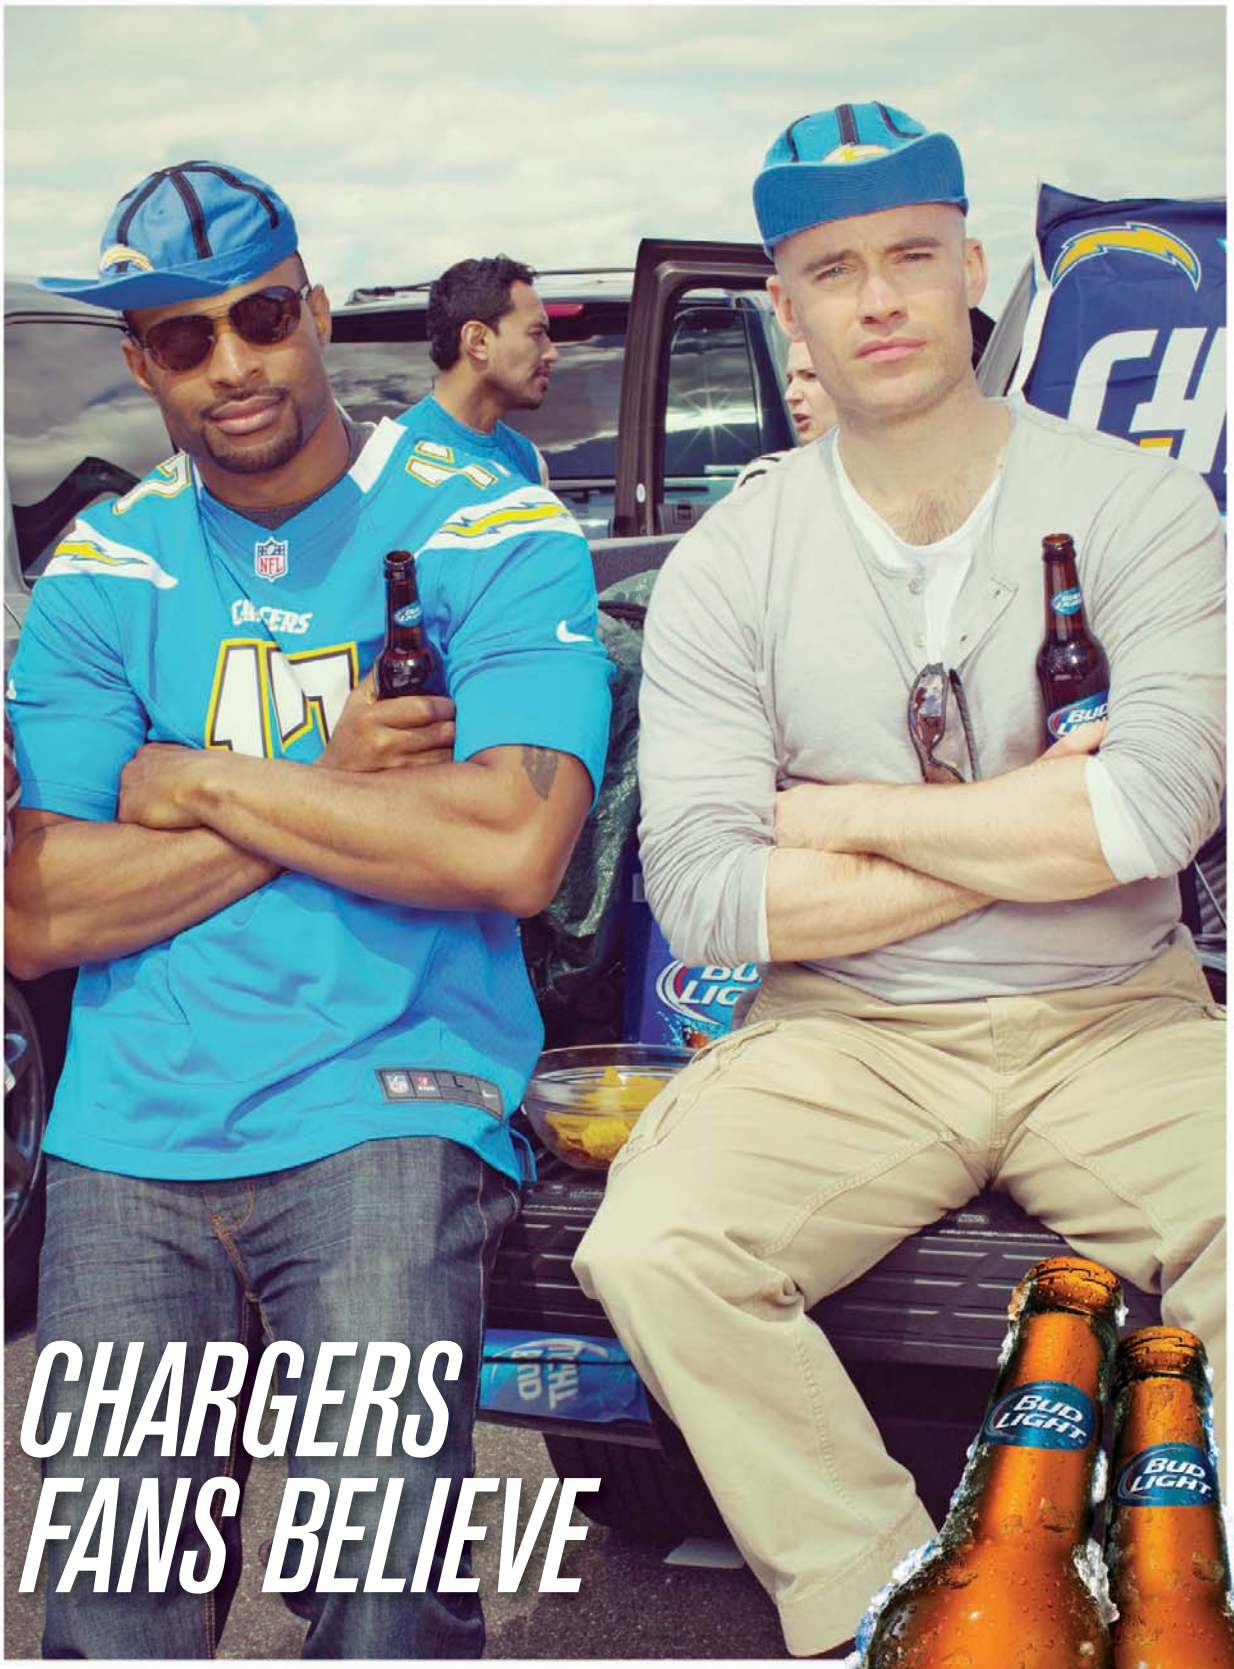

The centerpiece of the renovated stadium was the Club level. Chargers season ticket holders who purchase seats on the Club level enjoy amenities exclusive to Club members. The 7,800 Club seats are wider and padded, and come equipped with an attached drink holder. Club members enjoy wait service at their seats, featuring a menu complete with a variety of food specialties, as well as the comfort of four fan-friendly lounges where they can relax in an air-conditioned setting before, during and after games. Restrooms on the Club level also are upgraded.

The former Jack Murphy Stadium was renamed Qualcomm Stadium after the Qualcomm Corporation contributed $18 million for naming rights. Additionally, the total number of parking spaces at the stadium was increased to 19,000, including 461 handicapped spaces, making the parking lot at Qualcomm Stadium the second-largest in the National Football League. There was a significant increase in restroom capacity at the stadium, with the number of women's facilities almost doubled and the men's restroom capacity increased by 33 percent.

San Diego Stadium was originally built in 1967 as a home for the Chargers at a cost of $27 million. It was dedicated at a Chargers-Lions game on August 20, 1967, before a crowd of 45,988. The 1997 renovation marks the second major facelift to occur at the stadium. Originally built to a capacity of 52,000, the stadium was expanded in 1984 to increase seating capacity to 60,100. The most recent renovation increased the seating capacity at the stadium to approximately 70,000.

The team played before its first-ever sellout crowd on December 3, 1967, when 52,661 turned out to see the Chargers battle the Oakland Raiders.
